Disappointing benefit dance

It was a disappointing night Saturday, Oct. 2, for the organizers of a benefit dance for John Atkinson.

Don Smith, chairman of the dance sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, said the response was "terrible".

"There were only 12 couples who came," he said. The club did not raise enough to cover their expenses, Mr. Smith said.

He was really disappointed, he said. There was $68 in gate receipts.

Mr. Smith said he did not know why the dance did not attract more people. He said he heard from some people that there was hardly any one in town on that Saturday evening.

"I don't think we're going to have another dance," but he did not rule out sponsoring some other event to raise funds.

The cost of the disc jockey was $85, he said.

Mr. Smith said though, the club will probably give a donation to the Bionic Arm Fund, but he did not know how much.

The fund is to raise money for Mr. Atkinson, a local farmer who had his arm amputated in a farm accident earlier this year. An estimated $5,000 is needed to send Mr. Atkinson to Italy for this special operation.

Kelly Welch number 33 tries for those extra yards in a good offensive game for the Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurians. The game was played Wed.

Sept. 29 versus Quinte Secondary School. The Centurians won 46-24. See Page 11 for story.

Clarke Rollins, MPP, announced Sept. 27, that the Township of Harvey has been given approval for a Community Planning Study Grant in the amount of $3,804.24.
This grant is designed to assist in preparing official plans and zoning by-laws, or in bringing these up to an acceptable level.
These funds can also be used to prepare zoning by-laws to replace minister's zoning orders - to finance planning programs or for other relevant planning studies.

Sometimes I really don't understand some of the actions and events of this community.

Let me specify: I was astonished to say the least about the outcome of the last benefit dance held over the weekend for the John Atkinson Bionic Arm Fund.

It is not as if there was another large event happening somewhere else in the area. There was little, if any, competition. Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, I know the organizers were just as disappointed as I with the dance.

There were only 12 couples who took the time to attend. Now, I ask you, why did such a thing happen this way?

You might have had your reasons for not coming to the benefit dance, but just think of all the trouble the club went to for this failure.

In the past, this community has put out that extra effort to give their support to such a venture, but not this time.

Some might say that I am writing this because the Kiwanis Club asked me to do it, but you're wrong. This column is being done on my own. No one has put the bug in my ear to force me to write this.

I am not getting anything from anyone for what I'm saying. I'm just very disappointed with the end result.

This is the second time in less than two weeks where the support of the community seemed to falter.

Prior to this Kiwanis sponsored event, John McCann of the Western Hayriders personally organized another dance the week before.

The results of it were, if the word could be used, better than this last dance.

People might take the impression that there are too many other people asking for money. There is a definite argument for that, but there are good points against this type of thinking.

Look at this Bionic Arm Fund. Place yourself in the position, if you were involved in this accident. How would you feel after such a weekend's event?

Helping each other's neighbour is just part of the country's way of life which should not be placed aside which is done so much in the larger cities.

This point was also mentioned by Max Keeping, the news director of CJOH-TV when he spoke to the crowd at the Madoc Fall Fair just recently. It is this aspect of neighbours caring for neighbours which distinguishes us from the city dweller.

If you argue, the new Community Centre is asking for too much money, also, I tend to disagree. The advantages of such a structure can not be undersold. It is for the future generations of this entire area.

This is not the time to stop looking at each other and to the community in general. Each donation is vital to everyone, be it for your neighbour or for the future neighbours of this community.

Welcome to area

The community would like to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Blackburn and family who have moved in their new home on Highway 62 north of the Crookston Rd.

Elected to directors committee for region

Lee Jourard, director of Cablevue 4, the Community Program Division of Cablevue (Quinte) Limited, has been elected vice-chairman of the Ontario Region Program Directors Committee of the Canadian Cable Television Association.

He was chosen for the position at the annual meeting of the Committee, held Friday in Oshawa.

The Committee is made up of Program Directors of the Cable TV Systems which are members of the CCTA.

The Program Directors meet several times a year to discuss programming matters of common concern. It is also an opportunity to share ideas, technical matters of program production, and to discuss areas of Community Involvement by the Program Divisions of the Cable systems.

The Chairman of the Regional Committee also acts as the Region's delegate to the National Programming Committee of the CCTA. Glen Terrell of Cable 10, Mississauga was elected chairman. Beverly Briggs, York Cable in Toronto, will serve as secretary for the coming year. Mr. Jourard had served on the executive as secretary for the 1975-76 year.

The annual meeting was also a family occasion, as Mr. Jourard's son Lewis was in attendance. Lewis had recently completed the Television Arts Course at Loyalist College, and joined the staff of Jarman Cable in Brantford, as Production Director, this fall.

Mine workers will not walk out

The October Day of Protest sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) will not be receiving support from the Local 4854 of the United Steelworkers of America for Marmoraton Mining Company.

Roy Frost, president of the 250 member union, said last week that the workers will be staying on the job for the one day protest scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 14.

The local is controlled by its agreement drawn up through the headquarters in Pittsburgh, Penn., said Mr. Frost and they are the only people who can tell us to walk out.

The contract is negotiated in Washington, DC, and it's under American control, "whether we like it or not," he said.

If the local had received a directive from its American leaders, the men would have gone out for the one day.

Mr. Frost said a letter was written to the district office of the CLC telling them of the decision of this local. A reply has been received by Mr. Frost, but he declined to say what the letter said.

The contents will be told to the membership at their next meeting sometime this week, he said.

Mr. Frost said the membership would not walk off even if the Prime Minister told them.

He said the question of the walk-off was asked to the membership and few workers voiced support for the protest.

The workers, said Mr. Frost, are making good money; are working for a good company; and "we're trying to keep this mine going."

unlawful purpose, police said. Also charged was Marl William Ray, 22, of Bannockburn, with two counts of setting an explosive device. They had a bail hearing Tuesday, Oct. 5, in Belleville.

Police said they were called to the scene Oct. 2 when a mail box belonging to Dora Gunter of Millbridge blew up. Shortly after ignited dynamite was discovered in the car owned by Raymond Henley.

A barking dog brought Mr. Henley's attention to the car from which he said he thought someone was taking gas. Checking the situation, Mr. Henley discovered dynamite in the gas tank and at the licence plate. Both were lit; however, he was able to remove the fuses, police said.

The police said this was not a prank. The investigating officer was Constable Carl Campbell.

Jeannie Elizabeth Sexsmith weds John Arthur Alexander July 24 in Queensboro

On July 24 at 11 a.m. St. Andrew's United Church, Queensboro, was the setting for a pretty summer wedding when Jeannie Elizabeth Sexsmith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Sexsmith, Queensboro, was united in marriage to John Arthur Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Alexander, Queensboro.

Arnold Creaser of Queensboro, assisted by Rev. Harold H. Lackey of Peterborough, performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of salmon colored gladiola's and yellow snapdragons, with white pew bows trimmed with yellow rosebuds and lily of the valley.

The bride walked down the aisle to the strains of "The Wedding Song" sung by soloists Dorothy Peters and Joan Donaldson, accompanied by organist John Murphy.

Throughout the ceremony the selections, "Come Let Me Love You" and "The Wedding Vows" were played ending with the recessional, "Let Me Be There".

Given in marriage by her father and mother the bride wore a gown of white polyester satin with an overlay of sheer polyester crepe styled in a high bodice with elbow length cape sleeves tapering off to front and back shirt flounces.

Wearing a picture hat trimmed with white nylon roses and nylon veil trailing waist length, she cradled a long stemmed bouquet of salmon gladiolas with green fern and white satin ribbon. The bride's dress was accented with a gold heart shaped locket belonging to her great-great-grandmother.

The maid of honor was Mrs. Marlene Gordon of Queensboro, while bridesmaids were Jeanie Beatty, Sulphide, sister of the groom; Heather Alexander, Oshawa, cousin of the bride. The flower girl was Rachelle Ramsay, Queensboro, niece of the bride.

The attendant's were all gowned in floral salmon halter dresses of polyester knit complimented by sleeveless jackets tying at the bodice. They wore matching salmon picture hats and carried long stemmed bouquets of green gladiolas tipped with ivory. The flower girl wore a floor length gown with puffed sleeves, tying at the bodice with ivory ribbon.

She also wore a picture hat of salmon and carried one long stemmed green gladiola tipped with ivory and matching ivory ribbon.

The best man was Robert McCaffrey of Madoc. The ushers were Ear Alexander, of Queensboro, brother of the groom, and Terry Sexsmith, Queensboro, brother of the bride. The ring bearer was Brent Beatty, Sulphide, nephew of the groom.

The groom and his attendants wore tuxedos of ivory beige with boutonnieres of salmon and green matching the bridesmaids gowns. The ring bearer wore an ivory vest and pants with a cream shirt and brown velvet bowtie. He carried a heart shaped pillow of floral salmon trimmed with ivory lace.

The reception was held on the lawns of the bride's home.

The guests were received by the mother of the bride wearing a salmon gown of polyester knit complimented by a long sleeved boucle knit jacket trimmed with matching Guilpui lace. She was wearing a corsage of salmon and ivory rosebuds.

The groom's mother wore a gown of yellow polyester knit accented with a floral sheer nylon jacket, her corsage of baby bronze mums.

The bridal table was decorated in tone's of salmon green and yellow.

The wedding cake was made of three tiers of rounded cake decorated in trailing ivies of salmon and pale green flowers. The tiers were separated by dainty cherubs and the cake was topped with a white dancing cherub cradling two doves.

The bride and groom departed for a week long wedding trip to Western Ontario with the bride wearing a knee length sun dress of white with mauve and yellow flowers. Her accessories were of straw. She wore a corsage of baby mauve carnations.

The bride and groom will be residing at 310 Maitland Ave., Peterborough, where the bride attends nursing college.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ottawa, Toronto, Oshawa, Belleville, Pickering, Brooklyn and Peterborough.

Telecare seeking volunteer help

Starting Tuesday, Oct. 5, Telecare will be having a training program to increase their number of qualified personnel for the telephones.

John Morosan of Telecare said the training course will be 18 weeks in duration and is to be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Belleville. The church is located at the corner of Church St. and Victoria Ave. Further information about the course can be obtained by telephoning 472-2222 or Zenith 44770.

Each lesson will last from 7.30 p.m. through until 10 p.m., said Mr. Morosan.

The Telecare service has been open in this area for the last year, he said. The area extends from Belleville to Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

Mr. Morosan said the volunteer agency has received an average of four to five phone calls each week from this area.

Most calls in general are to get information about sex education, helping depressed people, and people who are lonely.

There have been no suicide cases from this area, even though there have been some in the Belleville area, he said.

Mr. Morosan said there would probably be more calls from this area if more people knew this service was offered to them in this area.

Calf Club holds final event at fair

The Madoc 4-H calf club held their final event of the 4-H year, their Achievement Day at Madoc Fair. The Judge, Mr. Neil Raines of RR 1, Sunderland, complimented the members on the way the calves had been prepared for the show.

Junior Holstein Calf: Group A - Bev Stein, Mark Robinson, Craig Robinson, Kathryn Moorcroft and Donald Twiddy. Group B - Heather Harris, Bryan Moorcroft, Eddie Tobin and Scott Shaw.

Senior Holstein Calf: Dayle Harris. Junior Dairy Showmanship: Group A - Mark Robinson and Heather Harris. Group B - Scott Shaw and Eddie Tobin.

Senior Dairy Showmanship: Group A - Donald Twiddy, Craig Robinson and Bev Stein; Group B - Dayle Harris, Bryan Moorcroft and Kathryn Moorcroft.

Leaders of the Madoc 4-H Calf Club are David Foley and Gary Rivers, both of RR 1, Madoc. The Madoc Agricultural Society financially support this club.

Raymond Spicer dies in his 60th year

Following a brief illness, Raymond Spicer of Flinton entered into rest at his late residence in Flinton Saturday, Sept. 25, at the age of 60 years.

He was the son of the late James Spicer and his wife, the former and late Jane Andrew. The deceased was born in Flinton and had spent his entire lifetime in that area.

The deceased is immediately survived by his wife, the former Beverley Brushey, and by two children, Edith and George, both at home.

Also surviving are brothers and sister: John and Harry, Flinton; Henry, Tweed; Alvin, Belleville; Mrs. Jeffrey (Maggie) Brough, Madoc; Mrs. James (Olive) Miller, Napanee; Mrs. Dan (Beatrice) Lawlor, Deseronto. Two sisters predeceased, Teresa McLuckie and Lena Bryden.

Mr. Spicer received his education in Flinton schools.

He rested at the McConnell Funeral Home, Tweed, until Monday, Sept. 27, then to St. Paul's Anglican Church, Flinton, where the funeral was conducted by the Reverend Stan Riley, at 2.30 p.m.

Interment was in St. Paul's Anglican Cemetery, Flinton.

Pallbearers were Allen Spicer, Roger Bryden, James Wood, Stanley Bryden, Kevin Lawlor and Wayne Spicer.

There are two people from this area who help with the counselling. One resident is from Marmora and the other is from Tweed. Mr. Morosan, a volunteer himself, said he lives in Belleville, but is familiar with this area since he works in Marmora.

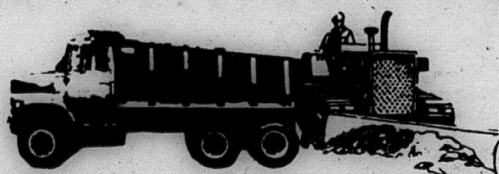

The course is open to anyone interested even though they may not want to man the telephones once the 18 weeks are completed, he said. To serve on the phone, a person must be 18 years old, he noted.

There is a registration fee of $5 which can be waived if the interested person cannot afford it.

"The training is open to any age to learn about themselves," Mr. Morosan said.

Telecare is a 24 hour service centered in Belleville which people call to get information about personal problems.

The majority of the problems called from this area, said Mr. Morosan, are related to drugs followed by sex related problems.

New barber coming to Madoc

By CAROL PARANUIK

A Picton man announced this week that he will be opening a barber shop here in the near future.

Phil Kellar, 33, says he plans to reopen the shop on St. Lawrence St., formerly known as Frank's Barber Shop, next to the Pinto store.

Born in Picton, Mr. Kellar has been barbering since 1961. He was working in the shop owned by John Sibthorpe when he decided to strike out on his own.

Having received his training in Toronto, Mr. Barber specializes in hair styling. He has taken styling courses at St. Lawrence College in Kingston and he says he keeps up with the modern trends by attending periodic conventions.

Although an opening date hasn't been set, the new barber expects to have the shop open every day of the week except Sunday. When he opens for business he will be commuting from Picton for awhile, but says he hopes to eventually move to Madoc.

For the last 50 years, Molly Haggerty of Ivanhoe has been playing piano at the Sunday School in Bethesda United Church.

She was presented with a plaque and a charm bracelet by the Sunday School for her contribution to the church.

Played 50 years

At Bethesda United Church, Sept. 22, a large crowd from the community gathered to pay tribute to Molly Haggerty who has played piano for 50 years in the church. Ila Mullett welcomed everyone and Rev. G. Adams were master of ceremonies for the evening.

Starting the evening was a sing-song led by Ann McInroy with Mrs. Haggerty at the piano.

Mrs. McInroy sang a solo. Mrs. McCumner also sang two solos accompanied on piano by Sharon Shanehorn. Marjory Holland had a reading.

Mrs. Haggerty was then presented with a plaque and charm bracelet by Mrs. Mullett on behalf of the community and church. She was then given a standing ovation.

Everyone wished them many more years of service with the church and the best of health.

A lunch was served following the presentation.

Best offensive play by Centurions

By JIM AIRHART

This was the best offensive display ever by a centurion football team. This was the comment of Barry Pyear, coach of the senior Centurion football team, following his team's 46-24 win over Quinte, in an afternoon game, Wednesday, Sept. 29, at Centre Hastings Secondary School.

Blaine Wickens opened the scoring when he ran the opening kickoff back 73 yards to make the score 6-0. The convert was no good.

The next Madoc touchdown saw Scott Simpson hitting Joe Brooks for his first of two touchdowns.

Kelly Welch made the convert to make the score 14-2.

Before the half ended Quinte scored to make it a close 14-10 score at halftime.

In the second half the offense simply exploded. The defense was strong as the offensive got 32 points and the defensive gave up only 10 points.

Madoc opened the scoring the second half as Scott Simpson scored a touchdown, with the conversion being made good by Carey Johnson.

Joe Brooks scored another beautiful touchdown on an excellent pass from Simpson with Mark Hanley getting the convert.

Scott Simpson scored his second touchdown on a four yard romp and Cliff Reid got the two point conversion.

Tom Hill rounded out the Madoc score intercepting a pass on the Quine one yard line, while Reid made the convert.

The seniors play Bayside on Wednesday, Oct. 6 in Bayside at 4 p.m.

Juniors win in come back

By JIM AIRHART

The CHSS Centurion junior football came back from a 16 point deficit to win 26-22 over a strong Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School team. The game was held Thursday, Oct. 1.

Scoring touchdowns for Madoc were Tom Sutton, Justin Hanley, Wayne Willemson and Joel Sabine. Justin Hanley got a convert to round out the scoring for Madoc.

Juniors loose

By JIM AIRHART

The Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurion's junior football played a poor defensive game as they gave up 26 points while the offence could only muster seven points. The final score - Bayside, 26 and CHSS, 7. The game was held Monday, Sept. 27.

By the time Wayne Willemson scored the lone Madoc touchdown, converted by Terry Terrion, the defense had given up the 26 points and the game was out of reach.

Bob Mound, head coach of the junior team, said he was very disappointed.

...A BURNING EMBER FROM THE FIREPLACE HAS FALLEN ON THE CARPET, STARTING A FIRE, AND IT THREATENS TO SPREAD THROUGHOUT THE HOUSE BUT...

SMOKE KILLS!

It's a proven fact. When fires occur at home, most people die from asphyxiation (suffocation) which comes from inhaling too much smoke. Or inhaling other toxic materials that are caused by fire. You can avoid such tragedies from happening to your family by installing a thoroughly tested, early-warning smoke detection system as quickly as you can. Any delay could mean the loss of your children's lives. Or the lives of other members of your family.

THE SMOKE SIGNAL BY WESTCLOX IS ONE OF THE SAFEST WAYS TO PROTECT YOUR FAMILY.

It is a complete smoke and fire detection system. It detects smoke and other toxic materials at the very earliest stage of a fire. As soon as abnormal concentrations of the products of combustion usually associated with a household fire build up in its chamber, the alarm sounds. Sometimes even before smoke becomes visible to the naked eye, the detector sets off its loud, built-in alarm alerting you to the danger of fire. This allows you to leave the house and call the Fire Department in plenty of time. The result? The lives of your children, your wife, and other members of your family are safe. And damage to your house can be minimized.

IT HAS A LOUD, EAR-PIERCING SOUND.

The Westclox system is battery operated — there are no wires

Note: If you show us this ad when you purchase your Westclox Smoke Signal, we'll donate a dollar to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

to worry about. So it's easy to install. And you get a long-lasting battery included in the unit's remarkably low price. (Battery valued at $8.95.)

Bowling over 200 points were Thera Reid, 237; Hilda McGowan, 233, 201; Barbara Wannamaker, 218; Betty Stevens, 209; Neal Reid, 225; Clarence Derritt, 225; Bob Wannamaker, 204; and Ken Adams, 203, 201.

Debbie Perrie led the way

Debbie Perrie led the way last week with a nice 484 (185) total. Following Debbie were Nancy Kirkpatrick 444 (169); Bonnie Perrie 423 (176); Heather Clark 383 (161); Cheryl Carrol 355 (158); Patti Dunford 354 (154); Scott Reid 349 (124); Lynn Stevenson 349 (134); Wendy Morgan 348 (148); Kevin Lowry 319 (137); and Bev Bronson 303 (137).

High Average leaders to date are this worthwhile cause.

On Jan. 1 of this year Joe Ann and Gardener Stevens in partners with Mike Horsburgh opened the Madoc Bowl, which had been vacant for some time.

The merchants at the time of opening donated gifts, these were used as door prizes and certainly helped to draw the crowd.

Walkathon planned

A walkathon is being planned to help raise money for the new Intermediate D hockey team, the Cooper Canucks.

Brian Rollins, organizer for the event, said he expects about 50 walkers to participate in the 12 mile walk from Cooper to Madoc.

The walk is scheduled for Oct. 23, rain or shine, he said. It will start at 8 p.m.

Debbie Perrie 138, Lynn Stevenson 129, Heather Clark 128, Patti Dunford 118, Wendy Morgan 116, Scott Reid 105, Nancy Kirkpatrick 113, Cheryl Carrol 103 and Ted Ash 102.

All the boys and girls are asked to be out next Saturday as teams will be set up and team competition will start the following week.

Possibly starting Nov. 1 and continuing quarterly, there will be Twilight Bowls, the price for this will be $7.50 per couple for four hours of bowling, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. with a cold buffet served at midnight. This has proved to be a successful evening, said Mrs. Stevensen.

Eldorado Slop Slappers meet

On Sept. 11, the meeting of the Cooper, Remington and Eldorado Slop

Slappers (4-H) held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Stein.

After the roll call, "In your family when is the main meal of the day served? What do you call it?", a collection of $2.65 was taken and the minutes were read by Karen Andrew.

Discussion was held around Mrs. Stein reading about planning meals, cream of tomato soup - quick burgers. There was a demonstration of quick burgers by Lois Budd, and Mrs. Stein demonstrated the soup.

There was a home assignment of planning a dessert course and a beverage to serve with the soup and the main course dish shown in the second meeting. The assignment also included making a soup or a main fish dish for lunch or supper.

The meeting closed by the 4-H motto, "Learn to do by doing".

Looking for people

Organizers are looking for people in Madoc and surrounding districts who would be interested in forming a pipe and drum band.

Jackie Martin, Jr. of Madoc, who was with the Belleville Kinsmen Pipe Band until it recently disbanded, has begun a search for prospective members. Although there are now 12 people signed up for pipe and drum training, the group would like to have 30 members before making a contract with a teacher to come up to Madoc and instruct once a week.

No previous training is necessary and no uniforms would be needed for the first year or two - even those training on the pipes will not require proper bagpipes for the first year.

If playing in a marching band appeals to you, please add your name to the list by calling Jack Martin, Jr., 473-4265, or the Kirkwoods, 473-4379.

IN MEMORIAMs

GORDON - In memory of Terry John Gordon who passed away Oct. 4, 1967. What would I give to clasp his hand. His happy face to see. To hear his voice and see his smile. That meant so much to me. Sadly missed by Mom, Dad and Sisters. 11

PARKS - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ida Parks, who passed away one year ago, Oct. 6, 1975. Sadly missed along life's way. Quietly remembered every day. No longer in our lives to share. But in our hearts they are always there. Rex, Phyllis Rollins and family. 11

SNIDER - In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Joe, who passed away Oct. 8, 1967. 'Tis well he will suffer no more. In the loved land of the blest. Pain fled as he trod heaven's shore. It left him at peace and rest. Lovingly remembered by wife Ida, daughters Mary and Ena and families. 11

CAVERLY - In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Reta Caverly who passed away ten years ago, Oct. 8, 1966. In tears we saw you sinking. We watched you fade away. Our hearts were almost broken. You fought so hard to stay. But when we saw you sleeping. So peacefully free from pain. We know that you are in God's hands. To never suffer again. Always remembered by Rae, Lois and family. 11

SULLIVAN - In loving memory of Nancy, who passed away Oct. 7, 1975. LITTLE ANGELS When God calls little children to dwell with Him above. We mortals sometime question the wisdom of His love. For no heartache compares with the death of one small child. Who does so much to make our world seem wonderful and mild. Perhaps God tires of calling the aged to His fold. So He picks a rosebud before it can grow old. God knows how much we need them, and so He takes but few. To make the land of Heaven more beautiful to view. Believing this is difficult still somehow we must try. The saddest work mankind knows will always be "Goodbye". So when a little child departs, we who are left behind. Must realize God loves children. Angels are hard to find. Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, Brian and Karen. 11

HILL - In memory of Mrs. May Hill loving mother and grandmother who died on Oct. 1st, 1965. Peaceful be thy rest, dear Mother. It is sweet to breathe thy name. In life we loved you dearly. In death we do the same. From daughter Teenie, son-in-law Delbert and grandchildren. 11

The Canada Safety Council feels it may be somewhat optimistic when it says between 33 and 38 Canadians could become traffic fatalities over Thanksgiving Weekend (78 hours - 7 p.m. Oct. 8th to midnight Oct. 11th) because the average over the past few years has been 61 traffic deaths, and there were 59 fatalities last year.

Worst record ever was 1966, when 109 lost their lives on our highways and city streets.

Thanksgiving Turkey

Every year thousands of Canadians embark on a shopping trip for their Thanksgiving turkeys. "Canadians choose turkey over every other protein source on this occasion for no other reason but that turkey traditionally accompanies Thanksgiving," say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Traditions are fine. But there's more to a turkey than tradition. This year when you shop for your turkey, think about these facts:

1 Most Canadian-processed turkeys are graded into the top three grades of federal standards - Canada Grade A, B and Utility.

2 Turkeys graded Canada Grade A have top quality flesh and finish. Good flesh means good distribution and a good amount of it on the carcass. Good finish means an even fat covering with no defects on the skin.

3 Turkeys graded Canada Grade B have a little less flesh and not quite so nice a finish.

4 Turkeys graded Canada Grade Utility may be Grade A or B with one small difference. They have a small portion of the carcass missing, such as a wing. They are usually a good buy.

5 If the turkey you buy is fresh (not frozen), it should have its grade marked on a metal tag. The tag is attached to the breast of the turkey. On frozen turkeys, the grade should be printed on the bag.

6 Turkey meat is one of the most economical meats found on the market today. Cooked turkey meat has a protein content as high as 30-32%. Its fat content is only 5-9%. Nutritionally, it is considered an excellent source of niacin.

7 Canadian turkey can be purchased in supermarkets 12 months of the year - not just at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

When you're eating Thanksgiving dinner this year, think about that. You might find yourself eating turkey more often.

Plan now for Spring Flowers

Buy your spring flowering bulbs now. A wide variety of tulips, daffodils, narcissus, hyacinth, snowdrops, squills and many others are still available. September and October are planting months.

Some of the lesser known varieties will really enhance your garden. For a change, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist R.A. Fleming recommends trying lily-flowered tulips, a variety called Marietta, or another called Queen of Sheba, to brighten up any spring garden.

Glorious-of-the-snow has sky-blue flowers with pure white centers. It grows from little pear-shaped bulbs which should be planted three inches deep and two to three inches apart. They require plenty of sunlight. Plant them near early-flowering shrubs so that their flowers and those of the shrubs will complement one another.

Another lovely spring flower is the snowdrop. This small white bell-shaped flower, with inner corollas that show tips of green, are often seen flowering through the snow during a mild period in early April. However, make sure you do not plant them near the walls of your home, or they might be forced into bloom in February and freeze. They should be planted three to five inches deep, and three inches apart in a moist peaty soil, with light shade.

COOKING

with Betty Thain

Somehow I feel that pumpkin pie is a traditional "must" for Thanksgiving dinner, and with this thought in mind, today I'm giving you Nellie King's recipe for "Pumpkin Chiffon Pie". I can almost guarantee you that this will be a recipe that you will treasure. This pie may be made one day in advance if necessary, but do not add the whipped cream until serving time.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie Crust
1½ cups graham wafer crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
Melt butter and add to wafer crumbs.
Blend in sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for five minutes.

Filling
1 envelope of gelatin (1 tablespoon)
¾ cup dark brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup milk
¼ cup water
1½ cups pumpkin
3 eggs separated
¼ cup white sugar

Mix gelatin, brown sugar, spices and salt in a saucepan. Stir in milk, water, egg yolks and pumpkin. Cook on top of stove in double boiler until gelatin is dissolved (about 10 minutes). Remove from heat and chill. Stir until mixture forms mounds when dropped from spoon. Beat egg whites and sugar until stiff. Fold gelatin mixture into egg whites. Pour into the cooled pie shell and refrigerate until set.
At serving time, garnish with whipped cream.

THE ANTI-INFLATION PROGRAM

Where we are and where we're going.

After one year, the anti-inflation program is doing what it set out to do.

The most important achievement has been the drop in the inflation rate. A year ago, consumer prices were rising at a rate of 10.6%. By August 1976, that rate of increase had dropped to 6.2%. This fall some unavoidable increases in energy costs and municipal taxes will affect the rate of inflation. In spite of this, the first year target of an inflation rate of no more than 8% will be met.

Increases in all forms of income—wages, salaries, fees, profits, dividends—are also being successfully restrained. On the average, prices have gone up less than wages this year. This means that most Canadians can cope a bit better, we have more buying power than we had before the program began.

The goal of the second year of the anti-inflation program is to bring inflation down even further, to no more than 6%. This can be achieved only if increases in everything slow down together.

In our kind of market economy, prices have to be able to move up and down to some extent. But the anti-inflation program does put an effective restraint on prices by controlling profit margins. In the second year, the price and profit controls are being changed to make the rules simpler and to apply restraint more fairly among different companies. They also include important incentives to encourage the investments the country needs to make the economy grow and create new jobs for Canadians. New investment credits will make allowances for company profits re-invested to boost production and productivity.

In the area of wages and salaries, the second year Guidelines limit increases to 6% as a protection against price increases, with 2% more added as a share of national productivity.

This Guideline is designed to protect and improve the real income of working Canadians, while bringing down the rate of inflation.

All governments are restraining their expenditures. The federal government is limiting growth in its own spending to keep it in line with the overall growth of the Canadian economy. This means that every day hard choices must be made to limit new programs and trim old ones. These choices are painful. But they have to be made if the government is to restrain its costs and avoid contributing to inflation.

Nobody likes controls. Not the people whose private decisions are affected by them. And not the governments that have to enforce them. But controls were and are needed, to bring inflation down and to assure a growing economy. The program will be terminated by the end of 1978. Until it is ended, the government is committed to making sure the controls work hard to bring about a continuing reduction in the rate of inflation.

Inflation has to be cut down to protect our personal buying power, our savings and pensions, and jobs for Canadians. If last year's spiral of rising prices and incomes had continued, Canadian-made products would soon be unable to compete in world markets. Imports could easily undercut goods produced and sold here at home. It's especially important for us to keep our prices and costs competitive with the United States, and on both counts the U.S. is still doing better than we are. Finally, inflation also hurts investment. And when investment goes down, unemployment goes up.

After a year of controls, inflation has come down. Progress has been made, in protecting Canadian jobs and improving Canada's well-being. The success of the anti-inflation program so far has depended a great deal on the co-operation of many Canadians. With continued co-operation, we can all look forward to sharing a more prosperous and growing economy.

The meeting will be held at the Town Hall on St. Lawrence St. at 8:30 p.m.

The second meeting (Nov. 24) will fall after the nominations close. Nominations are to be accepted between Nov. 11-15, with Nov. 15 at 5 p.m. as the qualifying day.

The advance poll is set for Nov. 27, council was told.

Public meetings are not required by law, as they were a couple of years ago. Council said they felt that public meetings though, are a vital part of municipal elections.

Annual meeting held for lawn bowlers

Madoc Lawn Bowling Club held its Annual Fall Meeting in the newly-repavated Club House, ending a successful year both socially and financially.

The club had entertained Stirling and Campbellford Clubs at "Jitney Nights", and had been entertained also in Stirling and Campbellford, with an afternoon jitney and "cook-out" in Belleville.

The 1976 membership totalled 26.

Tuesdays and Thursday nights were regular games night, with Saturday afternoon mainly for ladies and new bowlers. Friday afternoon was chosen for the "Senior Citizens' Games Day" with euchre and crokinole being played in the Club House. Social times over light lunch and tea were enjoyed by members throughout the season.

The new list of officers are: Honorary President, Percy Naylor; President, Percy Locke; First Vice-President, Carl Whittemore; Treasurer, Audrey Dafoe; Secretary, Hazel Beatty.

Other committees will be finalized when play resumes in the spring.

Same number of tags

The same number of dog and cat tags are to be ordered, for next year, council decided in their regular meeting Monday, Oct. 4. The decision was made resulting from a letter from the Toronto Stamp Licence company which supplied the village with licences last year.

OPP REPORT

Actinolite home robbed

Police are searching for someone who robbed an Actinolite home in the first half of October, the Madoc detachment of the provincial police report.

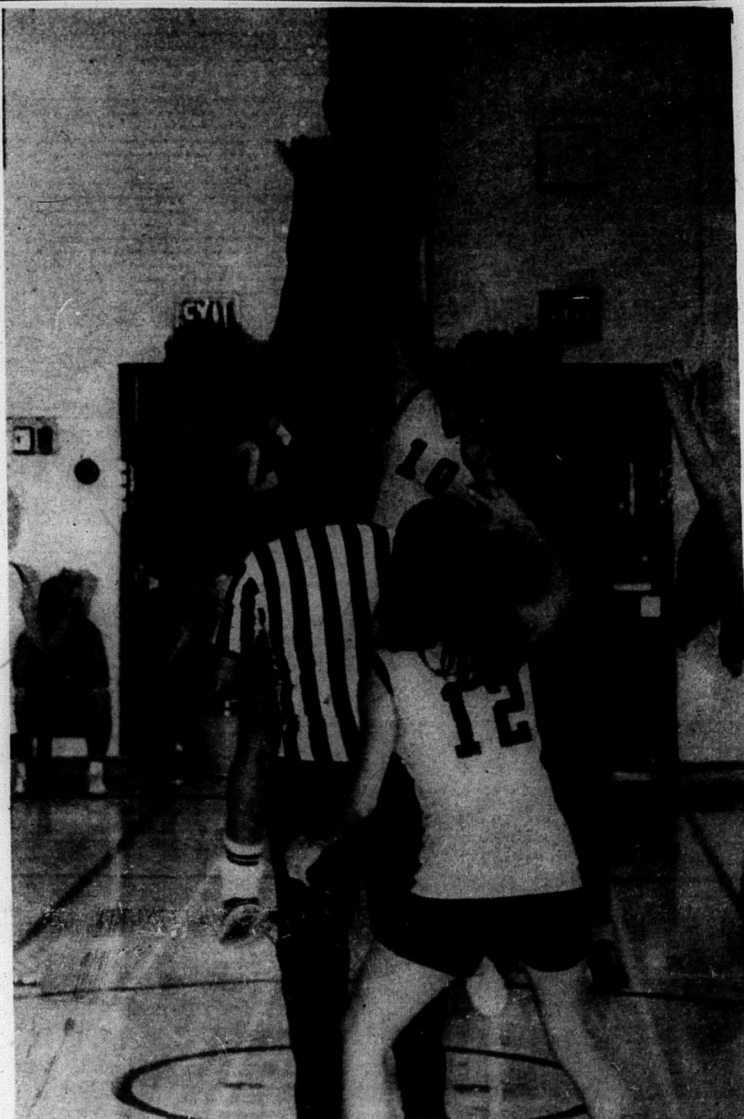

The house belonging to Jean Treacy, 72, was broken into sometime between 2 p.m., Oct. 1, to noon Oct. 5, police said. The break-in was not discovered until Harold Liwington, who periodically checked the house, found a broken basement window on Oct. 5.

Mrs. Treacy was away at the time of the robbery, staying at Elmira.

Total loss in the robbery is $3,365, police said. Some of the missing items were a color television, silver tea set and other household goods, police said.

As yet, nothing has been recovered and there are no suspects.

The Junior Girls Basketball team from Centre Hastings Secondary School defeated the visiting team from Napanee 37-21. See Page 11 for the story and an up-date of the team's performance to date.

AIDING CENTRE

Danceathon planned by CHSS

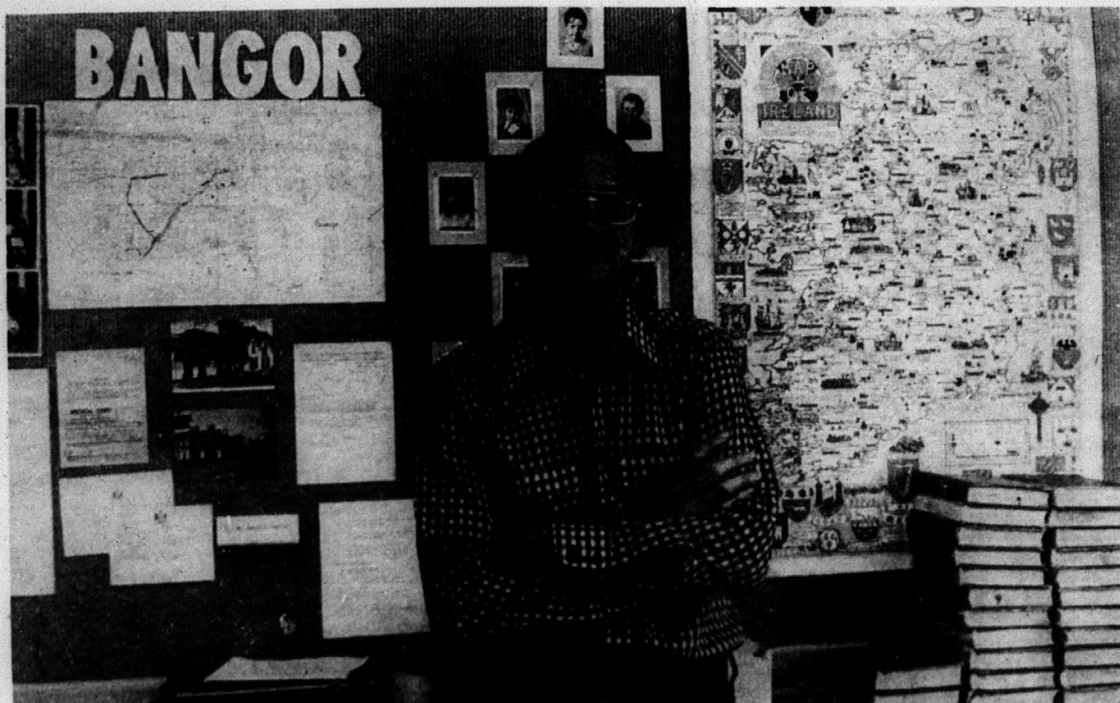

The Kiwanis Centre will come alive with the CHSS Danceathon Friday, Oct. 22. This will take place from 12 p.m. noon to 12 a.m. midnight coinciding with a regular Youth Dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The only rule for contestants is that they cannot stop dancing. Only washroom breaks are permitted so participants must eat and drink while moving. A pair of hearty energetic students will certainly win this contest.

There will be two major prizes awarded. One for the students obtaining the most money on pledges, and one for the best Danceathon Pair. The latter will be judged on endurance and style of dancing. The judges will be chosen from the CHSS teaching staff.

All funds raised from this student project will be divided among the three communities Madoc, Marmora and Tweed. In Madoc and Marmora the money will be presented to the Community Centre Funds. Since Tweed already has a community centre, the dance organizers would like any non-profit community organization in Tweed to apply to the CHSS student government.

The CHSS students would like to extend a welcome to everyone to drop in and support this community-school project.

Madoc resident, Al Danford spent last year teaching in Northern Ireland on an exchange program. A teacher at Marmora Senior School, Mr. Danford said that last year was the most fantastic year of his life. See page 9 for the story.

Later this year, one of the most important activities will be taking place in every municipality within Ontario. It is obvious that I'm talking about this year's fall elections.

They will be taking place Dec. 6, and I hope they receive the support they should.

One of the different aspects in our local election will be the Public Meeting planned for two occasions. The first one will take place Oct. 20 at 8:30 p.m. in the Town Hall on St. Lawrence St. (This is also the Baptist Church).

Here is the opportunity that you have been waiting for. A chance to ask those questions, to hear the answers and possibly get those people involved, acting on some of the local issues of this community.

The second chance local residents have will be Nov. 24 at the same time and place. This second meeting will fall after the nominations close. The nominations are open for four days in November. They start Nov. 11 and close on Nov. 15 at 5 p.m.

Now this meeting will have the first encounter of the present representatives and the new candidates. It should be a very interesting confrontation.

If you ever complained to your neighbours or just to yourself about the actions or non-actions of council you now have the chance to confront the people directly.

A few years ago, it was law to have these meetings, but the Ontario government changed it so public meetings don't have to be held.

Reeve T.C. Barton feels though, that Public Meetings are still a viable source of communications between the elected representatives and the public.

Even if you don't agree with him personally on some issues, Mr. Barton deserves the credit for this stand on the public meeting.

To date, there has not been anyone in the office who has said they plan to run for council. I have heard several rumors and names of people who intend to run, but nothing is as yet official.

That is one thing I would like to know, if anyone intends to run for office, drop off your name into the office. The Review plans to do interviews with the candidates, asking specific questions about why they are running.

The elections are not that far away, and candidates should make their presence known to the public.

This is your community and any changes within it can be done through the systems we have available to us. If you don't agree with things, you can do something.

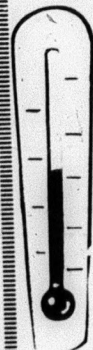

In my short experience with council, I have always been impressed with the time its members took to talk and meet with people concerning the local issues. Sometimes the time taken, pushed my working time late into the evening but if the job is worth doing, it is worth doing well.

Eastern Ontario well represented

By RACHAEL SPENCER

Eastern Ontario was well represented in the special wardens' and regional chairmen's class at the International Plowing Match.

County Wardens competing were Dorothy Gaylord, Frontenac; Roy Abrams, Lennox and Addington and Jack Sprague, Prince Edward. Warden Sprague placed fourth in a class of 21 participants.

The winner was A.M. Masson, chairman of Halton Region. Mrs. Gaylord, one of the two women competitors, was nineteenth. The other was Ann Jones, chairman of Hamilton-Wentworth Region. The wardens' trophy was brought to Eastern Ontario in 1964, when Loughboro Township Reeve Alfred Martin as Frontenac County Warden won it at the International Plowing Match promotional brochure.

In reviewing the sites in the 63-year

Portland Township Reeve Gordon Ellerbeck, 1969 County Warden, who also competed with horses, has the honor of being pictured on Frontenac County's 1977 history of the International Plowing Match, York County holds the record for repeat locations, five times, beginning with the first match in 1913. Peterborough County stands next with three occasions 1931, 1941 and 1964. This record will be equalled by Frontenac County in 1977 when the big match will be hosted for the third time. Previous matches in Frontenac were in 1929 and 1947. Leeds County has been host twice 1925 and 1939 - Hastings County once in 1961.

International Plowing Match in Peterborough County. His win was with horse power for plowing.

A parallel of sorts exists between Frontenac and Huron Counties. When the match was last in Frontenac 30 years ago, it had been in Huron County the previous year, with this pattern reversed in the 1970's. Huron will follow Frontenac by being host in 1978.

This year in Bruce County marked the first time this north-western area of southern Ontario in the Lake Huron region, was the site of what has become the world's largest outdoors agricultural event.

Missionary to speak Oct. 20 in Madoc church

Rev. Richard E. Grindstaff, missionary of the Wesleyan Church from South Africa, will speak at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 20, at the Madoc Wesleyan and Free Methodist Church on Elgin Street.

Rev. Richard E. Grindstaff

A graduate of Frankfort Wesleyan Bible College, Mr. Grindstaff did pastoral work in West Virginia for 17 years before leaving for South Africa in 1967. In Johannesburg, he served the growing Craighill Park Wesleyan Church and taught in the Wesleyan Bible College at Brakpan. During their second term of service Rev. and Mrs. Grindstaff were involved in the Bible college as acting principal and teachers as well as in preaching and revival work.

Missionary Grindstaff will tell about the areas where he has laboured, the people, and the progress of the work being done there. Colored slides will be shown. Curious will be on display.

The Wesleyan Church serves in 34 countries, including Canada, Great Britain and the United States. While the major emphasis in the overseas outreach of the church is placed on gospel evangelism, an extensive medical and educational program has been carried on by the denomination in several areas of this world wide gospel enterprise. Bible College and training schools are given major emphasis in the effort to prepare nationals for the ministry and other leadership positions. The public is invited to attend.

Enrolment in school of Technology up 33 per cent

Enrolment in the School of Technology at Loyalist College in Belleville has increased over-all by 33 percent, as compared to last year's initial enrolment. The increase of 50 percent in first year enrolment indicates an upswing and renewed interest in technological areas of study. The number of Grade 13 students qualifying for direct entry into second year levels has also increased. Major increases are found in Electrical, Electronic, Architectural, and Water Resources program areas.

E.J. Buckley, director of the School of Technology, feels that there are several reasons for the increase in enrolment. He noted that there seems to be a general province-wide interest in technological programs as reflected by a comparable increase in enrolment across the province. This increase is perhaps attributed to the job opportunities generally available to the technical graduates, particularly if the graduate is prepared to relocate. For example, one of Loyalist's recent graduates has been offered a position in Edmonton. Graduates of technology programs have had little difficulty finding work, even in this tight employment period.

The college itself has streamlined three of its former two-year technician programs in the Mechanical, Electrical and Electronic Engineering areas into a concentrated 52 week program. Students enroll in September, thus graduating the following September. These programs were devised to accommodate Federal Government sponsored mature students but they appear to appeal to regular post-secondary students as well.

monitor the relevance of Loyalist programs.

Mr. Buckley pointed out that while financial restrictions will be with Loyalist for awhile, the School of Technology has staff and facilities to accept anyone qualified to pursue any of Loyalist's job-oriented programs.

No need felt

Council said they felt there was no need to pass a Maintenance and Occupancy Bylaw which would have set safety standards for village multi-storey buildings. This was decided at the regular monthly meeting of council Monday.

Council acted after receiving a letter from John Rhodes, the minister of housing for Ontario. The letter stated that the changes have taken place in the Ontario Building Code over the high rises.

The code outlines the protective devices which have to be in the building, but that these safety features could not be retroactive to existing buildings.

The letter said the municipal government could pass a Maintenance and Occupancy Bylaw to ensure the safety features would be included. Council regretted this suggestion.

Takes out seven guide rails

Just after midnight, Oct. 5, the Madoc detachment was called to investigate a one car accident at the intersection of Highways 37 and 7.

Driver of the vehicle was Patrick McLaughlin, 37, of Brantford, who was northbound on Highway 37 at the time of the accident, police said.

Police said, the vehicle went directly across the intersection entering the north ditch. The vehicle took out seven guide posts and three highway signs, police report.

The driver, alone at the time, was not injured, police said. Damage is estimated by police to the vehicle at $1,000 and to the signs at $200.

Constable Bill Reid of the Madoc detachment was the investigating officer.

A native of Arden and more recently residing in Toronto, Frances Amanda Wormworth, entered into rest at the Princess Margaret Hospital, Toronto, Friday, Oct. 1, in her 53rd year.

She was the daughter of the late Archibald Knight and his wife, the former and late Mabel Genereaux.

Mrs. Wormworth was born at Arden and received her education there. She was married to Louis Adrian Wormworth, who predeceased her.

She resided in Toronto for the past 20 years, and prior to that she had lived in Madoc.

Mrs. Wormworth had a lengthy illness. She is immediately survived by one daughter, Marilyn Wormworth of Toronto.

Also surviving are brothers and sister: Mrs. Fred (Muriel) Scott of Collins Bay; Dale Knight, Newburgh; and Keith Knight, of Arden. Predeceased are brothers and sisters, Evelyn Thompson, Ruth Johnston, Marguerite Hayes, Leita Shetlet, Fred and Hugh Knight.

Mrs. Wormworth rested at the McConnell Funeral Home, Tweed, until Oct. 4, when the funeral was conducted in the Chapel of the home at 2 p.m. with Rev. Nelson Peters, officiating. Interment was in Arden Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Don Brown, Gerald Thompson, Paul Burleigh, Hugh Baker, Jim Hinchey and Jim Knight.

everyone

Your local newspaper's prime function is to present the news . . . honestly and fully. That's all. However, sometimes the reporting goes astray, when the news is printed. Some of our friends think this is amusing. Some don't. We at your local newspaper don't laugh easily when a mistake is made in your local paper.

But in spite of our best efforts, it does happen occasionally. Even the editor had to smile when this caption appeared in his newspaper under the picture of a fallen tree:

damaged spouting and shingles . . .
it was snapped by a violent guest.*

In another newspaper, the coronation of a high school beauty queen took an unusual turn when the proofreaders overlooked this one:

Queen Margie White was escorted to her throne by co-captains Jim Black and Frank Gruff. There she was presented with roses and drowned.

Sometimes the classified ads are full of surprises, too. The young lady who ran this advertisement is still wishing that her friends would let her forget it:

Wanted: Large well-furnished room by young woman about fifteen feet square.

Then there was the time one of our nice Iowa ladies, trying to do her part to add to the Christmas spirit of her home city, found her efforts recorded thus:

Mrs. X set up a still life composition of angel figurines and greenery entitled, "Hark the Herald Angels Sin."

So, when you see one like this:

*The Rotary male quartet will sing,
"I need three every hour . . ."*

Or this:

I am now in position to hatch your eggs at five cents per egg . . .

please remember that local newspapers are regarded by readers as a friend they can't do without, and even a good friend is bound to make a mistake once in a while.

When you stop to consider that over a million inches of news are reported each week in hundreds of weekly newspapers throughout Canada, a mistake here and there doesn't sound too bad to some people. But a misspelled name of a local citizen in a news story is no laughing matter . . . if it's about you.

Department to patrol Halloween

The Village Volunteer Fire Department will be asked to patrol the streets on Halloween, council said Oct. 4 in their monthly meeting.

Council said that vandalism is usually the worst during this time and the patrol should cut this down.

Concern was raised that the task would create a strain on the budget but it was decided that the men should not be asked to work for nothing.

Councillor Jim Watson said that even though vandalism is quite high during that time, he was quiet surprised at the small amount done in former years.

Assistance requested from AIB

The Madoc Village council will be sending a letter to the Anti Inflation Board asking for their assistance in obtaining the formal motion of implementing a pay raise. This matter was discussed at the regular monthly meeting Oct. 4.

The raise desired would bring the representative's salaries up to line, council said. There has not been a pay raise for four years.

Council was told that a pay raise was scheduled for 1975 but that they did not act to make a bylaw in December to cover the salary.

Council discussed that the method of pay be also changed from an honorarium to a pay per meeting held.

In comparison to neighboring councils in Hastings County, the salary presently received, is considerably lower, council was told.

Future of trunk lines

A letter from J. D. Lee Engineering resulted in Madoc council discussing at their meeting, Monday, Oct. 4, the future trunk lines for the village.

The letter stated that the firm would not need a detailed drawings of the area, but a cost estimate at 1977 levels to do the required tests.

At present the cost would be about $9,600 which would carry until January, 1977, council was told.

If this is not done now, the project could be delayed until 1978 before it is completed, said councillor Tom Deline.

The water and sewer line would extend from Baldwin St. down Elgin St. to the Concession Road.

Mr. Deline also asked that a cost estimate be done to include the line between Elgin and St. Lawrence Streets up Wellington St.

The letter was sent to council as a result of the Sept. 13 meeting between the two parties.

'Most fantastic year' said Al Danford

For one local teacher, last year was termed the "most fantastic year of my life." This was the comment of Allan Danford, a resident of Madoc, and a teacher at Marmora Senior School.

Last year, Mr. Danford was an exchange teacher in Northern Ireland. There has been nothing in his life to compare with the experience, he said.

Mr. Danford left here Aug. 5, 1975, and returned Aug. 6 of this year.

In comparing the education system, Mr. Danford said that the basic elementary schedule was nearly the same as it is here. The only major change came when the students there reached 11 years old.

These students were examined and if they passed they were channelled into a Grammar School, but if they failed they were placed into a secondary education which is a form of vocational training, he said.

Mr. Danford said the passing rate was quite low. This is much too young to streamline the children, he said. "I did not like it," but there is discussion to abolish this system, he said, and replace it with a comprehensive style. This would be similar to the system here, he said.

Mr. Danford taught in Bangor which is about 12 miles east of Belfast. It is a centre with approximately 40,000 residents.

His class size was more than the number of children here. There were 41 students taking his class at once.

Mr. Danford said if he had the same size of class here, he would not have been able to teach them all. The children there have more respect for the teachers than here, this enabled him to conduct his classes. The atmosphere is generally "more relaxed", he said.

Another aspect of the education system there is that the parents are not allowed into the schools without a prior appointment with the principal, he said.

Mr. Danford said he believed in some control but this system "had gone too far" in not allowing the parents in the school.

In further comparison, Mr. Danford said the class rooms themselves were smaller than here and the amount of equipment was less.

While there Mr. Danford said he did not see any evidence of violence in Northern Ireland. The only thing he noticed were the British troops who were "very polite and friendly."

The trouble there, Mr. Danford stressed, is not caused over religion. "It is very much political...and the people are fed up with it," he said.

Salaries are quite a bit lower than ours, he said, but the standards of living is "just as high". In any case, Mr. Danford said he would live there "at a moment".

Teaching was not the only part of Mr. Danford's agenda, he said. There were trips to Britain for discussions about the education system within the Commonwealth.

During this trip, Mr. Danford represented Canada at a Royal Garden Party at the Commonwealth Institute. Here he met Princess Margaret. "She was the nicest person to speak to," he said. She is very down-to-earth and well informed. Even though Mr. Danford represented Canada, Princess Margaret was quite concerned with the situation in Northern Ireland and how the violence is affecting the children.

There were 55 Canadian teachers involved in this exchange going to Australia, New Zealand and rest of the Commonwealth.

After two years, Mr. Danford can again qualify for another exchange which he said he plans to participate in. He said he would like to return to Northern Ireland in this program if he is given the opportunity.

Rotary Clubs. This was the topic of his speech which included slides of Israel.

He explained their cultures and industries and how all their crops are irrigated. He also noted that Israel was the highest milk producing country in the world a year ago.

Mr. Burns was thanked by Mr. Danford and presented with a block of Hastings County cheese.

Other speakers were Hastings County Dairy Princess Lauries Sills; Gordon Parks, national director; and Gerry Nelson, area fieldman.

Mr. Nelson also presided over the presentations of awards and trophies.

Children's Aid Week Oct. 17-24

Jack M. Bush, president of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society which operates under the name of the Family and Children's Services requested Oct. 8, the community to recognize the week between Oct. 17 and 24 as Children's Aid Week.

"It is important to remind the community, at least on an annual basis", said Mr. Bush, "of the existence of the CAS as a resource for families in times of stress or problems. Helping families is our business. We are not here just to care for children in foster homes or place children in adoption, but rather to strengthen family life. I suppose you could say that every child admitted to care represents failure on somebody's part, ours included.

That is why we like to encourage parents to get in touch. If we can't resolve the problem there is a good chance we know someone who can help. All we ask is the opportunity."

Big come-back after half-time

By JIM AIRHART

Trailing 23-0 at halftime, the Centre Hastings Secondary School Senior Football team called for 32 points to defeat a disappointed Bayside team by a score of 32-23.

"Our defence stunk in the first half, and our offence was flat" was the comment Barry Pyear made after the game. An example of this was in the first half on the last play Madoc fumbled the ball in their end zone, allowing Bayside to score a touchdown.

Instead of being down the team came out rolling. Randy Trumble passed to Joe Brooks on the halfback option to get the team going.

Kelly Welch scored the next touchdown on a beautiful run up the middle. Cliff Reid scored the next Centre Hastings touchdown, shaking off a few tackles with Reid getting the two point conversion.

The next Madoc major came on a bad Bayside pass by Steve Lawrence. Joe

Winter schedule planned by local branch of Legion

The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 363 are planning their winter schedule of events.

At their last general meeting, it was decided to issue new cards for the door lock system. The old cards will be exchanged for new ones once payment for the 1977 cards are made.

It was also decided that Robert Moffard be accepted for regular membership and Mark Workman, Robert Livingston, William Nickle and Betty Cully as associate members.

Don Ash, treasurer, sent a letter of resignation which was accepted by the president. Earl Morgan has been appointed to vacancy.

Poppies and wreaths have been ordered for Remembrance Day. The local membership was asked by the executive to give their support as the proceeds are used to assist veterans and their dependents. The prime reason for the existence of the Legion is to assist war veterans, their widows and dependents.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the local Legion Branch 363 will be presenting a bursary at the Centre Hastings secondary School Commencement exercises on Oct. 23. It will be given to the son or daughter of a veteran, one graduating and continuing their education.

President Edna Adams and Secretary Madue Deline Attended the 37th convention of the Ladies Auxiliary held in Windsor Sept. 18-24.

It was attended by 1,500 delegates representing 399 branches.

The next general meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 26.

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd. Elmira, Ont. N3B 2C7

Why, you might ask, does this lunkhead Trotter keep pecking away at the plight of farmers?

If farmers are so badly off, why do they stay on the farm and why aren't more farmers going bankrupt?

Good questions but the answer is easy.

Why are beef farmers able to remain in business when they are losing between $60 and $200 a head when they market their cattle? How can dairy farmers remain in business when they are forced to cut back production as much as 20 per cent and take a corresponding loss in income? And what is happening to all those pork producers now that the price of pork is beginning to drop this fall?

Again, the answer is simple.

They are not going bankrupt because thousands of farmers in your county and mine are working part time at some other job to augment their incomes. They cannot make a decent living as full-time farmers. It's as simple as that.

How can these things be proven? The facts come from a 52-page report released by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. The statistics are staggering.

In other words, the most important industry in this or any other province — that of producing food — has to be done on a part-time basis. This, to me, is a terrible indictment of the system as it stands. Farmers, most of them anyway, have to earn more money off the farm to remain in business.

Is it any wonder that the average age of the Canadian farmer is 52? Why would any young man in his right mind want to get into farming when the figures are available to prove that the greater majority of farmers in Ontario, at least, must have a second job to make ends meet?

In the Waterloo Region, for instance, which is supposed to be one of the finest agricultural counties in the province, only 36.4 per cent of the income of farmers came from the land. The rest—a startling 63.6 per cent—came from off-farm wages, salaries and other sources.

Other revealing figures in the ministry's report: The average net income for farmers in 1973 was $3,519. Off-farm income averaged $6,137.

And don't give me that old fable about farmers being able to take advantage of all kinds of tax dodges. That just isn't true. A recent report of the now-defunct Food Prices Review Board claimed that farmers pay almost as much taxes as everyone else and even more than most small businesses.

In Peel County, another good agricultural area, only 8.4 per cent of farmers' income came from farming. Pity the poor chaps in Haliburton County, though, where income tax figures revealed that they had an average net income of MINUS $239 in 1973. Thank heaven the good Lord made Haliburton County a summer paradise so that many can make additional income in the tourist business.

To bring this discussion to its logical conclusion, farmers are actually subsidizing consumers. Farmers are forced to drive school buses, be building custodians, part-time auto mechanics or machinery repairmen. Farm wives have to teach school, become secretaries or sales clerks just to make ends meet on the farm.

And yes, I know, a great many other men and women have to hold down two jobs these days to afford what they consider are the amenities of life. But how many of them are in a business that is so essential to the welfare of the nation as that of raising food?

Consumers can scream as loud and long as they like about the high cost of food in Canada but the facts prove that we have been spoiled in this country for the last 30 years, perhaps even the last 100 years, into believing that we deserve low food prices.

Canadians pay less than 20 cents of every disposable dollar on food, one of the lowest rates in the world and farmers are suffering because of it.

New Nutrient Requirements for Beef Cattle Announced

By DENNIS McKNIGHT, KCAT

A recent revision of the nutrient requirements for beef cattle has lowered the protein requirements for finishing cattle. Previous recommendations called for 11.1 per cent crude protein in total ration dry matter for finishing yearling and two-year old steers and heifers of various live weights. Newer recommendations vary between steers and heifers. Requirements for finishing steers vary from approximately 11.0 per cent for cattle weighing 750 pounds gaining 3.0 pounds per day down to 9.5 per cent for cattle weighing 1100 pounds gaining 3.0 pounds per day. This represents roughly a 1.5 per cent decrease in protein requirements for finishing steers at heavier weights. Heifer requirements have been reduced even more.

These recommendations may still be higher than required. In a recent feeding trial, at Kemptville College, 60 Holstein steers were fed a corn-corn silage ration from about 700 pounds live weight. The cattle all received equal mineral and vitamin supplement but supplemental protein, in the form of soybean meal, was removed at various live weight intervals.

For the first 56 days, steers not receiving supplemental protein after 800 pounds live weight gained .57 pounds per day slower than those on 11.1 per cent crude protein up to slaughter. This difference after 110 days was still .31 pounds per day slower. Steers that received supplemental protein up to 900 pounds, but none thereafter, gained as well as steers receiving supplemental protein to slaughter.

One thing to consider before withdrawing protein supplement is the protein level in the basic ration. The ration must contain at least nine per cent crude protein on a dry matter basis. Corn silage based rations in the Kemptville trial contained 9.1 per cent crude protein but this is probably the upper limit to be expected from this type of diet. Most corn silage will be lower in protein content so supplemental protein will still be necessary to bring the ration up to the required nine per cent. Producers definitely need to have their silage and grain corn analyzed through a feed testing laboratory to ensure that it contains adequate protein levels.

It should be stressed that if protein supplements are reduced or withdrawn after cattle reach 900 pounds, the mineral and vitamins normally provided by such supplements must be continued.

Cooking with Betty Thain

"Keep those casserole recipes coming" was a request I received recently at a bridal shower.

I highly recommend the casserole that I'm giving you today because it's delicious and so easy to prepare. The aroma, while it is cooking in the oven is delightful. I timed myself when I prepared it last and it took only 15 minutes to assemble. This mixture looks attractive served in a rice ring or on a large platter on a bed of noodles and garnished with fresh parsley.

Leslie Campbell's Steak Casserole
1 pound of round steak cut into bite size pieces
1 package of dry onion soup
1 can of mushroom soup
8 oz. of dry red wine
1 can of mushrooms (drained)
Saute steak in frying pan and season lightly. Transfer to casserole dish and add: onion soup, mushroom soup, wine and mushrooms. Bake at 325 degrees F. for 2 1/2 hours.

Prescription drugs work best if you follow rules

by David Woods

"Take two ASA and call me in the morning."

That, supposedly, was the doctor's frequent advice to patients. And it was easy enough to follow.

Now, with an ever-growing armory of prescription drugs available for the battle against disease, instructions about how to take them may be a bit more complicated.

And, with the increasing potency and sophistication of pharmaceutical products, it's much more important that rules for their use be carefully followed.

For instance, if the label on the bottle says "take three times a day after meals" that's not merely some whimsical way of establishing frequency. Generally, after-meals preparations are the ones that can irritate an empty stomach. The before-meals drugs — penicillin is a good example — may become inactive if taken afterwards.

Just as important as the when of prescription drug use is the how long. You may feel that the problem has cleared up after the first few doses, but if the label says to take all of the medication over a prescribed period — then that's what you should do.

The reason for this is that you might feel better, but the infection may not have cleared up completely. Stopping the drug early may result in a new flare-up, and possibly start a whole cycle of incomplete treatment in which, eventually, resistance to the drug can be built up.

Many of today's pharmaceutical products are powerful chemicals and Dr. Alan Dyer, head of the Ontario Ministry of Health's Drugs and Therapeutics Branch, says they should be treated with respect.

For example, he says, they should be used only for the duration of a course of treatment. Drugs left in the bathroom cabinet shouldn't be used months later — even for the same complaint. For one thing, the new problem may feel the same as the old one, but it may be different and require another form of treatment. Another reason is that both the drug and its container may be altered by prolonged exposure to heat, light or moisture. And, says Dr. Dyer, most prescription drug containers are designed for only short-term use of the drug.

Prescription drugs are a valuable weapon against disease, but, like other weapons, they should be used with caution. Read the instructions carefully — don't be shy about asking your doctor to explain anything you may not fully understand.

A pamphlet called Understanding Your Prescription is available free of charge from the Health Resource Centre, Communications Branch, Ontario Ministry of Health, Hepburn Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1S2.

Concord grape desserts

If you have ever cooked with Concord grapes, a well-known Ontario blue grape variety, you know their characteristic beautiful flavor and color.

Food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, are excited about the new recipes they have recently tested using these grapes. They have developed pies, cobbles, parfaits and even yogurt-based blue grape desserts.

Here is one of those recipes which can be a special dessert for family or friends. But it might also become a weekly favorite, since the sauce can be prepared, frozen and used later.

Blue Grapes Jubilee

5 cups Ontario blue grapes, washed and stemmed
1/2 cup sugar
2 tbsp. cornstarch
1/8 tsp. salt
2 tsp. lemon juice
3 to 4 tbsp. warmed rum or brandy (optional)

Slip skins from grapes, place pulp in saucepan. Reserve skins. Bring pulp to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Press through a sieve or food mill to remove seeds. Combine pulp with skins. Add remaining ingredients. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly until sauce is thick and clear. Flame with brandy if desired. Ladle sauce over vanilla ice cream, warmed peach or pear halves or use as a sauce for crepes.

Hard Water Problems?

Do you use expensive detergents, have iron stains in your toilet, tub, basins, have tap leaks, grey wash? Eliminate all these for 35c per day.

Ontario PC Youth Study the Education Policy

Ontario may have one of the best elementary and secondary school programmes in Canada but that does not mean that our system is perfect. And, as usual, the Government is more than prepared to listen to people who have advice to offer, if it is well-founded and sincere.

One such group of people is the Ontario Progressive Conservative Youth Association. Near the beginning of September they held their Annual Meeting, giving them an opportunity for policy discussions. Great emphasis was placed on secondary education - its quality, its purpose and its effectiveness - and the young people who were in attendance showed, in my opinion, a lot of common sense.

For instance, one resolution passed called for a core curriculum for students. This would consist of English, mathematics, physical education, a second language and Canadian studies and current events, providing each student with a strong foundation. Back to basics seems to be their cry - and the cry of many other people in Ontario and across the country.

Just last week, several Toronto newspapers had articles about the inability of university graduates, let alone high school graduates, to express themselves properly in writing. Headlines in one paper read: "Most Queen's freshmen judged poor writers" - 71 per cent of them, in fact!

Other groups across Canada have complained of the general lack of understanding of essential arithmetic and French conversation - even after these subjects have been studied. It seems obvious - even to the students themselves - that more emphasis must be placed on the basic subjects.

The Ontario PC Youth have members who have been recently immersed in our secondary school system and members who have spent time researching it. Literature issued by the ministry of education, including selected curricular guidelines, was studied in an attempt to clarify present policy and to see how it is implemented. Briefs, miscellaneous submissions and newspaper columns were considered. As well, a questionnaire was sent to all their members and then the results compiled in a very well-written paper.

The young people at the Convention called for more public resources for education of the handicapped, special classes for exceptional students similar to those for slow students, more guidance for students in the selection of courses and the cause for standardized testing, conducted by the ministry of education, at regular intervals in a student's schooling.

The paper put together by the PC Youth is just one example of how individuals can contribute to the political process - how their voices can be heard - how the challenge of providing a good educational system is being met by the government.

Incidentally, with almost 500 young people in attendance, the Ontario PC Youth Association was responsible for the largest political conference ever held in Canada! It is a clear indication of strong commitment to traditional values within

Metric Complaints Very Low

Marketing guidelines for metric conversion in the Canadian Food Industry have just been released by an industry group which worked under the aegis of the Metric Commission's Steering Committee No. 6 (Food Sector) and which consulted with retailers and consumers. Manufacturers and retailers are anxious to ensure that there is public understanding of price changes in connection with metric packaging.

Metric Commission Canada wishes to commend the Canadian Food Industry for the initiative shown in developing these guidelines which should do much to obviate consumer problems with metric conversion.

Despite the efforts of the Canadian Food Industry to make the transition to metric as smooth as possible, there may be occasions when consumers will wish to register complaints about price increases when consumer goods are converted to metric sizes. Simplified procedures for doing so are recommended by the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, the Anti-Inflation Board and Metric Commission Canada.

While the metric conversion program is going forward smoothly, occasional complaints are received that either a metric package is being sold for the same price as a previously larger package in traditional measure, or that the price of a metric package has not been reduced proportionately with its size. In some cases, this results from the fact that retail store staff have not noticed the differences in package sizes. Normally the problem is rectified when brought to the attention of the store manager. In other cases, the manufacturer may have found it impossible to make a price reduction in direct proportion to a package size reduction, because his other costs were increasing, or because there is no saving in packaging or labour costs in the production of the smaller size.

Officials emphasize that this is not a major problem in Canada. The volume of complaints now being received is very low.

The Federal Government has only limited resources to undertake the surveillance of the prices of goods in retail outlets. It is therefore imperative that consumers assist the government by being on the alert to problems should they arise during the metric conversion process.

If the simple procedures are followed, most complaints can be dealt with locally. If there are exceptional cases, they will be taken up by the headquarters of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, or Metric Commission Canada, as the case may be.

For the consumer who runs into a problem with the pricing of a new metric package, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs and Metric Commission Canada, with the concurrence of the Anti-Inflation Board, suggest the following procedures:

1. The consumer should first discuss the matter with the store manager.
2. If the consumer is not satisfied with the response received from the store manager, he or she should refer the complaint to the nearest office of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, or Consumer Help Office. Such offices can be located in the telephone book in most larger Canadian cities.
3. If the consumer complaint office cannot resolve the issue, that office will refer the complaint to the headquarters of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.
4. The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs will keep in close touch with Metric Commission Canada regarding complaints, so that the Department or the Commission can work with industry to take steps to correct any pricing problem needing adjustment.
5. The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs will also be in close liaison with the Anti-Inflation Board regarding complaints of this nature. The Board may use this information in monitoring the pricing policies of companies subject to mandatory enforcement of the AIB guidelines.

OTTAWA and SMALL BUSINESS

Let's educate the teachers

By KENNETH McDONALD

Canada is the Western world's biggest spender on education. Sweden is next, the United States 9th, West Germany 20th (all expressed in percentages of Gross National Product).

Publicity given to the "functional illiteracy", in spelling, reading and writing English, of high school graduates entering Canadian universities has led to some soul-searching in high schools. But what of the business illiteracy of teachers?

A lot of good work is done in our schools. Young Canadians are well equipped mentally and physically to learn what they are being taught. But they are not being taught how to earn a living.

Don't blame the teachers. Most of them have gone from school to teachers' school to teaching school. They are the products as well as the producers of a closed circuit. Blame the educational bureaucrats and administrators in universities and provincial ministries. But look in the mirror, too.

Samantha READS YOUR STARS

If you were born this week: You are impulsive and sometimes tend to over-react, especially where emotions are concerned. You like to talk, but can keep your own counsel when it's really necessary. You need to retreat from activities once in a while in order to restoke your fires.

ARIES (3/21-4/19): Make no bets this week. Aries, not even on so-called sure things. Expect upsets, long shots, and dark horses. Trying to figure the handicap on these hoofs with hoofs will only get you dizzy.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Restlessness and dissatisfaction may lead you to look for greener pastures and fresh, new faces. Complete several obligations, then do just that. Fact is, Taurus, you won't have to look hard; there's some luscious clover just around the corner - and it's heading your way!

GEMINI (5/21-6/20) Romantic waters change course. Emotional intensity becomes a bit lighter, more fun. You breathe a sigh of relief, but watch out for a tricky little whirlpool next week! Days end on key of C, Gem, for charming character.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Week gets off to iffy start. You may be darned if you do, and darned if you don't. C'est la vie, Moonbaby! Later, make the love scene; that's where it's happenin' with a real scorcher of a plot!

LEO (7/23-8/22): Communications about money begin week on a practical note. Then, remember the story of Daniel in the lions' den? Even though you're a lion, Leo, you may identify more with Daniel as you meet roaring obstacles. Also remember that Daniel received help - you will, too, dear heart!

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Unexpected bonuses come your way this week, Virgo. Then, look for a top priority message; be ready to act on it immediately! Later, things to buy, and a new, exciting romantic interest!

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): Your natural optimism reaches almost euphoric heights. Please try to keep a toehold on reality, though, 'cause Lady Luck has tricks up her sleeve and you WILL need your wits about you. Smooth sailing, Libra!

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): You've been a shoulder or an ear lately for several people with problems - that begins to ease up this week. A fascinating challenge materializes; turn on a Niagara of charm, but play hard to get. That challenge will become the fascinated one! Later, a sunny close!

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): A smashing new outfit is in order. Sag, for a fun-type RSVP occasion. Later, your mind is expanded as old patterns dissolve and new ones form. Week ends in a surge of self-confidence and a swing to romance!

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): Because you're an earth sign, Cappy, you love security and stability and fall happily into ruts. You tend to look upon changes as necessary evils. Do you think you could possibly bring yourself to see them as opportunities? Hope so, 'cause they're coming and great!

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): Common sense and intellect are two different things, Aquarius. You sometimes try to deal with situations using abstract logic, but 'tis a fact that most people are rarely logical. Common sense wins the day.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): Up and at 'em, Pisces! That little matter won't be solved by ignoring it. 'Pears to Sam that you're underestimating - others and yourself! Later, passion makes wild bedfellows!

Pay TV could be the next thing

OTTAWA -- Pay television should not be permitted to expand in Canada unless and until it can be developed in harmony with the reality of Canadian broadcasting and the objective Parliament has established for the Canadian broadcasting system.

That is the thrust of a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation brief on Pay TV submitted to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission. The brief was released publicly today.

Calling for adequate public hearing and discussion of the complicated Pay TV issue, the CBC says that from its point of view it seems unlikely that the introduction of Pay TV at this time would contribute positively to the achievement of the national purpose in broadcasting.

Throughout its brief, the Corporation assesses the advantages and disadvantages of Pay TV against Parliament's broadcasting objectives as they appear in the Broadcasting Act. The brief concludes that the unrestrained development of Pay TV could damage prospects for achieving those objectives - objectives which call for a broadcasting environment which is essentially Canadian in content and character, freely available to all Canadians in both official languages, dedicated to the development of Canadian unity and identity, and providing a varied and balanced range of programming. Were it to be introduced into Canada, Pay TV programming is judged likely to be largely 'box office' attractions such as feature films, sports events and entertainment specials, with most of the programming American. And, in contrast to 'free' TV, Pay TV would likely be available only to Canadians in larger centres and to those who could afford the additional fee.

In all, the brief concludes that Pay TV would place additional pressure on the Canadian broadcasting system which already faces heavy odds in producing Canadian program with far more limited resources than are available in the United States.

Furthermore, the brief argues, Pay TV could have the effect of siphoning off programming such as sports events which are now available to all Canadians, simply by outbidding existing Canadian networks.

In comparing the pay-per-channel with the pay-per-program approach, it concludes that the per-channel approach would likely be more damaging, essentially since it seems likely to capture more viewers from regular broadcasters.

The CBC is not satisfied that a Pay TV network could be substantially Canadianized through, for example, the exclusive use of Pay TV profits for the production of Canadian feature films. In Canada, any Pay TV service would have to be substantially based on American feature films. This would be basic to its financial survival. At best, Canadian films would be unlikely to occupy more than a minority position in a full Pay TV schedule. Any additional Canadian programming required would have to be siphoned from regular TV broadcasters -- something that, in the public interest, would presumably not be allowed. It seems inevitable that Pay TV programming would be predominantly American.

Although the CBC is opposed to the introduction of Pay TV at this time, it goes on in its brief to a consideration of what might constitute an orderly introduction of Canadian Pay TV if this course seemed desirable following public examination of all the issues involved. The brief concludes that were Pay TV to go ahead, the profits should be directed into development and production of Canadian films and TV programs.

Because of the relatively large amount of time that Canadians spend each day watching television, and the relatively great amount of programming produced by television broadcasters, the CBC brief suggests that the bulk of Pay TV profits should be allocated to Canadian broadcasters. The broadcasters would share the funds on the basis of a formula which would provide an incentive to develop Canadian programming and, in turn, reward those who did so successfully.

A significant share of Pay TV profits should also be made available to Canadian feature film makers, through the Canadian Film Development Corporation, to assist them in the production of film for sale to pay TV and for theatrical distribution.

The CBC further suggests that, to stimulate the private production sector, as much of the profits as possible should be spent on the development of programs for television by private concerns.

To operate a Pay TV agency, the brief suggests that a statutory corporation, rather than a private one, might be the best method for achieving maximum benefits.

It could combine public and private broadcasters and representatives of the cable companies and the film sector. It could include people drawn from the public and private sectors of Canadian life; all might be represented on the board of such a corporation.

Whatever course might be considered for the introduction of Pay TV into Canada, the CBC's brief insists that it should be designed to be in harmony with rather than conflict with, the objectives that Canada has set over the past 40 years for its broadcasting system.

According to archaeological research the Canadian Inuit (Eskimo) ranged further south than they do today. Early in the seventeenth century they were reported as far south as the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and they occupied the entire coast of Labrador.

TROTTER EQUIPMENT LIMITED

ANNOUNCES AN OPEN HOUSE

October 15 & 16, 1976

At Its Peterborough Location plan to attend

Keep the above dates open and come view our new facilities. See the latest additions to our fine line of John Deere Construction and Forestry products. We will be having demonstrations throughout the day along with product information presentations. Climb aboard and try them for yourself.

A number of factory personnel from John Deere will be in attendance to discuss the latest innovations and give tips on machine operation and maintenance. In addition all our sales staff and service personnel will be available to answer any questions you may have.

Make sure you bring your operators and employees along. Plan to stay for lunch or dinner - we will be serving barbecued beef and baked beans along with your favorite refreshment. To top it off you may just win the color TV we are giving away on the final day. Not only will you get a close up look at the equipment but you will be able to meet and talk with your fellow contractors. All in all we plan a full day so make sure you don't miss it.

We are located 1 1/2 miles east of Peterborough on Number 7 Highway.

Unicef ready for Halloween Campaign

A new poster design has been created for Unicef, the United Nations Children's Fund, by a well-known Canadian graphic artist and will be used to help launch the 1976 Halloween campaign.

Sam Murata, born in Japan, has donated the poster artwork to the Children's Fund. Across a broad expanse of "Unicef blue" sky a child is being pulled aloft by colored doves; the simplicity of the design and the impact of the pure, clean colour give an impression of peace and happiness. Children relate to it immediately and it promises to be one of the most popular posters ever created for the Halloween program.

Mr. Murata is well known for his television and film graphic work on shows such as "W5", "The Human Journey" and "Canada A.M.". He is currently designing the graphics for the feature film "Why Shoot the Teacher?" and also illustrating children's books for a New York publishing house.

"My first love is children's illustrations," says Mr. Murata, and his donation of the new poster design to Unicef is evidence of his compassion for the millions of youngsters all over the world for whom Unicef means the difference between hope and despair.

Nutrition Week Aims at Modern Health Problems

"Nutrition every week" is the theme of Nutrition Week, October 18-23, sponsored by the Ontario Dietetic Association to focus attention on the fact that adequate nutrition is vital to good health.

"One way to counteract spiralling health care costs is to prevent illness caused by poor eating habits," said Mary McLean, President, Ontario Dietetic Association. "Awareness of nutrition has been increasing in the 70's but a massive community effort is still needed to help people understand that good nutrition every week is the key to better health."

Dietitians and nutritionists are daily confronted with the health problems of the poorly nourished. Some of the contributing factors to this situation are the rapid changes in our lifestyles; escalating food costs; and sporadic eating habits coupled with reduced physical activity.

What should we eat each day to be well nourished? Nutritionists recommend that we aim for 5-point meals with a food from each of the five food groups in Canada's Food Guide: milk and milk products; fruit; vegetables; breads and cereals; meat or fish or protein alternates such as dried beans or peanut butter.

Additional information on nutrition is available from The Ontario Dietetic Association, 234 Eglinton Avenue east, Suite 402, Toronto, or by getting in touch with dietitians or nutritionists working in your community.

A New Trend in Journalism Studies

A new and unique school of journalism came into being in Ontario this week. It's not called a school of journalism though, or even a school of communications. It's simply the "co-operative honors English" program at the University of Waterloo. The UW senate approved it at its Sept. 20 meeting.

The word "co-operative" means the students will be alternating every four months between their studies on campus and work terms in government information departments, publishing houses, newspaper offices, advertising agencies, information or public relations groups in large companies, and so forth...wherever there is a need for staff with the ability to "communicate succinctly, accurately and clearly."

The idea is to combine the education available through a regular honours English degree program with the kind of experience that will prepare the students for careers in the communications area.

"In addition to the regular English programs we strongly urge them to take additional courses in practical writing, and in Canadian history, psychology, economics and other subjects that could provide useful background," says Dr. Ken Ledbetter, Associate Dean of Arts (Special Programs).

Dr. Ledbetter said a survey of potential work term employers of these students indicated a considerable interest in the program. He said during this initial year of the program 15 students are being admitted; they will go out on their first work terms in January, returning in May to spend the summer on campus. He estimates from 25 to 30 students will be entering the program each year, in the near future.

UW students will be admitted into the co-op stream in their second year. While these students will graduate a year later than students in the regular program...that is after five years instead of after four...they will have accumulated a total of 20 months of practical and relevant work experience by the time they are finished, experience for which they will have received payment. They will also have been involved in the kinds of employment they wish to pursue after graduation.

Dr. Ledbetter says students will be selected for the program on the basis of their academic records, instructors' recommendations and an interview. The abilities they will bring to their work term jobs will include: the ability to write and speak accurately, clearly, concisely and logically; the ability to analyze and evaluate the work of others; the ability to edit and revise, and the ability to conduct library research.

The new program is seen by many on campus as of great significance in terms of future educational trends; until now there has been little attempt to tie in the study of the humanities with career opportunities.

"This is a very significant new venture," comments Dr. T.A. Brzustowski, Vice-President Academic and Acting President of UW.

"I have often referred to Waterloo as the most innovative university in Canada and this is further evidence in support of that statement," says C.A. Pollock, chancellor. "It marks the extension of Waterloo's original plan for co-operative education into the important and growing field of communications."

Waterloo pioneered the co-operative or "work-study" concept in Canada. More than 5,000 UW undergraduate students are currently on the co-op system which sees them alternating between classrooms and relevant types of work in business, industry, government and public agencies, usually every four months.

Triumphs of Science

FIBER REPLACES CALORIES IN NEW BREAD

"Every time I'd go on a diet, the first thing I'd cut out was bread," stated a 35-year-old, slightly overweight homemaker in Illinois. Her comment has been echoed millions of times across the United States by would-be dieters who have come to assume that bread and other products containing flour were making it difficult for them to lose weight.

Recent research has shown this concept is false. In fact, studies over the past two years at Michigan State University indicate that incorporating more bread in the diet can be an excellent way of maintaining or losing weight.

Moreover, according to nutrition professor Dr. Olaf Mickelsen, the Michigan State studies have demonstrated that a new product on the market—high fiber bread—provides an even more effective way of losing weight when six or more slices are consumed each day along with a moderate calorie intake from other food sources.

What is High Fiber Bread?

According to ITT Continental Company, which has just introduced a high fiber bread called Fresh Horizons throughout the country, the product resembles traditional bread in every respect, including taste, texture and nutrition. However, some of the flour and shortening have been displaced with plant fiber. The result is a product with 30% fewer calories per slice.

Plant fiber is not digested by the human body. As such, it supplies no calories. At the same time, the fiber, frequently referred to as "bulk" or "roughage" because it moves through the stomach and intestinal tract without being changed, provides a feeling of satiety or "fullness" without contributing calories to the diet.

The makers of Fresh Horizons say that their bread contains 400 per cent more fiber than whole wheat bread—as much fiber per slice as a bowl (one ounce serving) of 100% bran cereal. Whole grains, along with fresh fruits and vegetables, are principal sources of roughage in the American diet.

Recently introduced reduced calorie/high fiber bread—available in both white and wheat varieties—offers the taste, texture and nutrition of regular bread with 30 per cent fewer calories than white and 400 per cent more fiber than whole wheat.

Since 1910, the amount of fiber in the average American diet has gradually declined from more than six grams per day to less than two grams, according to Corinne H. Robinson in Normal and Therapeutic Nutrition.

19.4 Pounds Lost in Eight Weeks

In the Michigan State study, 16 overweight college men were given 12 slices of bread per day—eight received Fresh Horizons, eight an equal amount of regular white bread. All men ate basically the same meals as other students in the health center cafeteria, but cut down on rich desserts, limited the amount of butter used, and abstained from alcohol.

Over an eight-week period, both groups lost weight. The men eating reduced-calorie, high fiber bread lost an average of 19.4 pounds, while those on regular white bread lost an average of 13.7 pounds.

The official report on the MSU study concludes: "The inclusion of large amounts of low-calorie bread in a weight-reducing diet produced a feeling of satiety before the individual consumed his usual calorie intake. Not only does the bread assist the individual in reducing his food intake, but it does so without

Other Benefits Cited

In testing for product safety, other possible benefits of fiber—long overlooked by nutritionists because it is dietetically neutral in the body—were revealed. Fiber foods, for instance, may reduce the amount of fats absorbed in the intestines. Clinical studies also indicate added fiber in the diet may reduce serum cholesterol by binding bile acids, thus preventing their reabsorption into the body.

It has also been noted that in years of observation of certain African tribes with high fiber diets consisting of whole grains and raw plant foods, cancer of the colon and other gastrointestinal diseases prevalent in westernized societies are almost non-existent. Many years of additional research will be required, of course, to determine the validity of these theories.

Moderate Calorie Diet Required

In addition to the possible medical benefits, tests at Michigan State indicated that the more high fiber bread a person eats, coupled with a moderate calorie diet, the more weight he is likely to lose. As the study notes, any weight reducing diet should be undertaken only under the supervision and with the advice of a physician.

Over Population Now Threatens Beaver Colonies

Thirty or forty years ago, a freshly peeled stick floating on a pond was big news in rural Ontario. It meant rarely seen beaver were present and whole communities would turn out to see a beaver dam or "house" and hopefully get a view of its occupants.

But trouble was brewing in "Beaver Valley". Beaver are quickly going the way of the once plentiful buffalo and seemed doomed to extinction over much of North America.

Now in the 1970's, it's the other way around. The beaver - a novelty of the 1930's and 40's - has become somewhat of a nuisance.

Nearly every Monday morning throughout the summer the Ministry of Natural Resources gets calls from irate cottage owners complaining about beaver "chopping" down their one and only shade tree or about beaver moving into the boat house.

Milan Novak, supervisor of the Ministry's fur section, says that beaver cause a lot of ill feeling between neighbours.

"Just the other day, a man phoned my office to say beaver on his neighbour's property had flooded the road going to his home. The man who owned the property where the beaver were living wanted them there."

"Then another man phoned to say someone upstream had opened up a beaver dam and caused a minor flood. On top of this the stagnant water and silt from the pond polluted his little lake. There doesn't seem to be any end to the problems caused by beaver."

Owners of treed lakeshore property and road maintenance crews find them a persistent and, at times, a costly nuisance. Hunters, who find still more acres of deer habitat under water and more miles of trails flooded each autumn, tend to view the situation as a plague of vermin. In places there are just too many beaver.

Mr. Novak says he knows of no repellent which can be sprayed or hung on trees to effectively discourage this persistent animal. He believes chicken wire, wrapped loosely around the trunk, is still the best way to prevent damage and to protect valuable shade trees.

In the 1930's large areas of Ontario were devoid of beaver. This has been proven through examination of aerial photographs. By 1946-48, however, there was a density of about 1.0 colony per 10 square miles, around 1.5 colonies per square mile by 1960, and by 1968-70 about 2.5 to 3.5 colonies per square mile over much of the province.

Trapping season restrictions, stricter quotas, the practice of sealing pelts, the reorganization of trappers on traplines and dedicated enforcement work contributed substantially to their increase.

Similarly, the same trend has occurred across most of North America, although the beaver are rarely as abundant elsewhere as in Ontario. In the 10-year period from 1940 to 1950 many Ontario beaver were live-trapped and shipped to other provinces and states. Their descendants can be found in far-off places like Britain, Europe, Scandinavia, Russia and Patagonia, Argentina.

Although this change for the better was greatly welcomed by the game manager and the trapper, the beaver has become a real nuisance to some people, particularly the cottage owner or farmer who doesn't care much about trapping.

However, in spite of inconveniences, the beaver still remains a valuable wildlife resource. In Ontario, 12,500 trappers harvest between 150,000 and 170,000 beaver annually.

The value of beaver pelts is about 50 per cent of all the furbearer harvest which has averaged between $8 to $10 million in recent years. In addition, the meat is valuable as food. This is particularly true in Northern Ontario where beaver meat is worth as much or more than the pelt to the trapper and his family.

Crown land is trapped on a quota basis. The Ministry grants a trapper a licence to trap a specified number of beaver (his quota) from a certain piece of Crown land. In the past, these quotas had to be determined largely from information given by the trappers themselves.

Quotas were based for the most part on how many beaver a particular trapline had yielded in past years weighed against the trapper's own estimate of how many pelts he felt he could take without depleting the basic population. In general, this system worked well enough; most trappers are aware they can damage an important source of income by over-trapping.

Wildlife management officers, however, suspected that in recent years many areas were being under-trapped since the beaver had expanded into areas where normally the trapper would never go.

In some ways this is just as serious as over-trapping. Where beaver populations are under-trapped, over-population can result. Food supplies dwindle, fur quality suffers and, occasionally, disease and starvation can wipe out entire colonies.

To prevent under-trapping it is necessary to know how many beaver a trapline produces each year and how many of these can be taken while still maintaining an optimum population level.

Today pre-season fall aerial surveys now give the trapper and the Ministry staff accurate information on how many colonies there are and where.

By building dams, flooding areas and cutting trees, the beaver makes the environment more diversified and richer and so it is not unexpected that we find ducks using beaver ponds, along with other furbearers like muskrats, mink and otter. Deer and moose also benefit by its presence as these animals like the abundant food found in and around the ponds.

Anyone experiencing problems with a beaver can legally remove it at anytime of year. The dam or beaver house can also be removed to discourage the animals from living in the area - otherwise a trapping licence is required.

People with beaver problems should contact their local Ministry of Natural Resources office before proceeding with beaver removal programs. Although Ministry staff do not remove nuisance animals, they will provide advice and perhaps notify a trapper who specializes in controlling unwanted beaver.

Bill Smiley Football and sanity

By BILL SMILEY

NOW that the hockey hysteria is over, we armchair athletes can settle into the football season, and lend our expertise, so lately freely offered to Scotty Bowman and the Canadian team, to those who really need it, like the hapless Russ Jackson and the hopeless Toronto Argos.

I must confess that I'm not as keen on football as I once was. When I was a young buck, I was crazy about it. I knew all the players in the big league, all the standings, all the records.

When I was a kid, we lived not too far from Ottawa, and I saw some of the greats in action — Dave Sprague, Bummer Stirling, Tony Golab.

When I was about 14, my big brother took me to a Grey Cup final, a classic between Winnipeg and Ottawa, with the great little Fritz Hanson, one of the first American imports, scampering around on the field like a waterbug on a pond until he was finally crushed by some huge homebrew, a behemoth like Bunny Wadsworth of the Rough Riders.

Those were the days when people went to watch football games because they loved the game, not because it was a status symbol to have a ticket, and also a great occasion for a weekend binge.

My first Grey Cup game was also my introduction to rye whiskey. I sat between two French Canadian gentlemen, knowledgeable about football. They had a mickey of rye. After a particularly great play, they'd have a polite swig each, to keep out the bitter November chill. With Gallic grace, they offered me a slug. My Methodist background and teetotal parents made me exclaim with horror. But my 14-year-old spirit of adventure made me wet my lips, with one eye on my brother. I've had a warm spot for the combination of football, French Canadian gentlemen, and rye whiskey ever since. My mother would have killed me, if she'd seen.

Nowadays, a kid like that would probably have a mickey of his own. Or worse, he'd be bludgeoned to death by some drunken woman behind him, pounding on his head and screaming: "Go, Stamps, Go!" even though she didn't know the difference between a wide end and a big bum.

In high school, I played junior, then senior football. My best friends were the jocks on the football team, rather than the academic types, the boys in the school orchestra, the members of the students' council.

Autumns were not school work. They were long months of crisp fall afternoons, tackling, running, throwing, passing. Then the hot shower, and the painful limp a mile home through an October dark, with a sprained ankle or a loose tooth. And the occasional day of glory, when we stuck it to Smiths Falls or Calreton Place, and the cheers were like manna.

In those days, there was no money for fancy uniforms and buses to out-of-town games. Most of us wore home-made pads with felt from the local felt mill. There were about half a dozen helmets for the two teams. When we played out of town, parents and teachers transported the team in their own cars. When we played a home game, every student and lots of townspeople were out to cheer. The coach was a volunteer.

Times change. In the high school in which I teach, with a student population of 1,600 (my own high school had 400), it's impossible, this year, to muster two teams, senior and junior. We'll be lucky to have one. Because of education cut-backs, there's no money for buses to transport the teams. When we do have a home game, the students leave in hundreds to walk the streets, or just goof around.

It's sort of sad. Football used to be character-building, even though you wound up with a tooth or two missing, and a gimpy knee. But if you weighed 140 and tackled some brute of 190, you knew you were on your way to being a man.

In my day, the emphasis was on offense: running, passing, trick plays. But with the massive influx of the American game, the emphasis on defense, and television to show it all, the game has become almost dull, except for the odd brilliant outburst of speed by some guy who is being paid a phenomenal sum for his skill.

And the main idea now is "hitting." That is, the player tries to collide with an opponent with such force, and in such a way, that the latter will be injured. And if it requires breaking the rules deliberately, as I've seen it done, for example, on kick returns, then go ahead. Take the penalty, as long as you can "hit" and injure the kick returner when he's not set for a collision. It's dirty, dirty.

I went to university, and I played there. And I watched Joe Krol and Royal Copeland and company, and it was still great.

But after the war, the Yanks took over. Now it's mechanized. You have an "offensive" and a defensive" team (we used to play 60 minutes, both ways), and the chief aim seems to be to disable the opposition.

No wonder it's losing its popularity with today's students. They are not so dumb.

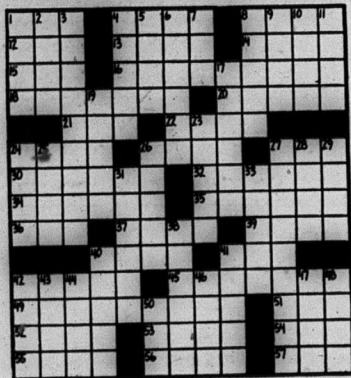

One of our high school coaches revealed the new attitude. When he remonstrated with one of his rookies, "Hit 'im! Hit 'im!" the kid retorted: "Why should I hit him? He's my friend."

Another kid started walking off the field in the middle of a play. "Hey! Where you going?" the coach wanted to know. The kid said: "I'm gonna have a rest."

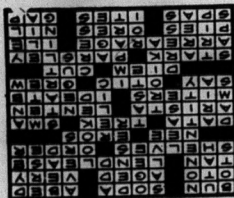

It may not be football, and it may make coaches grind their teeth to the jawbone, but it's sanity.

Goose Hunters Northern Haven

Fast, fly-in trips to the Arctic—one man flew up after work recently—seems to be the thing to do these days, a directional switch from the usual Florida vacation.

But it's no novelty to some 700 sportsmen who head north regularly each fall. They are drawn to the province's remote hinterland on the James and Hudson Bay lowlands by the challenge of three-day goose hunts that run annually from about mid-September to early or mid-October.

Of course, first-time sportsmen to the area are captivated, but even the "veterans" never stop being thrilled by this famed "Land of the Cree" where Indians act as guides while passing on their vast knowledge of wood-lore and goose-calling techniques, luring such species as Canada, snow and blue geese as well as a variety of ducks within range.

Goose-calling is a technique passed down from generation to generation and involves special use of the vocal cords that only the Indians can master. A guide will actually "talk" the geese down from the sky to fool even the wisest old bird in the flock.

The six goose camps—Fort Severn, Winisk, Attawapiskat, Kapiskau, Kashechewan and Tidewater—are operated by the Crees with assistance from the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The camps opened during the 1960s under a federal-provincial agreement as a source of income for Indian Bands along the Hudson-James Bay coast. The ultimate goal was that the camps would finally achieve full independence after a suitable period of business training and guidance from the Ministry.

This was achieved in July by Tidewater Goose Camp which was transferred to James Rickard, camp manager since its establishment in 1970.

In a joint announcement by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier and Rene Brunelle, Chairman of the Cabinet reporting the change in ownership, Mr. Brunelle said that last year the number of guests increased to 124 from 30 in 1970 and it is expected the camp capacity of 144 will be reached this year.

All of the camps are operated on the American plan and offer air transportation to and from the camps, a three-day hunt, guides, meals and comfortable accommodations.

Wives and daughters of the guides look after the plucking, drawing and packaging of the hunters' daily bag, keeping it on ice ready for departure time.

In fact, the total bag taken last year was more than 6,600 geese and over 2,260 ducks. Thirteen ptarmigan and two sharp-tailed grouse were added benefits at the Winisk camp.

Booking agents in southern Ontario handle transportation arrangements for guests to and from the camp via aircraft out of Timmins and Moosonee.

Booking should be made early because of the growing popularity of the camps and what they have to offer. Further information may be obtained by writing to: Cree Goose camps, P.O. Box 190, Moosonee, Ontario, P0L 1Y0.

Some Questions and Answers on Nutrition and Your Diet

Q. Is it necessary to blanch vegetables before freezing?

A. Blanching (placing vegetables in boiling water) is necessary to inactivate chemical enzymes which cause deterioration during storage. It also deepens the natural colour, partially sterilizes the vegetables and makes them softer for packaging. Most vegetables when frozen unblanched, lose colour and vitamins, become tougher and develop offensive, "hay-like" flavors in a comparatively short time after freezing.

Q. Does fluid milk have preservatives added to it?

A. No, fluid milk does not have preservatives added to it. All milk is pasteurized, which means it is heated to 161 degrees F (72 degrees C) for not less than 16 seconds to destroy disease carrying bacteria. When milk is homogenized, that means under pressure, fat particles are broken down so that the fat is dispersed throughout the milk and doesn't settle on the top. Chocolate milk and chocolate partially skimmed milk (formerly called chocolate dairy drink) may contain a stabilizer to keep the chocolate dispersed throughout the milk.

Q. What ingredients are used in wieners and how nutritious are they?

A. Except for wieners labelled "all beef" the meat ingredients can include beef, mutton and pork cuts. All of this meat is government inspected for wholesomeness. In addition, government regulations allow certain other protein sources, i.e. liver, tripe, whole blood or blood plasma. Regulated amounts of meat binders such as milk powder or wheat flour are added as well as spices. Sodium nitrite in extremely small quantities is used as a preservative, and is responsible for the distinctive cured flavour and colour. Wieners are a low source of protein. The protein in wieners is about 11-12 percent as compared to 17-18 percent in sirloin steak. The quality of protein in both meats is basically the same.

Q. Would you recommend raisins as a good nutritious snack?

A. Raisins are a nutritious snack and do provide a good source of quick energy. However, they do have a drawback in the fact they are so sticky. Some raisins are high in sugar and tend to adhere to the teeth and this could contribute to dental caries. Perhaps a more totally healthful snack would be nuts, sunflower seeds or fresh fruit.

Q. Can Soy Sauce be used on a Salt-Restricted Diet?

A. No. Soy sauce contains more than two grams of sodium, equivalent to one teaspoon of table salt in each fluid ounce and should not be used on even a mildly salt restricted diet. If you are looking for recipes and cooking suggestions for salt restricted diets, write to the Department of Dietetic Services, Ontario Hospital Association, 150 Ferrand Drive, Don Mills, for their free booklet of Restricted Sodium Recipes.

Q. What is the difference between fruit juice and fruit drink?

A. Only products containing fruit juice to which no water has been added may be labelled fruit juice. Products with additional water must be given names such as fruit drink, fruit punch or fruit ade, even though they may contain some fruit juice. Extra Vitamin C is sometimes added to these products to improve their nutritional value.

Since Vitamin C is more stable in an acid substance, as with fruit juice, it is easily destroyed in the non-acid medium of fruit flavoured drinks. To obtain full Vitamin C value such drinks should be consumed within a day or two of the time they are made up.

Q. I am on a low calorie reducing diet and a friend recently told me I could eat all the mushrooms I want without adding many calories. Is there any food value in mushrooms?

A. A cup of canned mushrooms contains only 40 calories so they are low in calories. This quantity provides 5 grams of protein, some Vitamin B and small amounts of iron. If you saute mushrooms the calorie count increases. (A tablespoon of butter or margarine adds 100 calories!) Mushrooms provide variety and enhance flavour - a very worthwhile addition to a low calorie diet!

Q. Can people instinctively choose a nutritious diet?

A. Unfortunately, no. For several years we thought that infants would choose a well balanced diet instinctively, but we now know that this is not true. Our belief was based on a study done in 1928, where infants were offered a choice of wholesome foods and freely selected a nutritious diet. This study was recently repeated, offering a wide selection of foods currently on the market and not necessarily nutritious. The study had to be stopped after a few weeks, because some of the infants were becoming malnourished as a result of their "instinctive" choices.

Parliamentary Comments by Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SF) — Early days of the new session of Parliament gave us much more of the same thing we'd been hearing during the record length previous session — but there is just that much more bite to the criticism, because we are just that much closer to another election.

Labor's Day of Protest against price and wage controls was further fired by government concessions to business in the anti-inflation laws, while business continued to complain that there was no incentive for the new investment the country needs so badly to create jobs.

The PM is off somewhere seeing the world, and Tory leader Joe Clark is slicing his right hand up and down to underline criticism directed at Trudeau's empty seat.

We've had a list of promised legislation in the Speech from the Throne, but the proof is in the pudding, and anyone with the faintest shred of memory knows that it's a long way from promises to action.

We've been told that the anti-inflation laws are really working — but somehow the cost of doing the weekend shopping doesn't really reflect the kind of success consumers would like, with the take home pay of wage earners controlled by both the Anti-Inflation Board itself, and the taxman.

We've also heard once again how government intends to restrain itself, and not grow beyond 14 per cent annually — which is a darned sight more than wages are being allowed to increase. There have even been a few sports suggesting that tax increases, too, should fall under those anti-inflation law guidelines, but enthusiasm for that idea was like warm air at best in government circles.

Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has been telling us all in national ads that we drink too much, without even suggesting that Ottawa may be providing the country for a national reason to reach for the bottle.

And in Quebec, they're getting tougher about demanding French first language usage, while bilingualism for the rest of the nation is still the federal target.

There now, doesn't that sound just like the last stormy session of Parliament? Doesn't that make you wish you'd thought of all those things before Thanksgiving Day?

Protest staged over no heat

Students from Centre Hastings Secondary School staged a protest against the lack of heating in the building, Tuesday, Oct. 12.

Between 35 to 50 students reportedly left the school at the main entrance, according to Bob Henderson, the school's principal.

The students wanted the building closed down until it was warm inside, he said.

Mr. Henderson said he told the students they could go home or stay. If the students left, he said, they would be counted absent and then be required to provide a note for their absence from their parents.

"I'm not up-tight about the situation," he said.

The problem dealt with a miscalculation, he said. The heating system was turned down due to the long weekend holiday and was not turned up until the regular school day.

try to shut it down as much as possible," due to the tighter budgets and the higher energy costs.

Mr. Henderson said the actions gave a good example to do a "real job as an educator." It was a learning experience for both the students and teachers.

Mr. Henderson noted that if students have any problems that he would see them. Most students he said, may act loud and abusive, but when they are in the office they are "very responsible in their thoughts."

This year, Centre Hastings is under a stricter system of checking attendance. This resulted from the actions of the former students, he said.

Last year, absentees were numerous, however skipping and absentees are down about three per cent, so far, Mr. Henderson said.

Everyday the office receives a list of all the students absent. Formerly, a secretary would selectively phone the individual's Federation meeting

The annual meeting of the Federation of Agriculture will be held Thursday, Oct. 21, at the Ivanhoe Community Hall starting at 8 p.m.

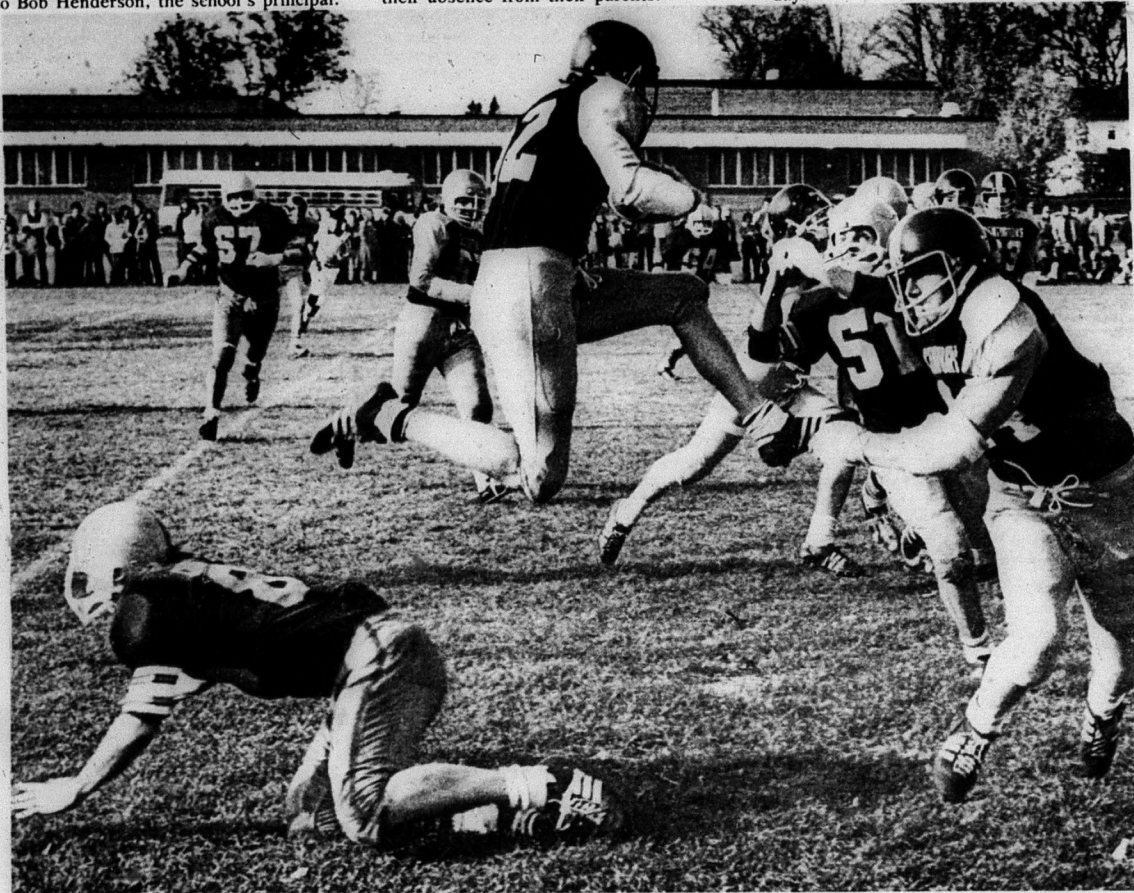

The guest speaker for the evening is Grace Stalker, Ontario Federation of Agriculture executive member. The main topic of discussion will be tax reform.

In a press release, it states the Ontario government is proposing major reform in property taxation. One of these proposes is, the government paying taxes on the farm land and buildings, while the farmer pays on his house and lot.

Another point of discussion will centre around the OFA proposed voluntary income protection program which would be based on insurance principles to even out the low periods of farm income.

There will also be reports from Ivan May and Wilfred Forestell, the OFA directors from South Hastings and North Hastings respectively.

A potluck dinner will be held before the meeting. This is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Play raises money for Community Centre

Using the words of William Shakespeare the YES (Youth Encouraging Society) group presented their version of Twelfth Night, but set to music. The play ran for two nights Friday and Saturday Oct. 15-16 at the Madoc Public School.

The musical comedy was held to raise money for the new Community Centre. The script had to be rearranged since the cast of players only numbered eight.

Not only did the characters have to be rewritten, but all the music was composed by Jennifer Aylesworth who has completed her Grade 10 in piano.

The length of the production was just over an hour.

The theme of the play centres around Viola and her twin brother, Sebastian who were parted in a shipwreck. Both survived, but both thought each other perished.

Viola, dressed as a boy, finds herself a job as a page to the Duke of Illyria. She falls in love with him, but must go to the countess, Olivia, to tell of the Duke's love for her. Olivia, though, falls in love with Viola.

Sebastian has to go to the Duke to ask for funds for the passage home. Here, Sebastian is confronted with Sir Andrew Agucheek who wants to marry Olivia, mistakes Sebastian as Viola whom he thinks wants to marry Olivia.

After a duel between Agucheek and Sebastian, which is stopped by Olivia, Sebastian marries Olivia.

The Duke in the meantime begins to care for Viola and eventually marries her once her true identity is known. Her identity became apparent only after Sebastian is actually confronted with his twin sister, Viola.

Playing in the role of Viola was Alyson Aylsworth and as her twin brother, Sebastian, Brian Gaebel. The Duke was played by Kevin Bray and Olivia was Joyce Brownson. Sir Andrew Agucheek was done by Keith Kirkpatrick, while Kim Clarke played Feste, a clown; Deborah Raynsford, Olivia's servant, Malvolio; and Carol Brett, Antonio, a sea-captain who rescued Sebastian.

Also aiding in the production were Mark Szumagaj on lighting; Jim Doulas and Kim Bray on curtain; and Dave Huddleston also on lighting.

The crowd for the two-day event totalled over 300.

Viola, played by Alyson Aylsworth fences with Sir Andrew Agucheek played by Keith Kirkpatrick in the YES presentation of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. Trying to break-up the duel was Antonio played by Carol Brett. The presentation was to help raise funds for the new Community Centre.

AND ONTARIO WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS ASSOCIATION

Chairman has praise for committee members

Bob Henderson, chairman for the new Community Centre committee, had words of praise for the committee members. "I take my hat off to the committee," for the work they have done, said Mr. Henderson.

Events to help raise funds

There are two projects planned for Friday Oct. 22 to help raise money for the new Community Centre.

The Madoc Bowl will sponsor the event with the proceeds of the evening going towards the community project.

The other event is the Centre Hastings Secondary School Danceathon in the Kiwanis Centre. It will begin at noon until midnight. A portion of the money raised will go towards the new Community Centre. Other portions will go to organizations in Marmora and Tweed.

"They have worked hard and have done the best possible job with tight control over expenditures," he said.

Mr. Henderson also said the community have also been cheered by the public support of the project.

When one considers the money raised since April for the Centre, said Mr. Henderson, "the people should take pride with the work they have done."

On Oct. 14, confirmation of the Wintario Grant was announced by Clarke Rollins, MPP for the project. This grant of $225,000 will go to the three councils of Village of Madoc Madoc Township and Huntingdon Township, involved in the plan.

Plans are also being arranged for the Centre schedule. The Madoc and District Recreation committee is planning to hold a meeting Thursday, Oct. 28 in the Madoc Council Chambers to set the schedule.

The committee expects to have the operation of the Centre started before the end of December. Earlier reports estimated the beginning of next year before activities could commence.

Around the town

Ron Hiuser

I did not know what exactly was going to happen when I walked through the door of the Madoc Public School gym on Friday night, Oct. 15.

Inside, it was dark (I arrived late, which is usual) and there were many people inside watching the Youth Encouraging Society. No they are not a comedy group, like the Second City Revue from Toronto, but a group of high school and university students from Madoc and the surrounding area.

What were they doing, you ask? It was a musical version of William Shakespeare's comedy, Twelfth Night.

A musical version of Shakespeare?!!? What the hey...

Now don't get too condemning, it was good. And I mean GOOD.

Now I must admit, when I first heard of what this group was going to do, I was skeptical of the outcome. With this impression in mind, I went to the presentation with the idea just to pop in and take a couple of pictures and then leave.

To my surprise, the stage was set with backdrops, the actors were dressed in costumes of the day, Shakespeare's day that is.

The crowd was intent. They listened to the lines which YES had to rewrite to the different characters. This was done since there were only eight members of the group.

I don't know if Shakespeare would be happy with the production, but I feel he would be pleased just to know that after 300 years plus, his name and plays are still enjoyed by millions.

Every group which takes on such a huge project is allowed certain privileges, which is just the case with Twelfth Night.

First off let me state, I am not a follower of the arts in a true manner. If I like something I say so. Probably like most of you, have enjoyed a movie or a play that other critics have said was horrible.

The YES presentation of Twelfth Night was enjoyable, pleasurable and more than anything - good.

In my limited experience with school, I have never seen or heard of such a group as YES.

What they do and accomplish very well is something the residents of Madoc should be proud about.

Just formed a little over a year ago, YES has played an active part in this community. And one thing that should be mentioned, is that they don't get paid. No one makes a profit. Strange? It may seem so, but that is the way it is.

Before I get too far along, the presentation featured the music of Jennifer Aylsworth. Having personally performed and written music myself, I fully realize the amount of concentration that went into such a task.

Congratulations to you, YES.

One thing more, the proceeds of the play went to the new Community Centre. Interesting, eh?

home and ask where the student would be. Usually, the parent would say that their child is home sick, but occasionally the parent would not know where their child is.

Sponsorship set for Kinsmen Club

The Belleville Kinsmen Club is going to sponsor a local Kinsmen Club in Madoc. Bob Bancroft will be the president of the newly formed club and Jack Smith has been chosen as secretary.

The other executive positions have not been finalized at this time, said Mr. Bancroft, however, they will be hand picked. This will enable the club to have strong executive, he said.

The Kin-tie from Belleville is Gary Honey, a past president.

So far, the club has a list of over 20 names and there is room for more. The club though, does not want more than 32-34 members, said Mr. Bancroft.

he said. In most cases, the parent would be grateful for the information.

This has changed this year. All the students are called and this usually takes one secretary between 1½ hours to 2 hours to call them all, he said.

"I have a legal and professional right," to know the whereabouts of the students, Mr. Henderson said.

One of the major changes this year has been the changing of last year's spares to study sessions. Every student is required to sign into these sessions if there is not a regular class at that time, he said.

The senior students (Grades 12 and 13) have to sign in also but they can be excused if they have permission of the study session supervisor.

"We try not to hassle students," he said, they are expected to be responsible, if they are not, they will meet the consequences.

For the last couple of years, Mr. Henderson reflected that parents and teachers were saying the school system had to be tightened. "We had to do it."

Two new teachers for Centre Hastings Secondary School

By JAN GRAHAM

Every year the population of the villages of Madoc and Marmora increases. It is not surprising then to see new faces around town long after the "summer troupe" has left.

This year Centre Hastings Secondary School can take credit for a few of these new faces with the addition of six teachers to the staff. Some of these people are replacing teachers who have transferred, while others were hired because of an increase in the student enrolment.

Bob McNeil, formerly of Midland Avenue Collegiate in Scarborough, is not teaching Mathematics and English at CHSS. Mr. McNeil is originally from Owen Sound where he attended public and high school. He went on to graduate from a four year honors program at the University of Western Ontario. Following one year at the Faculty of Education, Toronto, Mr. McNeil began teaching in Scarborough where he taught for nine years.

"Although my family and I have wanted to get away from the city for some time," said Mr. McNeil, "the move came sooner than expected when my home was expropriated for the new Toronto International Airport."

Although the plans for the airport were terminated, the government will not sell the land back to the original owners.

Mr. McNeil, his wife Sandy and children, Angus and Laura, have now taken residence in the former George Robinson Farm, south of Queensboro.

Mr. McNeil is active in the Folk Singing Group at the school. Also interested in dogs, he is the owner of two Newfoundland.

Mr. McNeil is pleased with what he has experienced so far and is looking forward to November when he will coach the first boys gymnastics team at CHSS.

Arlene Watson in her first year here teaches English and Dramatic Arts to the students of CHSS. What first prompted

Mrs. Watson to apply to Centre Hastings was the "scenic countryside and congenial atmosphere."

Mrs. Watson, originally from Toronto, attended the University of Toronto where she majored in English and Comparative Religions.

She then attended teachers' college at the University of Toronto, Faculty of Education.

CHSS is benefiting from one of Mrs. Watson's many talents in her teaching Dramatic Arts. This relatively new course will cover such theatrical areas as play making, improvisation, movement exercises and mime.

Compared to the Toronto schools where Mrs. Watson practice-taught, CHSS has a "congenial, down to earth atmosphere", which she enjoys.

Mrs. Watson and her husband Gerry, an architectural draftsman, live near the Don McKinnon farm on the Queensboro Road.

Mrs. Watson will be involved with the "CHSS Drama Night" on Nov. 24. She is hoping there will be a good community turnout to see CHSS's "aspiring actors".

Both Mr. McNeil and Mrs. Watson expressed an interest in getting involved in the community and are looking forward to meeting the parents on "Parents' Night", Nov. 10.

Three area libraries will each receive grants of $2,000. The Townships of Belmont and Methuen Public Library Board and the Burleigh Anstruther and Chandos Union Public Library will use the funds to purchase Canadian books and periodicals and The Havelock Public Library will purchase Canadian and French books.

The Havelock and District Minor Hockey Association will receive $1,477 worth of hockey equipment and the Association will also receive $250 to defray the cost of tournament entry fees - a total grant of $1,727.

Cassidy hosts WI meeting

Mrs. Ken Cassidy was hostess for the October meeting of the Queensboro branch of the WI which was held in the WI Hall Wednesday, Oct. 13.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Mervil Lees, Mrs. Ken Cassidy, past president, was in charge of the meeting. The roll call, Name a European Country and its Capital, was answered by 13 members and seven visitors.

It was decided to send Mrs. C. McMurray as delegate to the area convention in Picton in November with Mrs. Roy Rollins, alternate.

Mrs. Rollins, public relations officer, was in charge of the program. She read a selection on guarantees on appliances, also a quiz, You paid how much for that?

Mrs. Rollins introduced our guest speaker, Mrs. Allan Franks, who showed slides and gave a talk on places of interest that she had visited while on a tour in Europe last summer.

Mrs. Rollins thanked the speaker and presented her with a gift.

The meeting closed with The Queen and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Appointment

President Herbert Young of Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology in Belleville has announced the appointment of a new public relations officer. Bryan Olney, a co-ordinator in the School of Communications and a teaching master, will co-ordinate all public relations for the college.

Mr. Olney, 38, spent 16 years in broadcasting before joining the Loyalist College faculty six years ago. In addition, Mr. Olney is the secretary-treasurer of the Broadcast Education Association of Canada and a National Director of the Canadian Advertising and Sales Association.

Mr. Olney will provide a source of information for people both inside and outside the college.

Birthday

Another birthday celebration will be held for Percy Nayler in honor of his 90th birthday in the Madoc Lawn Bowling Club.

It will start around 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 21, Mr. Nayler's actual birthday.

Voices concern about cemetery

A letter was received by village council, Oct. 4, voicing concern about the condition of one of the cemetery plots.

The letter was written by Ethel Phillips about her husband's plot. She said that the plot had sunken in and that it was not being taken care of. In the letter, Mrs. Phillips said the grass had grown to waist high. It seems like a disgrace, she wrote.

Mrs. Phillips contributed to the perpetual care fund, she noted.

Councillor Jim Watson, chairman of the cemetery board, said he would reply to Mrs. Phillips on all points in question.

He said the annual cost of the upkeep of the entire cemetery is set at $2,500 of which $1,500 comes from the perpetual care fund.

The $1,500 is the annual interest of the fund. Mr. Watson said the board cannot spend the money directly from the fund only the interest. The balance, $1,000 is made from public funds.

The matter in question will be referred to the cemetery board which is made up from Tom Burnside, Jim Daniels and Jim Watson.

270 women meet at Quin-Mo-Lac

Two hundred and seventy women of the United Church from the seven Presbyterials of the Bay of Quinte Conference met recently for a weekend at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac near Tweed.

The theme of the weekend was Bible Explorations II Christian Living: Courageous and Contagious.

Attractive informative posters prepared by the seven Presbyterials, of living in seven of the Third World Countries, decorated the dining hall.

Mrs. Clifford Minifie, Cold Springs, dean of the school presided at all sessions and kept the entire weekend on schedule.

Mrs. M.D. Brownlee, Kingston, leadership development chairman of Conference UCW was chief co-ordinator in the planning and carrying out of the program. A varied supply of interesting and informative literature as well as United Church crest, jewellery was introduced by literature secretary Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Stirling, ably assisted by Miss Verna Hillyard of distributions services, Toronto. Interest was so great that $1,751. was received by the sale of literature.

Singing of songs both old and new was a feature of the weekend under the leadership of Mrs. D.W. McKendry, Glenbourne.

On Friday evening five minute "Let's Laugh" presentations were made by the seven Presbyterials. These had actually happened within the respective Presbyterials.

Friday night vespers were conducted by the Assistant Dean, Mrs. Glen Howes, Parham, basing her thoughts on faith. Each camper received an acorn to remind us in the months ahead that our faith can grow as the little acorn grows to be the mighty oak.

Mrs. B.J. Klassen, Kingston, led us in our offering worship and dedication as the offering of $504 was received for the Sahel Project in the Sahara Desert of West Africa, through the world development, service and relief fund. This area has suffered extensively from a prolonged drought.

A group of counsellors in various stages of their camping experience made their witness as each told of the best thing that had happened to them during summers at camp with the children of our conference. Later they led in five separate campfire programs.

The theme speaker was Rev. Gordon C. Hunter, Toronto, who based each of his four addresses on Christian Living: Courageous and Contagious:

1. As a Christian are we willing to listen to one another; admit a mistake; admit your need of other people; grant freedom to your loved ones at home and at church.

2. Let us forgive others always; let us be enthusiastic about our faith.

3. Christianity is invitational. Come and follow me.

4. Christianity is good news. It is what Christmas is all about and at the heart of our faith is an empty tomb. God does not want us to be servants, but sons and daughters. Let us all return to our homes and live and work and witness.

The communion service preceding Sunday morning breakfast, and following worship to start the day at the lakeshore, was conducted by Rev. Hunter and was another of the spiritual highlights of the weekend.

The Dean for the 1977 school will be Mrs. Glen Howes, Parham.

Driver of a westbound pick-up truck was John Carl Gilmour, 21, of Fort Erie, police said.

The truck was in collision with an eastbound car driven by Clarence Gilbert Rogers, 46, of Don Mills, police said. There were three passengers in the car, but no one was injured in either vehicle, police report.

Winter Carnival agenda to be discussed at meeting

There will be a meeting of the Madoc Winter Carnival Committee at the Madoc Hotel, tonight, (Oct. 20) to discuss the proposed agenda. Bob Bancroft, president of the committee, said the meeting is open to the public for them to suggest any possible "crowd pleasing events." It will start at 8 p.m. in the Blue Room.

Mr. Bancroft said the carnival will begin Feb. 10 and will continue until Feb. 13, with the official opening at the crowning of the Winter Carnival Queen. The contest will run the same time as the Amateur Contest, he said.

Centre Hasings Secondary School will be playing a major part in the weekend events. The school is going to sponsor a carnival week with competitions held for snow sculptures, possibly a float in the parade, and a youth dance.

A new feature Mr. Bancroft said he hopes is organized is a set of snowmobile races for the local residents. These he said will not be sanctioned as the other snowmobile races will. "If Tweed wants to challenge Madoc in a possible class, we would like to see it," said Mr. Bancroft.

The kick-off of the weekend events will start with the crowning of the Winter Carnival Queen in conjunction with the Amateur Contest in the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday night, Feb. 10, he said.

Tentatively, the program for Friday, Feb. 11, will include judging of the snow sculptures, a torchlight parade, and two dances - one in the Kiwanis Centre for the adults and another in the school for the youth.

On Saturday, Feb. 12, Mr. Bancroft said there might be a Flea Market, along with a Dart and Cribbage Tournament and a Tug-of-War and Arm Wrestling Tournament.

On the final day, the snowmobile races should be held in the afternoon following a Pancake Breakfast and a Cross Country Ski race.

The sanctioned snowmobile races will be of Class B with the local entries in separate races; he said. These will be held at the Madoc Fair Grounds.

There might also be a snowshoe-a-thon, said Mr. Bancroft.

Another charge brought against Ray for arson

Edmund Alexander Ray, 26, of Bannockburn as been charged with arson contrary to the criminal code. This charge resulted from a fire of a two story frame house at 232 St. Lawrence St. W., Oct. 13, 1975, the Madoc detachment of the provincial police report. The house belonged at that time to Joseph Rooney. Investigation is still continuing and additional charges are pending in the case, report police.

Constable Robert Bonter and Constable Carl Campbell of the local detachment are the investigating officers.

Mr. Ray was also charged Oct. 3, 1976, with two counts of setting an explosive device and one count of possession of an explosive for an unlawful purpose, police said. A cousin, Marl William Ray, 22, of Bannockburn, was also charged with two counts of setting an explosive device. These charges followed an incident Oct. 2, 1976, when a mail box belonging to Dora Gunter of Millbridge, blew up and ignited dynamite was discovered in two places on a car owned by Raymond Henley, police said.

Posters and signs up soon

This week there will be posters and signs up in the schools asking for people who are interested in forming a pipe and drum band.

In the Oct. 6 issue of The Review it was stated that Jackie Martin Jr. of Madoc, who was with the Belleville Kinsmen Pipe Band until it recently disbanded, had begun a search for prospective members. Although there are now 13 people signed up for pipe and drum training, the group would like to have 30 members before making a contract with a teacher to come up to Madoc and instruct once a week.

No previous training is necessary and no uniforms would be needed for the first year or two - even those training on the pipes will not require proper bagpipes for the first year.

Interested people can contact Jack Martin, Jr., 473-4265, or the Kirkwoods, 473-4379.

Wake up Canada there's no free lunch

Once upon a time there was a Little Red Rooster who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. He called his barnyard neighbours and said: "If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help me plant the wheat?"

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Not I," said the Goose. "Then I will," said the Little Red Rooster and he did.

After the wheat started growing, the ground turned dry and there was no rain in sight. "Who will help me water the wheat?" said the Little Red Rooster.

"Not I," said the Cow. "I'd lose my workman's compensation," said the Pig. "Equal rights," said the Goose. "Then I will," said the Little Red Rooster and he did.

The wheat grew tall and ripened into golden grain. "Who will help me reap the wheat?" asked the Little Red Rooster.

"I'm waiting for a guaranteed annual wage," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Out of my classification," said the Pig. "Not I," said the Goose. "Then I will," said the Little Red Rooster and he did.

When it came time to grind the flour, "Not I," said the Cow. "I'd lose my unemployment insurance," said the Duck.

When it came time to bake the bread. "That's overtime for me," said the Cow. "I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the Duck. "I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the Pig. "If I'm the only one helping, that's discrimination," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Rooster and he did. He baked five loaves of fine bread and held them up for his neighbours to see.

"I want some," said the Cow. "I want some," said the Duck. "I demand my share," said the Goose.

"No," said the Little Red Rooster. "I can rest for awhile and eat five loaves myself."

"Excess profits," cried the Cow. "Capitalist leech," screamed the Duck. "Company fink," grunted the Pig. "Equal rights," screamed the Goose. And they hurriedly painted picket signs and marched around the Little Red Rooster, singing, "We shall overcome." And they did.

For when the Farmer came to investigate the commotion, he said, "You must not be greedy, Little Red Rooster. Look at the oppressed Cow. Look at the disadvantaged Duck. Look at the underprivileged Pig. Look at the less fortunate Goose. You are guilty of making second-class citizens of them."

"But-but-but I earned the bread," protested the Little Red Rooster.

"Exactly," the wise Farmer said. "That is the wonderful free enterprise system; anybody in the barnyard can earn as much as he wants. You should be happy to have all this freedom. In other barnyards, you would have to give all your loaves to the Farmer. Here you give four loaves to your suffering neighbours."

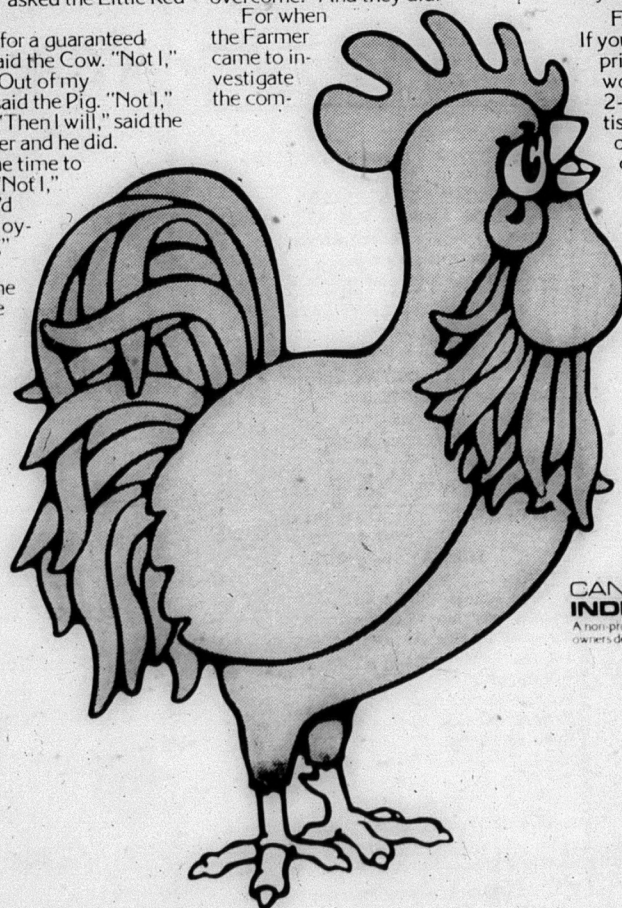

And they lived happily ever after. Including the Little Red Rooster, who smiled and crowed, "I am grateful, I am grateful."

But his neighbours wondered why he never baked any more bread.

Open house held

An open house was held Sunday, Oct. 10, to honor Percy Naylor on the anniversary of his 90th birthday.

One of the highlights of the day was when Clarke T. Rollins, MPP, representing Premier William Davis, presented a scroll from the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Naylor was also presented with a Masonic Bible from Eugene Pigden and several accompanying members from the local Masonic Lodge. Mr. Naylor has served 35 years as Chaplain for the Lodge.

On Sept. 23, a meeting of the Hastings Junior Women's Institute was held at the Stirling Agricultural Office.

Members welcomed three new members to the growing JI.

Last but not least were some good games from a trio of eight year olds. Lori Sawkins 117, Pam Bush 101, and Krista Lowry 98 are the ones who deserve a pat on the back for their efforts.

Team standings after the first week of team play shows the Strikers, seven; Aces, seven; All-Stars, five; Tiger Cats, two;

Four teams

There have been four teams registered in the Trent Valley Hockey League. They are Tweed, Stirling, Brighton, and Madoc-Cooper, said Bob Bancroft, sponsor for the local squad.

The organizers said they hope for entries still from Marmora, Havelock, Norwood, as well as Wellington and Bancroft.

The final playing schedule will be known by the first part of December, said Mr. Bancroft, with Sunday nights as the home nights for the Cooper Canucks.

The first practice for the Canucks in the Intermediate D league will be held Sunday, Oct. 24, in Tweed, he said. This will be an open tryout for the team.

Volleyball team jumps for joy

The Centre Hastings Secondary School Junior Boys Volleyball Team was jumping for joy on Oct. 12 for very good reasons.

It started on Sept. 8 at CHSS where the team played their first six games in the Bay of Quinte Volleyball League.

They won all their games by landslides, the closest game being 15-4. Through the six games, the team allowed only 10 points served against them.

The clincher came Oct. 12 in Cobourg West High School in the Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

Teams came from around Ontario. After eight games, CHSS had a 6-2 record and were in top four. The first playoff round was against Clarke High School which lost to CHSS 15-9 and moved into the finals.

CHSS was then against the undefeated Anderson High School which already defeated the local squad 16-4 earlier in the day. The team had to win two consecutive games for the championship while Anderson needed only one win. CHSS defeated Anderson 15-9 and 15-3 and won the tournament.

Out of the last four to five years, the COSSA championship has been won by CHSS. They are going into the second round of the Bay of Quinte League undefeated and have an over-all record of 17-2.

Changes in community roll call for Women's Institute

The October meeting of Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Woods on Friday, Oct. 15, at 2 p.m.

The roll call, "Changes in our community in the last ten years", was responded to by 20 members and four visitors.

Various reports were received. President Mrs. Mary Forestell extended thanks to all who helped make the WI Madoc Fair booth a success.

The area convention will be held in the United Church in Picton on Nov. 3 and 4. Madoc Institute will contribute to a display of crafts.

The program, Education and Cultural Activities, was in charge of the convener, Mrs. D. Carman. The motto, Young people need a model instead of a critic, was given by Mrs. Carman.

A paper on Orkney Islands, prepared by Mrs. McGibbon, a teacher's wife here on exchange from Orkney Islands, was read by Mrs. Carman.

This paper revealed many facts about Orkney Islands and was much enjoyed by the members. They thanked Mrs.

McGibbon for her contribution.

A reading, The Meanest Mother in the World, concluded a program.

Thanks was extended to Mrs. Carman for her fine program and to the hostess by Mrs. Albert Bailey.

Lunch was served by Ada Adams and Elizabeth Empey and a social half hour enjoyed.

Weep not for the fawn

Two of the most appealing animals we know are the lamb and the fawn. The reasons for this are obvious. Both are delicately beautiful little creatures, gentle and vulnerable.

Yet the roles these two animals play in our world are quite different. At first glance it might seem that the lamb has the better deal. Usually, he will be born to a well-fed mother on a farm or sheep ranch within the collective security of a large flock or even the protective walls of a barn. The odds are great that his lifetime will be equally peaceful. For he is a domesticated animal, a commodity of commercial value from the moment he is born.

The fawn, on the other hand, is born wild, often to a half-starved mother still suffering from the rigors of a severe winter that taxed to the limit her ability simply to survive. He is in danger from the minute he is dropped, from the elements, from disease (there are no veterinarians in the woods) and from a variety of predators. Before he reaches a year's growth, he will also have to face winter's chilling temperatures, deep snows and slim larder in direct competition with his larger relatives who can obtain food from a browse line that may be beyond his reach. If the food supply is limited by over-population and the winter is too long or too severe, he will be the first to starve.

There was a time, ages back, when the lamb's destiny would have been similar to the fawn's. But, along the way, Nature's most intelligent and resourceful predator, man, discovered that it was much easier to guarantee a food supply by culling tame animals from a captive flock than by the riskier method of hunting wild ones whose speed and senses were superior to his. So certain animals were gradually converted to a form of benevolent captivity we call domestication.

By chance and other factors, several varieties of sheep were so selected. The deer was not. Then, over the centuries, man's food gathering activities, like others, became even more specialized. No longer do we all gather and butcher our lambs individually. Most of us now pay others to do this for us. Obviously, it is more efficient this way.

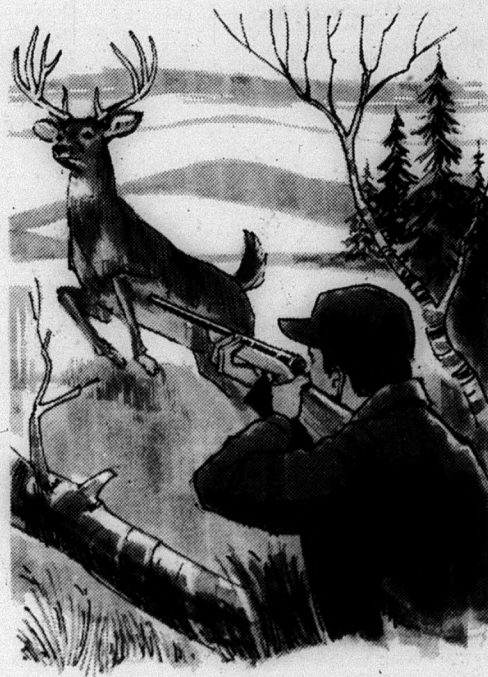

The practice has now gone on for so long that, when we select a neatly-wrapped package of lamb chops from the meat counter, we often forget where they came from or how they got there, and that part of their price goes to pay our specialized, proxy predator.

The dinner table may also be in the fawn's future some day because venison is quite delicious, and there are still those who find challenge and enjoyment in gathering some of their food by the older, riskier method called hunting. But the odds remain in favor of the deer - as much as twenty-to-one in his favor at times. More likely, he will eventually succumb to starvation, disease, harassment from your free-running pet dog, or a speeding auto on a super highway we've recently cut through his range. In any event, few deer die of old age.

Frequently we hear from those who claim to weep for the fawn because his life may some day end at the hands of a hunter. It is curious that we never hear them weep for the lamb.

We say weep not for the pheasant but for the barnyard chicken, not for the antelope but for the feed-lot steer, not for the fawn but for the lamb.

For, if you had your choice of being born a fawn or a lamb, which would you choose?

Deer hunting is a valid recreational pursuit in rural areas.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Anthony Abbot is a name most of us knew nothing about a few weeks ago.

But if his maiden speech is an example of where his thinking is headed, then consumers and farmers — especially farmers — are going to be forced to listen to him.

Mr. Abbot is the new federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs.

"Basically, I have some questions to ask about marketing boards," he said in his first speech after being appointed in Pierre's big cabinet shuffle late in September. Mr. Abbot spoke to the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada.

He is concerned, he said, about what efficiencies marketing boards offer to the consumer as well as whether the benefits they offer to the farmer are worth the extra cost to the consumer.

As regular readers of this column are aware, I am in favor of marketing boards. These boards are the only tools available at this time to farmers to fight the ever-encroaching effects of multi-national conglomerates.

In most cases, marketing boards have worked well for both the producer and the consumer. If Mr. Abbot can prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that marketing boards inflate the price of farm products to the consumer, then I might — just might — believe there is a better way.

But right now I can see no better method for farmers to get a reasonable return on their labor and their investment.

I don't know whether or not Mr. Abbot was just trying to make political hay when he sounded off so soon about his ideas on marketing boards. I wonder how much he knows about them. He said he was going to have a chat "in the near future" with Eugene Whelan, Canada's outspoken minister of agriculture. I have seen or heard nothing about that meeting in the press since Mr. Abbot made his speech nearly a month ago.

Perhaps, Eugene, in his blunt manner, told Anthony to lay off marketing boards. If Mr. Whelan is still one of the more powerful voices in the cabinet, maybe Mr. Abbot has decided to keep a lower profile for a while. But I'm sure farmers and consumers haven't heard the last of it.

Because Mr. Abbot says his fundamental obligation is to the consumer, this leaves the farmer right out in the middle of the old squeeze play again, between the government and the consumer.

If that Canadian Press release on the Abbot speech is correct, the farmer could be in for a rough time.

"It must be understood and reiterated that in the market place, it is usually the consumer, the purchaser, who is at a disadvantage," Mr. Abbot said.

"My social commitment, quite apart from my economic view, is to strengthening that weaker side of the market place bargain."

That is what he said. The man said that.

Well now, if the consumer is at a disadvantage, I'd like to know where in hell the farmer is! Can Mr. Abbot not read? Has he not been following what is happening in the Canadian beef business? Does he not know the incredibly rough time many thousands of beef farmers have been having recently? Does he not know what is happening in the dairy business in this country: that hundreds of dairy farmers are being forced into bankruptcy because of some asinine policies the federal government has implemented?

And does he not read his own government's pronouncements on the reason the cost of living has dipped in recent weeks, one of which was because pork prices have dropped significantly — and are continuing to drop?

If anybody is getting the dirty end of the stick in the market place it is the Canadian farmer, not the consumer. Food in this country is cheap. Canada has the second lowest rate of any country in the world, second only to the Excited States. We spend only 18 cents of the disposable income dollar on food compared to as much as 40 per cent in some other so-called developed countries.

If this doesn't indicate that somebody is getting a lousy deal in the marketplace then somebody in the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs is myopic.

And that somebody who is getting a lousy deal is the farmer, not the consumer.

Energy conservation week creates awareness

As Energy Conservation Week in Ontario (October 31-November 6) draws closer, municipalities, schools, companies, libraries and associations across the Province indicate they are actively participating in the Week's activities.

In Stratford, the mayor and city councillors will either walk to city hall or take public transit, council members have voted to deny themselves city hall parking privileges during Energy Conservation Week.

On Manitoulin Island, the first Manitoulin Island Cub Pack will tour the community discussing ways of saving energy with householders.

In Welland, the Niagara College of Applied Arts and Technology is incorporating Energy Conservation Week into its year-long campaign to produce a clean, energy-conscious campus.

In Hamilton, the Pensioners' Rights organization plans to set up a booth at a Social Action Fair to demonstrate to senior citizens how they can conserve both energy and money.

Companies such as Fibreglas Canada of Toronto, Ontario Paper Company of St. Catharines, Canadian Tire and Beaver Lumber across the province, and Chrysler in Windsor have all pledged support and are undertaking conservation projects.

Among others taking part are Honeywell, Ontario Hydro, Simpsons-Sears, Gulf Oil, Imperial Oil in Sarnia, BP Canada, Shell, Union Gas, Superior Propane, Texaco, Bell Canada, General Motors, Grand and Toy and Koffler Stores.

The Caledon Public Libraries in Bolton, Woodstock Public Library and Art Gallery, and King Township Public Library and Art Gallery, and King Township Public Library will display conservation literature, while schools and universities across the Province have requested conservation ideas from the Ministry of Energy so they can undertake their own projects.

Among the participating schools: Sir Wilfred Laurier University, Waterloo; University of Western Ontario, London; Erin District High School, Erin; Ontario College of Art, Toronto; Brighton Street School, Guelph; Bell Cairn Memorial public School, Hamilton; Hillcrest Public School, Orillia; McDougall Public School, Parry Sound; Listowel Christian School, Listowel; Newcastle Public School, Newcastle; Queen Elizabeth school, Sault Ste. Marie; and Spring Garden School in Willowdale.

Welland Hydro is co-operating with the Welland Chamber of Commerce in a conservation display during the city's Industrial Week, while the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Canadian Restaurant association, the Lumber and Building Materials Association of Ontario; Ontario Food Processor's Association, Ontario Motor League branches in St. Catharines, London and Kingston and Wallaceburg, Morrisburg and Prescott Chambers of Commerce have agreed to co-operate in the public information campaign.

In proclaiming Energy Conservation Week, Energy Minister Dennis R. Timbrell said: "We are moving the campaign beyond the educational information stage into an active participation stage."

The need to reduce energy consumption is becoming more critical now that our Province's overall energy bill is estimated at $7.5 billion a year. We want to cut a billion dollars off that bill by 1980. Energy Conservation Week is a way of stimulating the voluntary support necessary to achieve our goal."

CORTS looks at the problems and solutions

When a clear plastic bag, bulging with polluted water from nearby Lake St. John, was slapped down on the table in front of him during a public meeting in Orillia last year, Hal Hooke was slightly startled.

In his regular vocation as principal of Trent University's Julian Blackburn College in Peterborough, he might have dismissed the incident as a student prank. But in his role as chairman of the CORTS Advisory Committee meeting that day in Orillia, Mr. Hooke took the matter seriously. A promise was made to investigate the problem and it was duly noted in the CORTS 1975 annual report.

Literally born on the ice, in a ceremony attended by federal and provincial officials on the frozen Trent Canal in front of the Peterborough lift locks on February 20, 1975, CORTS - short for Canada-Ontario-Rideau-Trent-Severn - has held many public meetings along the 425-mile Rideau-Trent-Severn waterway and recreation corridor stretching from Ottawa to Georgian Bay.

Ideas and opinions expressed by almost everyone from housewives to marina owners and university professors, have been encouraged and kept flowing in an almost constant dialogue between the advisory committee and people living, working and playing along The Corridor, one of the most important waterways in North America.

The date, February 20, 1975, was a significant one for both Canada and Ontario. On that historic occasion an agreement was signed by the Canadian and Ontario governments calling for "The co-ordinated planning and development of a 425-mile long land and recreational corridor between Ottawa and Georgian Bay."

It was signed for the federal government by the Hon. Judd Buchanan, the then Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, while the Hon. Allan Grossman, Secretary for Resources development, while the Hon. Allan Grossman, Secretary for Resources Development at that time, signed for Ontario. Hon. Leo Bernier, Minister of Natural Resources and Hon. Hugh Faulkner, Secretary of State (acting as the local MP), were witnesses.

The Advisory Committee, with its members - five provincial and five federal appointees - chosen on an area or sectoral basis representing many areas within the Corridor, was formed at this time with Mr. Hooke as chairman. An Agreement Board was named simultaneously, chaired by Ontario's executive director of parks and with the director general of Parks Canada as vice-chairman. Appointments are for a one-year term.

The Agreement spelled out the organization of the CORTS program and set out guidelines for the committee such as the holding of regular public meetings throughout the Corridor and bringing problems to the attention of the Minister of Natural Resources.

It is no exaggeration to say that CORTS could not adequately function without the dedication and administrative ability of its three-member secretariat, working out of Peterborough where the Agreement was signed almost two years ago.

The director is Paul Wyatt, a former lands co-ordinator with the Ministry's Northeastern Region. He is assisted by Peter White, whose background is also planning, and their secretary, Hazel Gifford.

The trio are frequently on the move, setting up meetings and arranging administrative details. When asked about some of these details, Mr. Wyatt admitted to what he termed "a couple of basic problems."

"The recommendations from municipal officials are quite easy to deal with. They are mainly asking for direction--"How do I get some information on...?" or "Who should I contact in authority?", Mr. Wyatt said.

"In that essence we are a bit of an ombudsman, if you will, giving direction and maybe, in a sense, mediating on a solution. But the public tends to be concerned with their 50 by 100-foot lots and their boat slips. In other words, their immediate personal concerns."

Problems vary in each sector. For instance, in the Trent-Severn area, wake control has been frequently raised at meetings.

This year, the Advisory Committee is trying to get a full Corridor opinion in answer to specific questions, particularly boat speed and wake control, boating safety, and aquatic weeds throughout the Corridor, but particularly in the Kawarthas and the Trent-Severn and Rideau waterways.

Last year toll fees were the main issue. It was the first year this regulation was implemented, but according to Mr. Wyatt, after some alterations this issue has virtually died.

Mr. Wyatt said the other types of things are small, 'nitty gritty' concerns -- such as lights on islands for navigation and harbors of refuge.

"These are important, but they're not of total Corridor concern and therefore the remarks are usually passed along to the agency actually involved. And for that reason we ask representatives of the Ministry of Natural Resources and Parks Canada to be present at meetings. This tends to alleviate misunderstandings," he said.

"Obviously you can't have the whole government at a meeting. But you do get technical guidance, which in some cases the people are looking for."

Hall Hooke, the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, said, "For the first time, aircraft use of the water was mentioned as a problem. It appears that constant use of aircraft in a limited area created both conflict with boaters and excessive noise...."

The Committee has a good idea of public opinion along the Corridor and is well aware of the problems still to be resolved. Meanwhile, CORTS continues to do its job - most people think it's going to be a good job - but it can't work without continual public support.

No further gifts of polluted water are anticipated, but who knows what tomorrow will bring?

Scoring your Family lifestyle

OTTAWA - Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has announced his department's plans to distribute a self-scoring health lifestyle appraisal with October Family Allowances cheques.

"Your Lifestyle Profile" will enable individuals to determine for themselves the quality of their lifestyle and to see where improvement is needed. Approximately 3.6 million Canadians receive the cheques each month but it is hoped that more than this number will assess their health habits as others in the family become interested. For persons who are not cheque recipients, copies of the questionnaire are available from the Information Directorate, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

In November, a follow-up message called "Ways to Improve Your Lifestyle Profile" will offer recipients general advice on how to resolve their lifestyle problems.

"Your Lifestyle Profile" and "Ways to Improve Your Lifestyle Profile" are elements of Operation Lifestyle, a public education program developed by the department to encourage Canadians to assume greater responsibility for their own health. Earlier this year Mr. Lalonde introduced the Fit-Kit to help individuals estimate their levels of physical fitness and assist them in selecting activities appropriate to age, lifestyle and personal capacity. Later this month, Dialogue on Drinking, a national information program aimed at reducing the excessive use of alcohol, will be introduced. Other components of Operation Lifestyle will be announced later this year.

Cooking ... with Betty Thain

A cousin of mine, who lives in Toronto, is constantly searching for new recipes. She recently sent several pages of her favorites, and included in this collection was a recipe for "Sour Cream Coffee Cake" which immediately appealed to me. This is a delicious, moist, spice cake, which is best served warm on the day it is made. However, the cake freezes exceptionally well. If you have a bundt pan use it, but if not, use a medium sized angel cake tin.

Today I'm giving you Dorothy's Sour Cream Coffee Cake.

Sour Cream Coffee Cake

Cinnamon Nut Topping:

Mix together:

- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Sprinkle one half the cinnamon topping mix in the bottom of a greased angel cake tin. Cut 10 glacé or maraschino cherries in half and arrange cut side down over cinnamon topping mix. If you use maraschino cherries, drain and dry well.

Batter:

- 1 cup white sugar
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 2 eggs beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup commercial sour cream
- 1 teaspoon baking soda

Cream sugar and butter. Add beaten eggs and vanilla. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and add to egg mixture. Stir to blend well. Add soda to sour cream (use a larger container as this will foam). Add sour cream mixture to first mixture and blend.

Drop one half of this batter over cinnamon and cherry mix very carefully so that you do not rearrange the cherries. Spread batter to sides but do not smooth too much. Sprinkle on the rest of the brown sugar, cinnamon mix. Add the rest of the batter and smooth the top off carefully.

Bake one hour in a 350 degree F. oven. Remove from oven and let the cake rest a few minutes before cutting.

Producers meet to compare notes on modern maple syrup

Lanark County and District Maple Producers will host the 10th Annual Ontario Maple Syrup Producers meeting in Perth on Oct. 22 and 23.

The meeting will commence with registration at 9:00 a.m. at the Lions Hall in the fair grounds at Perth on Aug. 22. The meeting on the first day will be indoors. There will be discussions relating to the proposed new grants for maple syrup, tubing and evaporator research at Kempsville, and a new sugar bush fertilization project.

In the evening a banquet will be held. Claude Tardiff of the International Maple Syrup Institute will be the guest speaker. After the banquet entertainment will be provided by Cathy Barr of Lanark.

On Saturday, the meeting will move to Leonard Fulton's sugar bush, RR 1, Pakenham. Leonard has one of the most modern maple syrup operations in the province. Each year he boils sap from 2,700 taps. In addition he operates a pancake house at the sugar bush.

Equipment demonstrations including tubing washers, log splitters, vacuum systems, farm logging equipment, etc. will take place at Fultons on Saturday morning. Lunch will be available at noon at the pancake house. Ed Borczon, Forest Supervisor, Lanark, will conduct sugar bush management and logging demonstrations in a nearby woodlot.

Brien Paul, Lanark, President of the Ontario Maple Syrup Producers Association, invites all maple syrup producers and others interested in the maple industry to attend. He expects attendance will reach 150 or more.

The meeting will emphasize modern efficient ways to produce maple syrup and related products.

OTTAWA and Small Business

More power for the people

By KENNETH McDONALD

Canada is in political turmoil. There's a lack of public confidence in political institutions and political leaders. Citizens feel isolated from the political process as governments implement legislation which is often contrary to public opinion.

Both here and in the U.S., there is profound distrust of central governments. Too much power has passed from elected representatives to non-elected officials. Too often local Members of Parliament are nothing more than ombudsmen!

How are we going to strengthen the role of MPs and increase public confidence in the political system? The Canadian Federation of Independent Business sees the following two measures as being potentially influential.

The first, already passed into law, will take election financing out of the hands of central party organizations and their sources in big business and big unions.

The second measure, awaiting formal legislation, deals with freedom of public access to information on which the federal government bases its decisions. Withholding that information is the chief source of bureaucratic power. How can the Official Opposition, or members of parliamentary committees, offer constructive criticism when deprived of the relevant facts?

If an MP ignores the wishes of his or her constituents, it could be relatively easy for a group of angry citizens to take over a riding association and finance its own candidate.

"OKAY, DUCKS—THIS YEAR I WON'T MISS!"

Clever Chieftains Of Scotland

If you're like most parents, you think your children are pretty smart youngsters. The Scots do, too, and they have a phrase for it—"clever chieft" (clever child).

Famous for many years for its high standard of education, the small country of Scotland, with just over five million people, has more universities and colleges per head of population than any other country in the world.

There are eight main universities, four ancient and four modern. The oldest university in Scotland is St. Andrews, founded in the year 1411. Glasgow comes second (1451), Aberdeen third (1494), and Edinburgh later in 1582.

These four universities are all older than any university in England, with the exception of Oxford and Cambridge. In fact, when England, with 10 times the population of Scotland, had only two universities, Scotland had four.

The highest denomination of paper currency ever authorized in the world is the U.S. gold certificate for $100,000 bearing the likeness of former President Woodrow Wilson!

The highest quality paper made today contains cotton fiber. Each sheet has a crafted uniform beauty that makes type or printing look better. Each has a recognizable "snap" and crisp feel that says unmistakable quality!

Bill Smiley Political visions

By BILL SMILEY

THERE are quite a few big, black birds floating around these days. Or had you noticed?

No, they are not black geese on their way south. They are vultures. They may not look like it. They may more closely resemble political pundits, media manipulators, or triumphant Tories. But they are vultures.

They are scrawny and hungry as they circle impatiently, waiting for the moribund body to fall down and become a carcass on which they can fatten.

That staggering corpus on which their beady little eyes are fixed is the Liberal Party, which composes the government of this fair land at the moment.

A Gallup or some other poll revealed recently that the Liberals would receive only 29 per cent of the vote, should an election be held when the poll was taken.

Add to that the increasingly virulent tone of the media toward the prime minister, and a gaggle of fairly minor scandals involving prominent Liberals, and it would appear that the vultures will soon be gorging themselves.

There certainly is a faint stench arising from the Liberal party these days. But it is not the stench of death. It is more like the odour of a body that needs both a strong purgative and a good, hot bath.

I don't pretend to be a political seer. Nor do I owe my political prognostications to any political affiliation. In short, I don't give a diddle for any of them.

But it doesn't require more than a modicum of common sense to realize that the Liberal party is far from being on its last legs. Anyone who thinks otherwise is indulging in wishful fantasies or a form of self-hypnosis. That includes the political vultures. I think they are going to go right on being scrawny and hungry.

Remember, you read it here first. The Liberals may have absorbed a few stiff punches in the solar plexus, but they are a long way from going to the mat and being counted out.

Why? Use your head, man, or lady. Forget about the polls and the press. Nobody ever won an election with either, or both. People, not polls, elect governments. And people are the most unpredictable creatures in the universe. They don't base their votes on logic or reason. They base them on all kinds of crazy things.

They base them on emotions like greed and fear. They base them on glibness and charisma. They base them on such things as Margaret making an ass of herself on TV or Maureen having a hard time with her first baby.

In these days, when the tube is so vital in a politician's getting to the people, the latter base their votes, in many, many cases, on dazzle rather than dependability, on rhetoric rather than reliability.

A pity 'tis. 'Tis pity but 'tis true. When the crunch comes, who are you going to vote for? Earnest, youthful Joe, with his jowls jumping like a junior John Dief. Or suave, elegant Pierre of the Gallic shrug, the seemingly utterly reasonable approach, and the charm of a professional actor? Be honest, now.

Add to that a few other facts. Trudeau has the solid support of his party, if only because he has led it to two successful grabs at the gold ring. Clark was elected leader of the Tories by barely more than one half of the convention delegates.

Add again. Trudeau is a skilled and experienced politician. He has shown that he can be at the same time loyal to his henchmen and ruthless when need be. Clark is comparatively untried in the political arena, is rapidly gaining skill, but hasn't had a chance to be either loyal or ruthless. He hasn't dared.

Add some more. The government controls the purse strings. This means patronage and post offices and pension cheques. And don't tell me that's nineteenth century politics. It ain't. Look for some sudden benevolence by the government on the eve of election.

And again. Don't count too much on the prime minister's current unpopularity. Mackenzie King was one of the most cordially hated prime ministers we have ever had. He suddenly became very popular and won an election, when he introduced the baby bonus. See last paragraph.

Another fact. There are millions of die-hard Liberals in this country. They'd vote Liberal if King Kong or Ibi Amin (not much to choose there) were running for prime minister. What do you think they will do in an election? Roll over and play dead?

Add to this that Quebec, despite its disillusion with its own Liberal government, will go at least ninety per cent Liberal. They may not love Trudeau, but when it comes to a choice between a guy named Pierre and a guy named Joe, there is no choice, among French Canadians.

Trudeau will get a licking in the West, but that is not where elections are won or lost.

While it may be on the ropes, cut and bleeding, the Liberal party is a long, long way from being carried out of the ring, feet first.

Here's my prediction. Pierre Trudeau will eat Joe Clark for breakfast. If he doesn't, I'll eat three copies of the High River Times for my breakfast.

TODAY'S HEALTH

Bad-fitting shoes can cause health problems

by David Woods

If the shoe fits, wear it; if it doesn't, don't.

That's the advice given by foot specialists, who say that many of the things that go wrong with people's feet can be traced to poorly-fitting footwear.

And, when you consider that most North Americans have foot problems by the time they reach their 50s, it's clear that preventive medicine, for what the medical dictionaries coyly call "the terminal organ of the leg," begins in the shoe store.

Trouble is, once you're in the store, it may be tempting to opt for fashion before function. And some sales clerks may not always be too knowledgeable about fit. Like telling you the shoes may pinch now, but they'll be fine once they're "broken in."

Nonsense. Shoes should feel right the first time you put them on. And only you can be the judge of that.

Corns, calluses and bunions are caused, to a surprising extent, by ill-fitting shoes.

Actually, almost none of us need suffer corns; yet, most people do, at sometime or other, and sometimes permanently. The major cause:

intermittent pressure from foot-wear. And corns subjected to more chafing, or left untreated, become increasingly painful, and can affect nerves, and blood vessels, in the feet.

Bunions — swellings on either the big toe or the little one — are also caused by pressure. And the way to prevent them, again, is not to wear ill-fitting shoes.

Calluses, on the other hand (or, if you like, on the other foot) can develop at any area of the feet, and are a problem of undue wear and tear on a particular area. The answer is good posture leading to even weight distribution on the foot — something that, once more, may be aided by proper-fitting shoes.

There are, of course, foot problems caused more by lack of good hygiene than by what you wear. Athlete's foot, for instance, is something you get from other people's feet (and not just athletic ones). It should be treated by washing the feet in lukewarm water, and keeping them dry. Plantar warts, transmitted from viruses on the ground, are treated with special ointments, or sometimes, by surgery.

But, in general, good footwear is the first step towards good foot care.

Betty Thain Basic French Dressing

I like to keep this salad dressing in the refrigerator at all times. It is an excellent dressing as is, or you can add crumbled Roquefort, chopped herbs, chili sauce or mayonnaise. The possibilities are limitless. No need to choose from those miles of dressing in the supermarket. Make your own variations with this as a base. But don't forget to use it in the simplicity of its basic form. It's a relief from too much "gourmet" everything.

Basic French Dressing
Preparation Time: One Minute

1/4 cup vinegar (white)
1/4 cup salad oil
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Put all the above ingredients into a 10 ounce bottle and shake to mix.

Ontario wants to help you make the most of your Community Arena.

Community centres are the heart of the social, cultural and recreational life of many places in Ontario.

They have been built by people in the community who have contributed their money and their labour and they are one place that everyone can share equally.

Unfortunately, not all these centres were built to the same construction standards. Modern engineering studies have shown that some of them contain dangerous flaws which must be corrected immediately.

Happily, Ontario is able to help municipalities to do this with extra money from both the Community Recreation Centres Act and Wintario. In most cases, the people in the community need to raise only 25 per cent themselves.

Because we know some arenas are too old or too costly to fix up, we are also ready to work out a plan to help municipalities to build new ones.

If you would like to know how Ontario can help to fix up your community centre or build a new one, write to:

A variety of topics were discussed at the first public meeting held Wednesday, Oct. 20 in the town hall.

After Reeve T.C. Barton opened the meeting and introduced the councillors and Marilyn French, the new clerk-treasurer, the councillors told the audience of about 30 people what has been done in the community in the last two years.

Upon questioning about a new well for Madoc, Councillor Tom Deline said that a test was to be made on well number two, but a final report has not been made. The price for a new well was estimated by Mr. Deline at around $300,000 which would be partially paid by the province.

Well number one is considered good and the same for Well number two, but since it seems to drain a neighboring well, number two is only used three hours each day, he said.

The topic of a new sub-division in the west part of Madoc, was brought into discussion and Mr. Barton replied that it was an individual development. It was also stated that there would not be any water and sewage lines installed at the cost to the village. The developer would pay for this, said Mr. Deline.

Due to insufficient funds, not all the hills in the village received lowering and widening, said Councillor Joe Ash.

Four such places were scheduled for work, but only two were done this term. He also noted some newly paved streets and new sidewalks installed.

Mr. Ash also said he hopes the village will acquire a by-law enforcement officer. He or she would be responsible to stop double parking and other infractions of local laws.

Councillor Jim Watson said the village should look into developing more parking spaces for the downtown area. Mr. Deline noted from a recent survey he did. He stated that of the 59 places in the area to park, only 27 were in use. Mr. Barton stated that the merchants and their employees were the reason for the parking situation.

Local resident Keith Chambers said the village needs a by-law enforcement officer. However, Mr. Barton said that if people would complain to him, he would see what he could do.

The budget was discussed. The audience was told that the village was in good shape and if it needed to borrow money, there would be no problem.

Mr. Watson noted that the centennial of Madoc will take place in 1978 and asked

Community Centre may be in use by end of year

Though a definite date has not been set for the official opening of the new Community Centre, Tom Deline, chairman for the finance committee for the project said he hopes that the Centre will be in use some time in December. In any case, a definite schedule should be arranged by Dec. 9, he said.

Work at the site is progressing in order to have these dates met, he said. Thursday night, Oct. 28, the Arena Committee will be meeting with interested groups from the area who will want time in the new structure, he said. This meeting will be held in the council chambers.

Mr. Deline said the first operation will be the responsibility of the present Arena Committee, as it stands. "We said, it would carry itself. Now we have to prove that fact," said Mr. Deline.

Percy Nayler honored for birthday

Percy Nayler was guest of honor at a party of fun and games held in the Madoc Lawn Bowling clubhouse with the members of the Madoc Lawn Bowling on the occasion of his 90th birthday.

Gifts of a gilt-colored bowling ball, mounted on a base and suitably inscribed, also a money card, were presented during the evening.

At the close of the festivities, Mr. Nayler, honorary president of the club, bowled two ends to signify the close of the bowling season.

Sometime near the end of next month, (November), Mr. Deline predicted that the canvass for donations will be ended. There have been a number of people who said they would give more money in the fall, he said. The canvassers will also be asking people who they missed and those who promised more support, he said.

Mr. Deline estimated that the project is yet shy about $60,000, but this figure should be less since there has been a "substantial amount, in donated work by individuals."

He suggested that those in the community who have not yet seen the structure, should drive by it and take a look.

"People who were not interested in the past, are quite more interested in it now," said Mr. Deline. The committee needs as much support as they can get, he said.

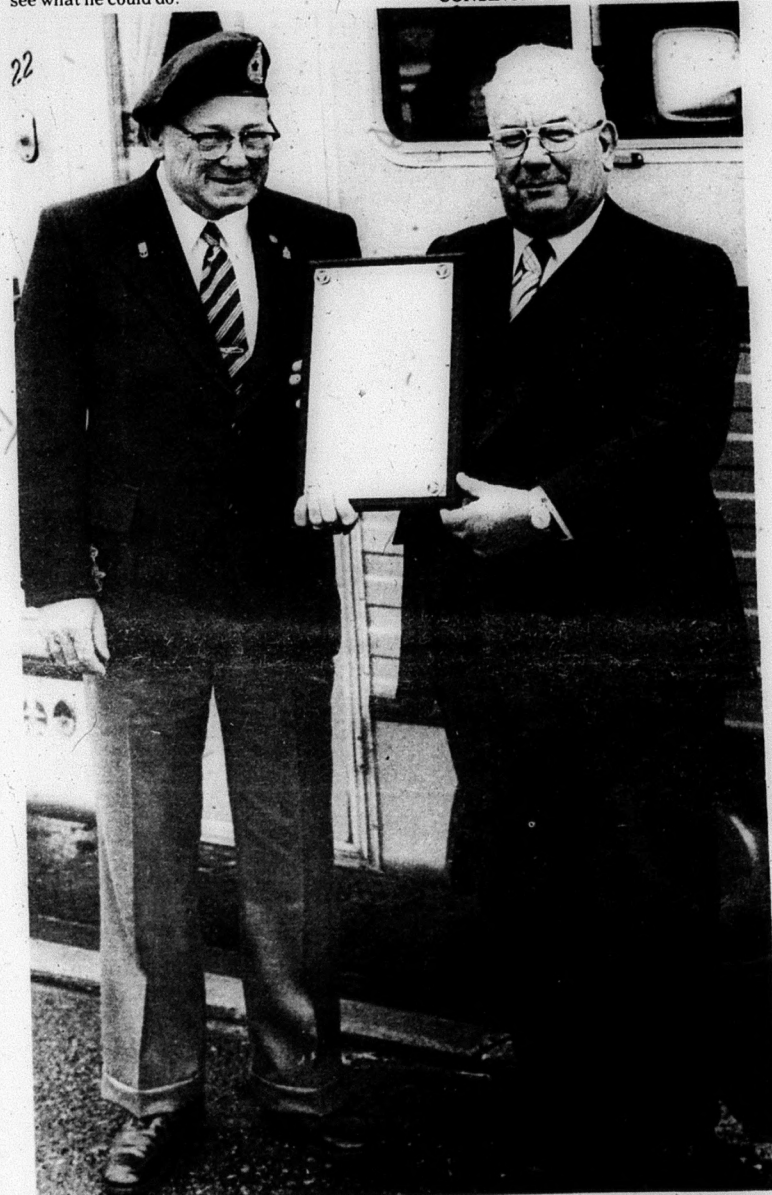

About the arena committee meeting Thursday, Oct. 28, Mr. Deline said they would like to get as much extra information about the groups which are not already known.

He also stated that the operation budget of the Centre, will be discussed and possibly finalized.

Mr. Deline said he would like to extend a "heartly thank you," to a group of enthusiastic young people in the community. He was referring to the Youth Encouraging Society (YES) group.

This is not just for their presentation of Twelfth Night but for their enthusiasm in all community events, he said.

Mr. Deline also said that the committee has applied for the advance from the Wintario Grant. It was announced earlier this fall, that Wintario will provide grants to municipalities repairing or constructing new community centres.

George Widdows, president of the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, received a plaque from Clarke Rollins, MPP, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Legion in Canada. The presentation was made Wednesday, Oct. 20.

Over 200 students receive diplomas

The graduation exercises for Centre Hastings Secondary School was held Saturday, Oct. 23.

The spotlight for awards and graduations were on the students for completion of their four and five years at school.

The ceremony started around 7.30 p.m. with the students proceeding into the auditorium to the tune CHSS Graduation, which was composed by Jennifer Aylsworth.

After various greetings from the Principal, Bob Henderson, Trustee James Spry and Head Boy, Scott Simpson, as well as the introduction of the platform guests, there were the presentations of the Secondary School Graduation Diplomas. There were 165 students receiving this diploma.

Following this was the presentation of the Honor Graduation Diplomas which were given to 61 students.

The presentation was then made to the students who won scholarships, trophies and prizes for their school achievements. Roy Spannbauer received the most awards for his year, taking home eight presentations. Evelyn Kotulski, receiving five awards was the highest girl presented. She also was the recipient of a university scholarship award from Queen's University where she is presently.

Miss Kitulski also brought honor to the local school for having had the highest marks in the entire County of Hastings, as well as receiving an Ontario Scholarship. Due to her honors, Miss Kotulski was chosen as Valedictorian.

Following the Benediction, by Capt. J.H. Thompson, a reception and dance ended the evening.

Also mentioned were the students who received their certificates of training which were given in June. Receiving this award were: Paul Boccassio, John Bovard, Laura Casselman, James Chalk, David Cole, Donna Courneyea, James Dafeo, Joyce Henwood, Rose Hood, William Huffman, Paul Maillou, Roy Morgan, Dale Post, Stephen Reynolds, Lois Thompson, Dale Vilneff and Alexander Wilman.

Around the town

Ron Hiuser

To get to the point of this column is quite difficult at this time. There were many events in this community which I could talk about, but the real question for me at this time is which I should talk about.

Should I mention the Winter Carnival Committee meeting, the Public Meeting? Is the Annual Federation of Agriculture Meeting worth commenting by myself? What should I write about?

I meet people every day and usually one person says, "oh, you're the one who writes that column in the paper." The obvious reply to that is: "yes, I'm the one, whether I like it or not."

Now, don't get me wrong. I don't mind writing this little tid-bit for the paper. It is one way and probably the only place where I have a captive audience.

What I write does not generally comment on local activities, but in Around The Town, I'm given the opportunity to say what comes into my mind and not what people tell me.

To say the least, at times writing this is quite the chore. It is a consumption of time and energy. Much like everyone else's occupation, sometimes, being news editor turns out to be a job. But I can't complain all the time, because this occupation has its high points.

Where else can a person, a complete stranger to these parts, move in and become completely involved with activities? Where else can a person experience learning about farming, arenas, and local politics?

When it is broken down, there are not too many occupations being offered in this area, (or anywhere for that matter) where one person can do all these things.

I'm not saying that other jobs are not as interesting but what I am stating is that my occupation is quite unusual in its realm of responsibilities.

Before I get too far along there are a few specific points about the future events of the area.

I heard a rumor that the Madoc Township council is not planning to hold a public meeting. If one compares what happened at the public meeting for the village, it becomes obvious that many items of public interest are discussed.

At this public meeting for the village, I was unable to attend since I was under the weather that evening. From Jean Asselstine, though, it is clear that the local council now knows the people are concerned about their actions.

I'm sure, that if the township council was to hold a meeting, the same result should follow.

Public meetings were the order of the day a few years ago. It was set down by law and each area had to have one. This has been changed, but they still provide the best opportunity for the public to make their views known.

Centennial debated

the public what plans should be made.

Mr. Deline mentioned that a committee was organized and they will be receiving a grant from Wintario of $2,000 for celebrations. Heritage Canada will also be presenting a plaque to Madoc.

A crest commemorating the village has been suggested said Doug Pigden. O'Hara's Mill may be printed on it, he said. Match book covers, coins, and possibly other items may be used, he said.

There are about 12 organizations working on the centennial plan.

Discussion was held about Lakeview Cemetery and the lack of land. Mr. Watson said he wondered if the village should take on a new cemetery or expand at the present site. He said it would probably be easier to expand the existing area.

Mr. Barton announced that there will be 14 more Senior Citizen's Units to be built. These units will possible be built near the present facility on Wellington St. It was mentioned though, that the units are too far from the downtown area.

Reeve Barton said that he did a survey of the present units and found only one resident who said the distance was too far. Mr. Barton also said the person had a bad heart.

The future of the old arena was mentioned. It can be used for anything except curling and hockey, the audience was told. If the present council is re-elected, said Mr. Barton, the old arena would be put to good use.

The question was raised by Mel Caverly about if there was not enough money raised for the new Community Centre where would it come from. The money will have to come from the three municipalities, but Mr. Watson said if all the pledges were received, there would be no problem with the funds.

When asked about a grant for the clean-up of Deer Creek, Reeve Barton said he did not know of such a grant except for the swimming area. Mr. Barton suggested that the clerk-treasurer contact the Moira Conservation Authority and see if the creek could be cleaned.

ORGANIZED CLUBS?

Over 80 per cent bused into school

By JAN GRAHAM

Centre Hastings, unlike most Hastings County schools, has more than 80 per cent of its enrolment bused in from the surrounding communities. With the majority of students leaving the school at 3.15 p.m., it is impossible to organize clubs and activities to meet after school.

Faced with this problem, the administration initiated a tutorial-activity period, (T.A. period). This occurs every Tuesday and Friday for 45 minutes in the morning.

The T.A. period allows all students bussed and local to participate in school events and clubs. The student is also free to approach any teacher for extra help in any subject. With mid-term reports being issued Nov. 1, more and more students are using the T.A. periods for this.

There is a CHSS club to suit almost every interest. One of the largest is the Outers' Club, which caters to the energetic student with canoe trips, orienteering events and cross-country skiing.

CHSS also offers such interesting groups as geology, woodworking and taxidermy.

A very active group in the school is the Spirit Club. This group is formed of Grade 12's and 13's interested in promoting school spirit through pep rallies assemblies and other interesting activities.

These clubs are sponsored by the School Government, (IHC). The IHC is responsible for school-community projects such as the Winter Carnival and Community Centre fund raising.

Bob Henderson, principal of Centre Hastings, said he feels "the T.A. periods contribute a great deal towards a relaxed school atmosphere".

By giving the students a chance to enjoy the facilities Centre Hastings has to offer, the T.A. periods seem to promote a better attitude towards school.

At a meeting of the Club Executive on Wednesday, Oct. 20, it was unanimously decided to cease operating as of that date. Lack of parental support and limited financial help were the reasons for this decision.

It was felt that the club could not operate successfully unless enough people were available to form an executive and committees to run the club in a proper manner.

Other clubs in the area survive only because their local councils and community groups support their efforts to provide recreation for the youth of the areas in which they are located.

At this time the past executive members of the club would like to thank the local Canadian Legion for their help over the years.

The IOOF installed its new officers Saturday night, Oct. 23 in the Kiwanis Centre. The officers are [l-r] Mr. and Mrs.

New officers installed in IOOF Oct. 20

On Wednesday, Oct. 20, at the regular meeting of Madoc IOOF, 179, the installation of officers was carried out by Brother Elwood Hamilton DDGM of District 45 and his team from Springbrook Lodge 429. DDGW was Brother Tucker from Stirling Lodge 239.

The elected officers installed were JPG Brother Bill Sprague; NG Ken Yarrow; VG Harold Bailey, RS Tom Ross; FS R.A.

Red Hewitt, a penalty timekeeper at Maple Leaf Gardens, was visiting his cousin Bob Murray of Madoc recently. Mr. Hewitt was the timekeeper in the Canada versus Czechoslovakia, in the first game of the final series, Sept. 15.

That was the game where the USA referee, Gordie Lee, was replaced by Swedish referee Ove Dahlberg after receiving 17 stitches to the forehead. The Swede borrowed the skates of John D'mico, which were a half size too small. Mr. Hewitt is holding the tattered skate used in the contest.

Woods; Treasurer, Leo Coveney.

A full seat of officers were present for installation.

At this meeting it was decided to donate $500 to the new community centre fund. Lunch was served.

First session held in program

The first session of the Planning for Retirement program, offered by the Extension Division of Loyalist College, was held Oct. 7, at the Ann Street Education Centre in Belleville.

Don Thrush, the course leader, notes that 39 people registered, including many couples. For a course that is now offered for the fifth time, it is clear that this program is serving a real need for the people in the Quinte area.

Mr. Thrush indicates that there are two main reasons for the success of this program. The first is that the discussion leaders at each session are not only experts in their fields, but have the ability to hold the attention of an audience. The second reason is that the setting at the Education Centre is non-academic and strictly formal. Questions from the participants are encouraged, and in this way, concerns about retirement are shared.

The winter semester of the pre-retirement course will start again sometime in late January or early February, 1977.

Information of markets important

It is important for farmers to have information concerning the world markets, said Grace Stalker, member of the executive of the Federation of Agriculture and representative for the federation for this area.

There has been a major change in the family farming aspect, she told about 30 people at the annual meeting in Ivanhoe, Thursday, Oct. 21. Before, farmers did not have to worry about the future markets, and they, for the most part, stayed at home, she said. Now, farmers have to learn what is happening around the world and how this affects the local, provincial and world market trends. Mrs. Stalker noted the fishing situation off of Peru and how this affected the price of fertilizer for the farmer.

There are presently two things farmers will have to watch in the near future, she pointed out. One is concerning tax reform and secondly, an income stabilization program. "These will change the future of the farmers."

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) will be making its voice known to the provincial commission concerning tax reform, she said.

One of the proposals made by the government was to have the taxes on the farm land and buildings paid by the government, while the farmer pays on his house and lot. Mrs. Stalker gave results from a survey done in Perth County earlier this year by the OFA.

The question asked over 1,000 farmers was whether or not they were aware of the property tax reform proposal. After being told of the reform, the farmers said there was no way they would want the government to pay the taxes on the land. It was almost unanimous, she said.

The farmers felt, she said, that the government may want to have more control over the land, if they paid for the tax. This would possibly lead to more infractions by the general society if the reform was implemented.

Mrs. Stalker said that the government was not planning this reform as some "dark scheme" to control the land.

She said that reform was needed but that the surface has only been scratched. There are presently many factors concerning the value of land and these should be standardized for farmers. One such plan, suggested by the OFA is base the land tax on the soil capability of producing, she said.

A farmer's residence cannot be separated from the rest of the farm. There is no comparative value for this, she said.

There are many questions to which there are not answers as yet, Mrs. Stalker noted. What would happen if the farmer did not keep up his taxes? To this, no answer has been attainable from the government if the proposal was accepted.

From most of the farmers in the survey, Mrs. Stalker stated they want to pay their own taxes, but also they wanted a fair return for their produce. "They want to pay their way," she said.

Another question dealing with income stabilization was also mentioned by Mrs. Stalker. The first legislation proposed in Queen's Park by Bill Newman the minister responsible for agriculture, was defeated by the New Democratic Party and the Liberals.

Mrs. Stalker noted that the three organized groups representing provincial farmers, the Christian Farmers Federation wanted no part of the last income proposal; the National Farmers Union did not accept it; whereas the OFA had a different plan.

Mr. Newman, said Mrs. Stalker, is planning to propose another income stabilization bill to the legislature in this session. This will effect the farmer for a long time to come, she noted.

In the OFA plan, there would be no commodity excluded but it would be completely voluntary to join the scheme, she said.

This would not be crop insurance. The plan would be based upon insurance schedule, the cost to produce would be agreed upon, and if this was more than anticipated, the farmer would receive a refund, she said.

Under this scheme, there would be a negotiation committee formed between the farmers and the government to establish prices.

If more provinces got involved in similar plans, the federal government will have to get involved, she said.

Mrs. Stalker assured the audience that the OFA is not against marketing boards, but sometimes they cannot get the price the farmers want.

Danceathon termed successful

For the premier event, it was termed by organizers as "successful." Betty Pyear, a teacher at Centre Hastings Secondary School, said the dance-a-thon held Friday, Oct. 22, will be giving money raised to the tri-areas of Madoc, Marmora and Tweed.

There were about 50 students, in couples, and singles who participated in the 12 hour dance. It started at noon and completed at midnight.

Mrs. Pyear said she did not know how much money they were going to raise, but she estimated the figure will be around $200. The event was sponsored by House One.

The students had to dance non-stop for 12 hours. The only break a student could take, she said, was to go to the bathroom. The dancers bumped and hustled to records and tapes until 9 p.m. when at that time, a live band played. Mrs. Pyear said the Kiwanis Club paid for 50 per cent of the cost of the band while House One covered the balance.

Prizes were awarded to the best couple who danced until midnight; and the best single, male and female. Each were given $10, she said.

CHSS takes first loss of year

By JIM AIRHART

The Centre Hastings Secondary School senior football played a bad game of football as Moira Trojans defeated them 35-14. With the win Moira finishes in first with Centre Hastings, second.

"We stunk the place out," was the comment made by head coach Barry Pyear, after the game. "Our offence and defence didn't have their usual game," he added.

Scoring the two touchdowns for Madoc were Joe Brooks and Blaine Wickens. Randy Trumble scored a two point conversion on the Brooks' touchdown.

With the loss to Moira, Centre Hastings must await the outcome of the game between Trenton and Bayside, to see who they play on Friday, Oct. 29, at 2 p.m. in Madoc. It is a semi-final playoff game and if the Centurions win it will go on to the Bay of Quinte final.

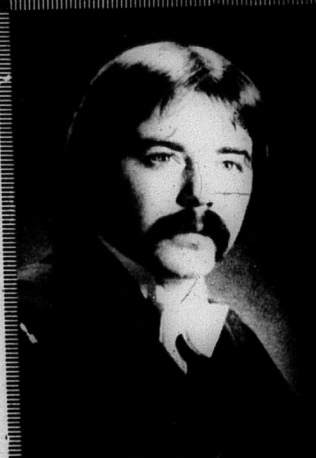

Milk producers sponsoring dance

The Hastings County Milk Producers are sponsoring a banquet and dance organized by the Hastings County Milk Committee for Oct. 30. The event will be held in the Kiwanis Centre, Madoc, starting at 7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased in advance at $5 per person which includes entertainment and flowers for the women.

There were 200 tickets available and the deadline for the sale was Oct. 22.

In return for a hide the hunter will receive a blaze orange hat and for a jaw he will be given a crest. These are important programs which need your support. Hides and jaws may be turned in at any Ministry of Natural Resources Office as well as the Frankford Fish and Game Club.

Mabel Tapley took the Ladies High Single with 221 and the High Triple with 566, during the Oct. 4, Monday Night Bowling.

The Men's High Single went to Stan Asselstine with 258, and 687 for the High Triple.

After just completing a 12 mile walk from Cooper, a some-what tired Jerry Whiteman relaxes over a cup of coffee. The walkathon was held to raise funds for the Intermediate D Hockey team, The Cooper Canucks.

Jo-Ann Stevenson, co-owner, said the bowlers actually raised $76 but the Bowl promised $100 to the project from the evening.

This was the second special evening held by the Madoc Bowl. The first one in April also brought $100 towards the Centre. And there will probably be another, she said.

A specific date for the next one has not been set, but she said she expects it will be around Christmas.

Mrs. Stevenson said that many people who bowled that evening did not know, the proceeds would be going to the Centre. But once they did, they seemed to bowl an extra game, she said. "I wish I knew a better way to get people here," for such evenings, she said.

Community forum helps decide a village's future

.... HASTINGS - An event unique to this area was held in the village of Hastings, Saturday, drawing an estimated 200 village and district residents.

A community forum, sponsored by the Hastings and District Chamber of Commerce and the Institute of Cultural Affairs, drew the local residents in an effort to pin down the problems facing the village. Also on the agenda during the day-long event were discussions on how the problems could be rectified, leaving the village a better place to live.

Hundreds of such forums have been held both in Canada and around the world in recent years. Institute of Cultural Affairs representatives guide local group leaders in running the forum. The day also produced a history of the village and a song written by local residents.

community forum held at Hastings Saturday. Over 200 village and area residents attend the day-long event.

Thoughtful leader

Albert Preston was one of the group leaders for the day. Their task was to lead the participants in a discussion of the problems facing the village and the solutions that were possible.

Studios MPP

A studios Russell Rowe, MPP for Northumberland, was one of the day's special guests. The Speaker of the House participated in the discussions in the workshops, offering his own views on the problems facing the community.

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmira, Ont. N3B 2C7

This corner has been severely chastized for last week's column suggesting that Anthony Abbot, the new minister of consumer and corporate affairs, is myopic in his outlook on farm marketing boards.

"You are supposed to be an experienced reporter," a letter from Ottawa stated. "You did not quote some other portions of Mr. Abbot's speech which gave some reasons why he wants to take a closer look at the operation of some marketing boards."

"Mr. Abbot said he was puzzled as to why consumers in British Columbia can drive long distances to the United States, buy groceries and drive home again with substantial savings."

Yes, Mr. Abbot did say that. But I cannot see the reason for him being puzzled. A great many things are cheaper in the United States than they are in Canada simply because there are more people in the United States than in Canada.

The goods can be produced cheaper in the U.S. because the market potential exceeds 200 million. In Canada, we are dealing with a population of less than 25 million. Even a rudimentary knowledge of economics suggests that the more goods that are produced, the cheaper the unit cost. And that's why so many things are cheaper across the 49th parallel.

Why point the finger only at food?

And why, the letter asks, did I not add what Mr. Abbot said about being fair to farmers?

Okay, I'm sorry. I apologize.

Mr. Abbot said: "It is fundamental that we must be fair to agricultural producers who rightly expect a decent level of income from their production. But to say that the consumer equally has a right to reasonable prices, nutritious food should not be controversial."

Right on, Tony. Just remember, though, that when farm produce leaves the farm gate it is nutritious as nature meant it to be. It isn't the farmer who processes it and extracts all the goodness so that "enrichment" has to be added before the consumer gets it.

And don't lay all the blame on the processor, either. It is the consumer who demands quick-and-easy, processed foods. What the consumer demands, the consumer gets, it seems.

Which is all the more reason farmers are sitting behind the eight ball. The consumer gets what he or she wants but the farmer is the thirteenth piglet at feeding time because less than six people in 100 are actively engaged in farming these days.

To be brutally frank, farmers no longer have a political clout. Consumers do, mind you. Everybody is a consumer and consumers have a lot of votes.

To suggest, as Mr. Abbot has, that as a general rule the aim of his department is to allow the market to govern itself "by the impersonal forces of competition" seems to be in direct opposition to his boss, Mr. Trudeau.

Was it not Mr. Trudeau who said just a little less than a year ago on television that the free market system in Canada has failed? Didn't he say something like that?

Impersonal forces of competition, indeed!

If all farmers are forced to return to the so-called free marketplace, then you will see multi-national conglomerates stepping up their efforts to control the production of food in this country. You will see them overtly forcing their way into big farming operations clean across Canada and putting the small farmer right out of business.

And if Mr. Abbot and his department think that there is a ripoff in the market place now, wait until big business takes over.

If marketing boards manipulate the market place — which has been suggested by many people who should know better — then watch the degree of manipulation when big business wants to make money and has effectively squeezed out all competition.

I'm not, as has been said in a few letters, the great champion of marketing boards. I'd like to know a better way to get farmers a better deal. But until now, I haven't heard a word that convinces me that marketing boards for farm products are evil.

Until a better idea comes along, I stick with supporting farmers in their efforts to bring order out of chaos by the formation of marketing boards and even supply management if that's what it takes to get a reasonable return for the farmer.

Holstein breeders shows draw international visitors

High quality breeding was evident among the 158 Holsteins shown by 75 exhibitors on Friday, October 8, 1976, at the West Central Ontario Championship Holstein Show in Erin where the top animals from the area covered by the ten counties east of Oxford and west of York competed for district honors. Visitors from Australia, Italy and the United States were among the large interested ringside. Douglas Gregson, Hillsburgh, won the Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor banners. Oak Knoll Gina, the second prize three-year-old was one of the animals which helped Gregson win these two awards.

Judge David Houck, Gormley selected from the female championship lineup, the first prize aged cow shown by Rowntree Farms Ltd., Brampton. Winchester Marquis Topsy, who was Reserve Grand Champion at Madison, Wisconsin, a week earlier, is a strong, powerful cow with a very desirable, firmly attached udder with which she won the trophy for best uddered Holstein. The very stylish first place four-year-old, Lantland Hagen Lisa, shown by R.F. Brown, Paris, received Reserve Grand Champion honors. Lisa, also a contender for best udder, typed in very well with the Grand Champion female. She is tall, stylish with an exceptionally good udder. R.F. Brown also received the Paul Ekstein Trophy for Junior Champion, Browndale Fury Lib, a tall stylish, Ideal Fury Reflector daughter who was the first prize Senior Yearling heifer. The first prize junior yearling, A Mors Nugget Polly was shown by W.J. Proud, Oakville, Ontario. This dairy, deep, stylish daughter of Bond Haven Nugget was named by Judge Houck as Reserve Junior Champion.

R.F. Brown and T. Cowan, Ohio, are the joint-owners of the first prize senior calf, International Nugget Mona. This Bond Haven Nugget daughter was the winner of the calf class a week earlier in Madison.

The first prize yearling bull, International Design was shown by R.J. Stewart, Bolton. Design, sired by Burtshill Ladysman was named Grand Champion Bull.

He was named champion over the well balanced, smooth first prize bull calf exhibited by Bertram Stewart, Hornby; Harry Moore, Terra Cotta and Agro Bros. Ltd., Waterdown who received the Reserve award for Agro Acres Announcer, the winner of the bull calf class sired by Puget Sound Highmark. The first prize junior bull calf described by the judge as having tremendous height and stretch with a strong loin and top was Mardix Supreme Stylemaster. This Apache Citation Stylemaster son was shown by George E. Dixon, Georgetown.

M.D. Wingrove, Campbellville, is the proud owner of the first prize two-year-old Allangrove Unique Mary sired by Agro Acres Unique was the grand Champion female at the Wentworth Black and White show, September 25, 1976. Judge Houck commented on the size and power of Mary and her nearly perfect udder. The first prize three-year-old exhibited by the Danice Syndicate, Glanworth, was Hazel Wood Marquis Danice, a daughter of Agro Acres Marquis Ned, and All-Canadian two-year-old nominee for 1975. The tall, powerful, good uddered female, Beckhaven Starlite Governess shown by Donald F. Becker, Ayr, was the winner in the Dry Cow class.

Douglas Gregson won the Claude Picket Trophy for the first prize Breeder's Herd as well as a trophy presented by Agro Bros. for the first progeny of dam of Oak Knoll Rena Empress. The premier sire award was won by the ever popular, Rosafe Citation R. The trophy presented by Spring Farms, Streetsville, for the best cow bred by the exhibitor in the mature class was presented to Claude Picket on the second prize mature cow, Pickland Citation Bell. Robred Fobes Fairy shown by Spring Farms demonstrates that correct type and production are closely related. Fairy was the second prize dry cow and the winner of the BCA trophy presented by Brubacher Bros., Guelph. In 305 days she produced 21,360 lbs. milk, 1,129 lbs. fat with a 5.29 per cent test or BCA indices of 196 per cent for milk and 282 per cent for fat.

Packaging standards to change

All products that are hazardous, if digested, should be packaged in child resistant containers, according to the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) Consumer Advisory Panel. This is one of several recommendations that the panel produced at a meeting in Toronto on Tuesday, October 12, 1976, which was called to discuss the draft new edition of CSA Standard Z76.1 - Performance of Child Resistant Packaging. It is law in Ontario that all solid prescription drugs be contained in child proof packages. CSA has been certifying enclosures to ensure that they meet the standard. The panel would like this program broadened to include all substances that may be defined as hazardous such as, furniture polish, household cleaners and other toxic materials.

The panel also recommended that the test methods in the draft Standard be changed to simulate more realistic conditions.

"Part of our testing includes children trying to open the packages," explains Peter James spokesman for CSA. "The Standard calls for children to be seated at tables and chairs while attempting to open the enclosures. The panel felt that the testing would be more effective if the kids were not sitting at tables but were allowed to wander around or crawl on the floor."

CSA also tests adults ranging in age from 18 to 45, to ensure that they will be able to open the packages. The panel suggested that this group be extended to include senior citizens.

The Consumer Panel endorsed a program to educate people on the need to keep toxic materials away from children. One member of the panel said, "It's really up to parents and grandparents to make sure that all dangerous substances are kept out of the reach of children."

"The panel is also urging manufacturers to give more thought to developing more efficient child resistant packages," says Mr. James. "In general, the panel members are happy with the program but, they feel that some improvements could be made, such as, issuing warnings or using color coding on the packages to warn the public of the danger."

Fall notes

By BILL SMILEY

A FEW fall notes of superlative unimportance. My elder grandson, Pokey, is now, at two and a half years, in the pre-Kindergarten Class at the day-care centre he attends. He gets very annoyed when someone, needing, says: "Oh, you're in the Senior Toddlers' class now."

With a curl of the lip, he retorts vehemently, "No! I in pre-Kindergarten." Even at that age, there's an immense concern with status. To the Senior Toddlers, the Junior Toddlers are just punks. To the pre-Kindergarteners, the Senior Toddlers are practically babies.

You remember how it was? If you were in Grade 9 at school, it was the supreme insult if someone asked if you were in Grade 8, back with all those little kids.

It was the same in the service. When you joined, you were a raw, ignorant rookie. In six months, you were looking with tolerant scorn at the new recruits. When you finally got your wings, you looked down from Olympus at those mere children who were starting their training.

Then you went overseas, and were suddenly a raw, ignorant rookie again. After operational training, which ensured that you were a dashing fighter pilot, you were posted to a squadron, and learned to your dismay that you were just a "sprog," the term for a raw, ignorant rookie.

Same thing as a prisoner of war. You'd just been through a fairly traumatic experience, and a very dramatic one, being shot down, captured, perhaps being beaten up. You got to a prison camp, and were looked at with the utmost contempt by old-timers (of perhaps 23) who had been shot down in such exotic places as Crete or Yugoslavia or Norway, and had been "in the bag" for three or four years. You felt like a five-year-old on his first day at school.

Back to Pokey. At day-care, they gave him a psychological label that mildly amused his mother, infuriated his gran, and delighted his grandfather. It was "Sneaky Aggressive." It doesn't sound too nice, but he's tiny for his age, and has to look after himself somehow. What it means, I gather, is that when some bigger kid has pushed you around, you wait until he's not looking, then sneak up and bite him on the ear, or anything else that's handy.

WELL, the postal workers are at it again. After one of the most futile strikes ever seen in Canada, they settled, a year ago, for a 29 per cent package, far above the maximum allowed by the AIB. Others, teachers, mill workers, were rolled back, while the uncivil servants of our postal system kept their loot.

As I write, they are holding rotating (and illegal) walk-outs, cocking a snook at government injunctions, and acting like the spoiled children of rich parents. Maybe they've been coddled too long. I'm not yet at the point where I would single out every tenth man or woman in the postal department and shoot the person. But I'm getting there. If Trudeau were smart, he'd call back Bryce Mackasey, eat humble pie, and kill two birds with one stone.

I am ambiguous toward the postal people, which takes some of the sting out of my attack. Most of those in small towns are friends and sometimes neighbors of the people they serve. They're friendly, reasonably courteous and as efficient as the system, one of the most inefficient in the country, will let them be.

It's in the bigger towns and cities, where there is no personal contact between servers and served, that the militancy among postal workers is fostered. The workers feel themselves mere cogs in a big machine, not individuals. The public doesn't give a damn about them, as long as it gets its mail on time. Therein lies revolution, and always has.

But I'm getting a little ticked off with labor in general in this country, along with a hell of a lot of other people who once supported it. We have one of the rottenest histories of strikes in the world, over the last few years.

Even the British working man, for many years a real bearcat when it came to unions and strikes, has realized there is a point of no return, and is co-operating with government in an attempt to slow inflation in the U.K., by limiting demands for pay boosts.

Not so Canadian labor. It's "Gimme! Gimme! Gimme!" Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I think there's something wrong with the values of a country in which a plumber makes more than a public health nurse, a meat-cutter makes more than a minister.

In fact, I'm so fed up with labor that if my own union, the teachers' federation, asked me to go on strike over some real or fancied grievance, my first reaction would be: "Drop dead."

Where there is injustice, it must be rectified. But where there is only greed, getting as much as you can, and giving as little as possible, I've had enough. And that applies to sex and sympathy, as well as labor.

LAST item in these futile fall notes. For two weeks I've been wearing a magnetic bracelet which is supposed to relieve my arthritis.

I'd have been just as far ahead to stick an onion in my ear, and go out and swing, by the tail, a dead cat at the moon, like Huck Finn. A colleague suggested this. He's right.

It's a good idea to label all the circuits in a fuse box. Do this by disconnecting circuits one at a time and checking to see what doesn't work.

By KENNETH McDONALD

Productivity has become an overworked word. Politicians and economists give the impression that improving it will solve everything. Yet the accepted definition (output per employee) is highly misleading. The term "productivity" needs to be defined differently.

Measuring output solely in terms of employees' productivity implies an automatic bias toward large, capital-intensive firms. Through special concessions — capital cost allowances and fast write-offs — the tax system reinforces this bias by encouraging these firms to replace men with machines.

If productivity were measured as output in terms of capital employed, measurements would be biased in favour of small firms which are labour-intensive. Comparing the productivity of big and small businesses is like comparing apples to oranges.

Any form of monopoly power will produce apparent gains in productivity. Acquiring or merging with competing companies and thus improving profit through higher prices will appear to raise productivity. So will creating barriers to the entry of new ventures. So will the proliferation, under the impact of massive advertising, of consumer products which have only superficial differences in name and packaging.

TODAY'S HEALTH

Take these precautions and avoid home accidents

by David Woods

Many of us tend to think of accidents as mishaps that occur in the air, on water or on the highway. We consider them dramatic events we read about in the newspapers. Understandably so.

After all, despite the fact that about four in 10 of all accidents happen in the home, the misfortune that your neighbor has fallen off a ladder, or hammered his thumb into the wall, is hardly the stuff of which headlines are made.

Nonetheless, many home accidents are serious — and most are avoidable.

Fires and poisonings, for example — the two most common causes of injury in the home — are often due to carelessness. Fire is frequently caused by the careless use of matches or cigarettes; poisoning by careless storage or labelling.

But a less obvious, though frequent source of danger, is the home handyman who may actually do more damage than he sets out to repair.

For instance, painting jobs done indoors should take place where there's proper ventilation to lessen the risks either of fire or of inhaling noxious fumes. Paint materials should be kept out of the way of children and should be properly labelled, rather than being kept in odd containers that may be mistaken for something else.

The outdoor painter should check that ladders are securely anchored, and that they lean on something that won't give way under stress. All painters should take the precaution of reading the instructions on the container before they start work, and they should remove all paint from the skin (and any object that wasn't meant to be painted) afterwards.

Other home hazards include:

Electricity: If you must tangle with wires and plugs, switch off the main power before you begin. Don't overload points and circuits, and be aware of the dangers of superconductors like water and metal.

Water: With home plumbing repairs, it's again advisable to switch off the water supply. If you're soldering, you'll need good ventilation. And if you're ambitious enough to try welding, goggles and a face mask will cut down the danger from glare and flying sparks.

Hobbies: Taking up carpentry, photography, or chemistry can be relaxing, but they can also be dangerous if you don't know how to use the equipment. Take courses, or ask someone who does know.

With a little care and planning, most home accidents could be prevented.

A pamphlet on Hobbies and Accidents — Play it safe around the home is available free of charge from the Health Resource Centre, Communications Branch, Ontario Ministry of Health, Hepburn Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1S2.

Musical Ride is back at the Royal Horse Show

TORONTO - The RCMP Musical Ride, one of the world's most famous and colorful equestrian spectacles, is back at the Royal this year after a two-year absence. This contemporary link with the original Force which maintained law and order in Canada's early Northwest, will perform at eight evening and six matinee performances of the Royal Horse Show, November 12-20 at the Royal Coliseum, Exhibition Place, Toronto.

Visitors to this year's Royal Horse Show will see 32 men in their familiar scarlet tunics, broad brimmed felt hats, long brown Strathcona riding boots and yellow-striped blue-black riding breeches. Mounted on smartly groomed black horses with crimson-topped lances in their right hand, they will perform precision movements derived from cavalry drill with the utmost in timing, control and co-ordination. This spectacle of intricate figures and movements to music is part ballet and part combat exercise performed by individual horses and riders, in twos, fours and eights at the trot and canter.

Although the history of the Mounties began in 1873, it was not until 1920, just two years before the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair was established, that they became a modern police force under a new name - The Royal Canadian Mounted Police (formerly The Northwest Mounted Police). The century-old tradition of superb horsemanship was kept alive in The Musical Ride - an unbelievably intricate ballet of men and horses, a trademark and proud heritage not only of the RCMP but of Canada itself.

Each member of the Musical Ride is a trained policeman who has volunteered for duty with the Ride for two years. Most of the men have never ridden previously, but after four months of training, they are ready to leave on a six months tour which has taken them across Canada, the United States, Bermuda, Japan, England and Europe.

The thoroughbred stallions and 3-4 - 7-8 thoroughbred mares are bred and raised at the RCMP breeding farm at Pakenham, near Ottawa, Ontario. Prior to 1967, this farm was located at Fort Walsh, Saskatchewan. Ranging in height from 15.3 to 17.2 hands and weight from 1,100 to 1,350 lbs., these horses are brought into Ottawa when three years old, ground trained for six months and then trained for two years before being used in the Musical Ride.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH - In loving memory of a dear husband, father, and grandfather, Hugh Smith, who passed away Oct. 28th, 1968. He left us quietly. His thought unknown. But left us a memory. We are proud to own. So treasure him Lord in your garden of rest. For when on earth, He was one of the best. Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Ellen and family - David Smith, Diane, David and Aron Cleugh. 11

OLIVER - In loving memory of a dear friend, Douglas Oliver, who passed away October 27, 1973. Years have erased the sadness of that day. But years will never take your memory away. Loved and always remembered by Teresa and Eugene Guenet. 11

AGNEW, Beatrice May - For our dear grandma. Softly the leaves of memory fall.

Gently we gather, and treasure them all. Some may forget now that you're gone. We will remember, no matter how long. Sadly missed and always remembered by all of her grandchildren. 11

AGNEW, Beatrice - For my dear mother, who passed away Oct. 30, 1975. God gave us our mother. He tried to be fair. And when he gave us ours. We got more than our share. Although he took her back. One year ago today. We are so grateful for The years he let her stay. Lovingly remembered by daughter, Joyce, and son-in-law, Gord. 11

SOLMES: In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away Oct. 31, 1975. His smiling way and pleasant face Are a pleasure to recall; He had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all. Some day, we know we'll meet him, Some day, we know not when, To clasp his hand in the better land Never to part again. Always remembered by his family. 11

AGNEW, Beatrice - In memory of my dear wife Beatrice who passed away Oct. 30th, 1975. Dear God, I'm awful lonesome, Since Beatrice went away. To live with you in Heaven I miss her so each day. Her love was strong and loyal And when my tear drops start, I have a memory of her love To ease my aching heart. Always loved and sadly missed by her husband, Harry. 11

READS YOUR STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): Time to get down to brass tacks, Aries, especially concerning your role in a certain situation. It may not be much fun, but it's a lot better than unexpectedly sitting down on a sharp point! Later, give and take showdown with loved one. Downs change to ups, and you ride high!

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Confrontation is in the wind, Taurus. An old relationship may be broken off. Shed no tears; it was all over but the farewells anyhow. Financially speaking, don't count your coins 'til they roll in. Later, a date.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Communications gaps could cause you a few problems. Words spoken in jest are taken seriously and double entendres seem to abound. A 'small favor' turns out to be anything but small! Later, a hustlin' good time!

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): A younger person may enter your life this week to provide passionate new love interest. This one is old in experience if not in age. What're a few years, Moonbaby?! Week ends on a thoughtful note.

LEO (7/23-8/22): You lap up flattery like a kitten takes to milk, li'l lion. This week someone tells it like it is, and while you may not like it, you must agree it's true. Then, fickle feelings make an itchy heart. Finally, your ruffled pelt receives a soothing pat.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Chase away autumn doldrums by getting into something new and different — hobby, group, study, whatever turns you on! Watch out for glib ladies who don't say what they mean and don't mean what they say!

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): Optimism, thy name is Libra! You feel as though you can conquer the world, and with that attitude, you can! Watch for a misleading message and try to keep expenses down. Romance bursts on the scene and your rockets take off for a new galaxy. It's a sexy exploration!

SCORPIO (10/24-11/21): Your symbol, the scorpion, has a sharp stinger, and you sometimes have one, too. You have the power to an-ihilate someone with your words. Be judicious in your use of that power and remember that your real strength lies in your ability to raise someone to the heights.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): You are the originator of the good neighbor policy, Sag, but this week you may wish you'd been an isolationist! Ah well, even though you're surrounded by people and their problems, you really wouldn't have it any other way, now would you, love?

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): You're at your verbal best, Cap. Just remember that while you pull no punches, you needn't go for a knock out! Midweek brings a charmer with bedroom eyes; and that may just be where you'll end up!!!

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): Your favorite role is usually that of observer, Aquarius. This week you may be asked, told, even forced to get involved. Don't have to be dragged in, kicking and screaming, when (admit it) this is action you're secretly dying to have a piece of! Week closes with a kiss!

Information

Information about co-operatives, their advantages and operating procedure is contained in a 1-page booklet just published by the Ministry of Consumer Commercial Relations. "Co-operatives Are For People" tells how to start a co-operative and lists regulation governing the corporate structure.

"Recent growth of the co-operative movement in Ontario has indicated the need for more public information in this area" said consumer minister Sidney Handleman, adding that there are now over 450 co-operatives in the province.

A special section on housing co-ops deals with financial assistance available, cost advantages and pitfalls to avoid. This type of accommodation, according to the minister, is becoming "increasingly popular in the urban areas of the province as the high cost of serviced land discourages other forms of ownership."

Copies of "Co-operatives Are for People" are available from:

Royal Winter Fair is world's largest agricultural show

TORONTO - When the harvest is in and the first snowflakes are in the air, Toronto becomes the home of the world's biggest annual agricultural fair - the capital and show window of Canadian farming. For well over a century, the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair - The Royal, as most Canadians call it - has fulfilled its four basic functions: competition, information, entertainment and marketing. Its roots and traditions go much further back into history, to centuries of country fairs in Europe and to the early pioneer days of Canada.

This year's Royal is held from November 12th to 20th, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on week days and from 10 a.m. on Sunday, at the Royal Coliseum in Toronto's Exhibition Place.

Agriculture is still Canada's largest basic industry, though the farm population of this country has dropped from at least 40 per cent to less than five per cent since the first Royal was held in Toronto shortly after World War I. Throughout these years, it has been the most important single event for promoting, stimulating and improving Canadian agriculture, as well as one of Toronto's most colorful, exciting and entertaining spectacles. Today, as the "real" country is pushed farther and farther away from the centres of population, a whole new generation is growing up without any direct knowledge of where our daily food actually comes from. For those, a few hours at the Royal can be much more than an occasion for fun and excitement.

The most glamorous event, as always, is the Royal Horse Show. For the first time in several years, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Musical Ride is back - one of the world's most famous equestrian spectacles with a tradition almost as old as Canada itself. In the international jumping events, the top equestrians from Canada and the United States are joined by teams from Belgium and Ireland as well as two individual competitors, one from the Netherlands and the other from Australia.

On a more practical side, there is a completely new approach in the food display - "Foodland Canadian Style" - with less emphasis on selling and more on free sampling, more decentralization of exhibits and more demonstrations in each. "The Story of Corn" will trace this important crop from the field to the consumer's table in its many uses and varieties.

The Royal Flower Show presents a new face as well: it is being transformed into a "Garden of Gods" with gleaming white statuary highlighting the floral symphony

and many more old and new features complete the most popular event in Toronto's fall season.
